Fall Tomatoes.

Growers who wish to try fall tomatoes under glass should lose no time in getting started; at best it takes a hundred or more days from seed-sowing to ripe tomatoes and with the coming of colder weather ripening is slow enough. It is conceded that tomatoes are much more difficult to produce in the fall than in the spring. This is also true of cucumbers. Plants feel the declining light and heat and owing to the endless insect and disease germs in action outdoors trouble is more easily encountered than avoided. Still, tomatoes can be well grown and some growers are finding profit in it rather than in too much leaf lettuce early in the season. The secret of success is no doubt in getting under way early—to get all the fruit set before the arrival of dark weather, and in line for culture from start to finish as no checks can be allowed. Seedlings should be depended upon, as cuttings from old plants lack thrift. No crowding can be tolerated; they should be pot-grown and shifted as needed, using fairly rich compost at all times. We like to use little moisture and plenty of plant food to produce strong stock. In regard to varieties, Bonny Best or Comet as scarlet or Globe and Detroit for pink will fill the bill. The writer was probably the first man to force Globe and is pleased to see it used more extensively each year under glass. It is a heavy yielder, fine fruit and excellent quality, if well done. When planning for tomatoes, be sure to arrange for extra heat, as lettuce temperature will not do after Oct. 1.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa., President; J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore., Vice-President; John Hall, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y. Thirty-eighth annual convention to be held at Portland, Ore., June, 1913.

Connecticut Nurserymen's Association.

The members of the Connecticut Nurserymen's Association were in New Haven August 9 for their annual summer outing. The objective point was the Elm City Nursery Co., whose nurseries are located just beyond Edgewood Park in the new Edgewood suburb.

The nursery business has become one of Connecticut's important industries and the amount of capital and number of men engaged in the business would be a source of surprise to those who are unfamiliar with such matters. The old New England hills, which have in the past years become unprofitable for farming purposes in competition with the great west, are proving to be eminently suited to the production of the finest fruit, fruit which compares favorably with the finest production anywhere in the country. Not only can they grow under modern means of cultivation apples which are as fair as the Oregon brand, but they claim they can beat them on quality of fruit and keeping qualities. The same is true of peaches, pears, plums, quinces, etc.

The demand for ornamental stock has enormously increased in the past few years, as parks are being developed in every city and town, private estates and homes are being rapidly evolved which compare favorably with the finest homes of Europe, and practically every home place, even down to the smallest garden, now shows signs of care and attention. Such a movement as this makes an increasing demand for nursery stock.

The Elm City Nursery Co.'s extensive grounds are a just source of pride to all New Haven citizens. Developing from small beginnings a few years ago this nursery now ranks among the most important in the country. The grounds, especially about the office, are laid out in a true landscape style and few private estates are kept up with greater care. One special feature at the nursery which interested the convention members was a rare collection of Japanese dwarf trees and plants, old stone lanterns, etc., which have been arranged in such a way as to give a good idea of the old Japanese garden. This collection was made by one of the members of the firm two years ago personally in Japan and is probably as fine as any in the United States.

After looking over the nursery's very complete office, packing, cold storage, and shipping facilities the members of the association took an auto ride through the many nursery fields. It was generally voted that few nurseries are kept up with as great an amount of care and attention to the developing of each individual tree and plant. Dinner had been ordered at the west shore and the members all piled into the autos waiting for them, and after a pleasant ride about New Haven's principal streets made their way home.

Steel Tubular Boilers are Costly and Difficult to Install. Burnham Cast Iron Sectional Boilers are Easy to Handle and Inexpensive to Erect.

Steel tubular boilers require expensive chimneys. The foundation work, building of a fire box or bricking-in is also a big expense. The moving of a tubular boiler from the cars to your cellar is an engineering problem of no small size. Then there is the frequent expense of retubing that's always hanging over your head.

Burnham Cast Iron Boilers have no tubes to replace—resist destructive rusting—require no expensive chimney or masonry work—the sections are so easy to handle that two or three men with a monkey wrench and a screw driver can set them up. These are boiled down facts: Small ranges cannot be economically heated by steel tubular boilers. Owing to the number of boilers required to heat a large range of greenhouses, cast iron boilers are not economical.

We will advise you frankly which you should have and sell you either kind you want. Write us.

GEO. M. GARLAND CO., Lock Box S, Des Plaines, Ill.

You careful buyers of benches — look you. Here is a good one.

It has three kinds of goodness—

- 1—The goodness of the materials.
- 2—The goodness of its simplicity or ease of erection.
- 3—Its goodness of lasting.

The sides, bottoms and cross pieces are cypress—not pecky, or sappy cypress, mind you, but the same kind William Nicholson, of South Framingham, Mass., put in his benches twelve years ago—and the benches are still in splendid condition.

The sides of our benches are braced by a piece of wrought iron bolted to the bottom.

The legs are pipe set in holes in the cross piece.

A little concrete footing holds them in place.

A good bench—an economical bench.

KROESCHELL BROS. CO., 452 W. Erie Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

WHAT THE USERS SAY

— ABOUT —

KROESCHELL BOILERS

Cast Iron Boilers Break Down.

Have fired greenhouse boilers since 1885, both steam and hot water. Yours suits me the best. I have two of your boilers. At one time I had two cast iron boilers working together, and during a blizzard the rear section of one boiler gave out and the front section of the other sprung a crack a couple of months later. No more cast iron boilers for me. I came very close to freezing out in both instances.

G. M. THOST, DeSoto, Mo.

Would Not Have a Cast Iron Boiler for a Gift, Since I tried the Kroeschell.

The No. 6 boiler is heating my entire range. I believe it would take care of 18,000 square feet. Have no trouble to keep temperatures of 55 to 60 degrees—I could keep 80 to 90 degrees if I had to. During the coldest nights I fired at 9, 12 and 3 o'clock. The boiler has given entire satisfaction—in fact, more than I expected. Previous to this I had a cast iron boiler, but would not have it for a gift now. If I know of any one needing a good boiler, I shall recommend the Kroeschell Boiler above all.

JOHN LIETZAU, Geneva, Ill.

The Kroeschell Does Our Work Easier than Cast Iron Boilers and Saves Twenty to Twenty-five Per Cent Fuel.

The No. 4 Boiler is heating 10,000 square feet of glass—it would take care of 15,000 square feet easily. Have no trouble to keep temperature of 50 and 60 degrees in coldest weather. The boiler has given perfect satisfaction. We had two cast iron boilers, one rated for 1,200 feet of pipe and one rated for 1,500 feet. These boilers never did the work at their best and when the greenhouses were new. According to our experience with yours, we will save twenty to twenty-five per cent of fuel.

Harry T. Watson, though engaged in other business, has found time to erect and superintend two greenhouses where he grows a good stock of plants. Much of his stock is taken by Jas. B. Smith, another local retailer and seedsman.

Jesse Turner has two houses near Fike station on the electric line to Wilmerding. He grows a considerable stock of plants, is a hard working young man and deserves to be successful.

C. L. Kelly's seed and implement store is worthy to be ranked with similar enterprises in the metropolitan centers. He occupies large space in the Hibernian Temple building.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Nephrolepis.

The Boston fern and its sports, which have been grown in the bench all summer, should now be potted. The bench is full of young suckers, which, if saved, will make fine stock for another year, so in lifting the old plants take a knife and cut around the plant about two inches from the center and place a trowel under the plant, leaving the young stock in the bench. They will soon start to grow, when they can be placed close together in flats and grown on in a fairly cool house until next spring, when they will make excellent stock for planting out. The plants that are lifted should be large enough to plant in a 6-inch pot. If there is a demand for larger sizes two, three or four may be planted in seven, eight or nine-inch pots. Many of the plants have probably not made an even growth, being more or less one-sided. These should be the ones selected for doubling up in the larger pots. As soon as potted they should be kept close and warm for one or two weeks and frequently syringed; they will then have obtained a good hold in the soil and should be given plenty of light and air. The call for these plants will begin by October 1 and it is much better to have them well established before they go into the residences, and to do this they should be potted by September. The greatest source of disappointment in these plants is in sending them out before they have become established. The Whitmani and finer leaved varieties are now growing rapidly and should be given room enough to spread and make fine plants.

Poinsettias.

The plants of poinsettias, in the northern section of the country, should be in the houses by September 1, for cool nights are apt to occur from that date on and the successful culture of these plants requires an even temperature. The early struck cuttings should be potted into 6-inch pots and properly staked, the smaller stock to be grown in pans can be grown until October in the small pots. Give the plants a light location in full sunlight, and space 'out sufficiently' to allow a good circulation of air around the plants. In potting the plants if there are no arrangements so that they can be watered with manure water later, leave a good inch of space at the top so that they can be given a top-dressing when the bracts begin to form. An extra feeding at that time will greatly increase the size of the bracts and brilliancy of the color. Close the ventilators on all cool nights as soon as the temperature falls below 60° and as soon as the night temperatures begin to run lower than that point a little fire heat will be necessary. The one great point in growing poinsettias is in keeping them at an even temperature and growing rapidly.

Sweet Peas.

To have sweet peas in bloom by Christmas the seed should be sown about September 1. If it is intended to grow them to follow some crop that is now in the beds they can be sown in pots, but if the beds are now ready it is better to sow them in the beds themselves. The growers of large quantities have the rows running lengthwise of the houses, two rows in each four-foot bed, one on each side, with a path in the center, but they can also be grown in rows running across the beds, the rows being about three feet apart. This distance will be found necessary or the plants will get twined together, making a bad snarl of the vines. In sowing the seed in pots, place five or six seeds in a 4-inch pot, and in sowing in drills in the bench, plant the seeds about an inch apart. It is very easy to thin them out if they come up too thick, and one good strong plant to a pot and about eight inches apart in the row is about what should be left to grow on. It is often difficult to get good germination during the hot weather, therefore it is well to plant enough seed. Many growers have trouble with the seed rotting and also the plants damping off after they have grown to quite a height. They must be watered very sparingly until they begin to climb on the strings. The white seeded varieties are often very difficult to start; a good way which we have found very successful is to sow the seed in the drills on top of the soil, throwing a little sphagnum moss over them until they begin to grow, when they can be lightly covered with soil, and when they begin to climb the drill can be filled in. This will prevent the seed from rotting and proper watering will remedy the damping off.

Marguerites.

The marguerites for winter blooming will soon have to be potted in their blooming pots. This can be done now at any time and if they are becoming pot-bound the sooner the better. Nine and ten-inch pots are none too large if good flowers are to be grown, and the soil should be good and rich. Pot firmly, using a rammer that the soil can be made solid, and use good drainage. Keep the buds picked off until cool weather sets in. The blooms that are made during the warm weather are of inferior quality and no good flowers will be produced until the plants get a good hold in the new soil. The plants are far better plunged in frames for some time yet than in the houses, for they may become infested with red spider under the glass. The plants in the benches will need to be frequently sprayed to keep them free from insects and the blooms should be kept picked off of them for some time yet. When cool weather approaches allow the flowers to come along. Cuttings can be made at this time which will make nice flowering plants about the turn of the year, at a time when the large plants seem to take a rest and do not bloom profusely. This will ensure a cut throughout the season.

Wallflowers.

The wallflowers that were sown in the spring should now be planted in the benches that they may get a good start before the cool weather sets in. They should be planted in a house that can be held at a cool temperature to procure the best results, a house that does not have a night temperature exceeding 50°, and even 45° is better. They will not bloom to any extent until after the turn of the year when they will stand a little higher temperature. The soil should be a good rich compost and the plants can be set about eight inches apart. Stake the plants as soon as they begin to grow and keep them tied up so that the spikes of bloom will not become crooked. Constant fumigation will be necessary for they are likely to be infected with aphids unless guarded against.

Corsage Bouquet.

The corsage bouquet illustrated herewith is made of Ward roses, gardenias and pale blue flowered ribbon. Making a corsage seems easy to the average person, and especially where only one flower is used. Where more than one variety of flowers is used the result is usually heavy looking and in many instances it is entirely too large. Blending the delicate shades, say of pink, blue and lavender, requires skill. To create something original or novel in a corsage and not allow our European friends to outstrip us we must have a thorough knowledge of colors. This holds good in any line of the floral business, however. He who has the knowledge and the courage of his convictions can create and originate. The less fortunate ones will trail behind proportionately. H. E. K.

Convention Novelties for the Retailer.

H. G. Dreyer & Sons' new adjustable wrought iron blackened and Japanned plant stand is a thing of merit. From a pedestal or a single plant to one holding a dozen is an easy transition. There is certainly a place for this practical stand.

Schloss & Co.'s new bridal scarf with fringed edge, velvet corsage ties with ribbon roses, and embossed taffeta ribbon were all good and likely to become staple.

Carbone's individual glass vase or flower tube for a single rose is a very dainty ornament for the dinner table or my lady's bureau.

The Roseville Pottery's green terra cotta vase with flaring top is just the thing for a window or center vase. It is made in several sizes.

Bayersdorfer's "chariot of peace" is a flight of fancy, five doves being driven to a chariot of flowers. This makes an elaborate but not large piece for a funeral. Their imperial china vase will add a touch of elegance to any stock.

Sprinkle proof ribbons and chiffons are a distinct advantage and the Wertheimer Bros. say they are rapidly increasing their line.

L. Bauman's artificial poinsettias, chrysanthemums and American Beauty roses were very natural looking and will be found very useful for decorating.

Among M. Rice & Co.'s novelties the Florentine art work as well as the iridescent colored willow and rattan baskets stood out and at once attracted attention.

Dainty reed baskets with raised composition flowers in colors were bright spots in the Raedlein Basket Co.'s display.

The greenhouse man also found new wrinkles and useful novelties for house construction. The Garland truck for greenhouse carrying is about the last word in this line. The double action of the axles controlled by the handle enables it to be turned in a very small space. Their light iron sashbar, fitted with zinc lining over and under the glass appears to have a field for itself.

A new idea in ventilating machinery for eave sash and also another for the side transoms was a feature in the Lord and Burnham exhibit. Their chain operated gear does away with a column and universal joint.

CORSAGE BOUQUET.

By Henry E. Klunder, Chicago.

Hitchings & Co.'s sliding gear for transoms and the new "Z" wallplate bar which prevents the accumulation of ice were features of their exhibit. Their new model boiler is made in forty sizes to suit all sized houses and requirements.

Foley's flat rafter is a strong point in the construction of large houses. A bar clip of malleable iron for attaching sash bars to eave plate or iron gutters is a distinct Foley idea that has great merit.

Moninger had many good things. His pipe hanger especially attracted considerable attention.

Rose Tree Centerpiece.

The present-day florist is forced to exercise his ingenuity to the very limit in order to keep up with the times and show progressiveness—something different or out of the ordinary seems to be essential. The above design represents an old-fashioned table decoration, the broken-down fence helping to convey this idea, while the rose tree in itself modernizes the arrangement, giving your dinner guests a pleasant surprise on account of the original construction. This design permits of a great variety of arrangements. For a small table, the center tree alone is used. This can be made entirely of open roses or part buds and the rest of flowers in different stages of development. Then you can use all buds, in which case a greater number of flowers will be necessary.

For large tables, the small rose tree can be used, surrounding the larger tree at equal intervals. These miniature trees can be distributed as favors after the dinner is over. The construction is very simple: use soft wire to keep the heads from drooping; make a round bouquet of as many roses as will be necessary for the size of the table to be decorated. Take half a dozen old American Beauty stems, remove the foliage, leaving on all the thorns. Fasten these stems around the handle of the bouquet. Take an ordinary piece of pine board and fasten a round block to the center of it. Cut the American Beauty stems even on the bottom after deciding upon the right height. Cover the board with green moss. Some of the roses must be bent downward so the tree will look irregular and as artistic as possible. Adiantum or asparagus can be used around the base of the tree. For this arrangement, fancy jardinières may also be used. In this case the moss must first be packed into the jardinières very tightly, then the stems forced in and then the crown fastened to the stems.

Mrs. McCoy's Wreath for Imperial Bier.

Mrs. L. W. McCoy, one of the enterprising florists of Seattle, Wash., recently built a six-foot high wreath of laurel and cypress leaves to be used as the floral tribute of the United States to the late Emperor of Japan. The wreath was delivered to Secretary of State Knox the day he sailed to attend the imperial funeral. It was tied with red, white and blue ribbons.

ROSE TREE CENTERPIECE.

Restrictions on Cut Flower Shipments.

The French decree of April 19, 1912, prohibits the importation of Italian cut flowers into France from May 1 to November 1 each year. This affects chiefly the Italian Riviera region (Liguria), which exports to the neighboring republic large quantities of cut flowers, chiefly roses, although carnations and violets have also been shipped in the past.

The reason for this prohibition is the prevalence of diaspis pentagona, a pest which destroys the mulberry tree, thereby injuring silkworm culture and menacing the silk industry. It seems that the larvæ of the diaspis pentagona are not mature from November to May, and for that reason cut flowers are not so apt to spread the parasite in that season as throughout the summer. The height of the Italian exportation of roses to France is said to be during December, January and February.

The exports of fresh flowers from Italy to all countries in 1911 were: Austria-Hungary, 3,052,720 pounds; France, 1,230,460 pounds; Germany, 1,595,880 pounds; Switzerland, 214,060 pounds; other countries, 105,600 pounds; total, 6,198,720 pounds, valued at $1,631,390.

The Italian Ministry of Agriculture, Industry and Commerce publishes the following list of plants which are recognized as subject to the infection of the diaspis pentagona: Celtis australis, L. (lotus); berberis stenophylla, Hance; Cisalpina japonica; caryopteris mastacanthus; bignonia catalpa, L. American Gladiolus Society

The Annual Meeting.

The meeting was opened by President Hendrickson at 9:30 a. m. The minutes of the Baltimore meeting were read by the secretary, followed by a speech of welcome by President Vincent of the S. A. F., which was attentively listened to. President Vincent extended the glad hand of friendship, and in the course of his remarks said that he hoped for affiliation of the two societies and thought that the A. G. S. would be strengthened by such a connection. He spoke interestingly of his experiences with our favorite flower, comparing the old Gandavensis with the modern strains and varieties with which it seems he has kept familiar. He urged a continuous campaign of publicity and said that every member at the convention should wear a gladiolus as a boutonniere. He was given a vote of thanks.

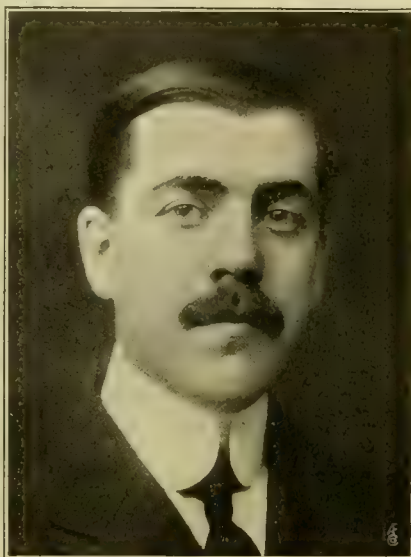

President Hendrickson's Address.

Ladies and gentlemen: Another year has rolled around since our last meeting, and in reviewing the work of the society I cannot say that everything has been accomplished that might have been if your officers had had more time to devote to its interests, but we have been able to hold our own, as far as membership goes. In fact we have had a slight increase. We find that gladioli are increasing in popularity by leaps and bounds. This is especially true in Holland during the present time, and I believe that the interest is spreading all over Europe, as well as our own country, so the future of our favorite flower seems to be assured. I want to take this opportunity to thank our friends who have so generously donated prizes for our exhibits. The responses to our appeals have been most encouraging, and we consider that we are fortunate in the large number of prizes that we have offered for this present exhibition. In addition to this we have a good-sized prize list ready to offer for forced blooms to be exhibited at the National Flower Show in New York City next April.

There are some important things that present themselves to me at this time, and I will mention them for your consideration. One of the most important is the matter of naming new varieties of gladioli. I have referred to this before, but I cannot refrain from calling attention to it again, as it has been my privilege and opportunity to watch the tests of nearly all varieties now offered, and it appears to me that some that have been named recently are not any better, or equal, to some that have been on the market for twenty years; in short, the standard seems to be lower instead of higher at the present time, and the number that are being put on the market is discouraging, therefore I would like to make an appeal to growers to go slow in this matter. I would make another appeal to catalogue men to require some standard to be lived up to before they will list a new variety. The certificate of merit from our society would be a good credential, if we are careful in awarding these certificates.

Another evil that comes to our attention more and more is the practice of re-naming old varieties. This may very often be done in good faith by a grower, but it does not help the situation any, and it could be avoided if every grower would keep in touch with the nomenclature committee of our society. I believe there is a great work for our society in creating a love and demand for our favorite flower. During the past year we have offered seven sets of medals to various horticultural societies throughout the country to encourage exhibits by amateurs. It is too early to say what the result will be. I would like to see a portfolio of colored plates prepared by the society, if any feasible way could be worked out whereby the proposition could be financed. The idea is to have uniform plates of the leading varieties made from time to time. These plates could be offered for sale by subscription, or otherwise, and in time a very interesting portfolio would be the result.

I. S. Hendrickson.

President American Gladiolus Society.

There is a movement on foot at the present time for the affiliation of all the societies with the S. A. F. While this presents some disadvantages and objections, yet I believe on the whole it is a move in the right direction, as it seems to me that some plan must be worked out in the near future, if we hope to have any life or activity at all in the various societies. While at the present time most of them are in good working condition, brought on largely, I believe, by the stimulus of the National Flower Shows, I feel that it will not be lasting, as the new members come far too slowly. Take our society for instance—we have a membership only of two hundred; whereas, I am sure you will agree when I say it ought to be two thousand, and we are obliged to use persuasion in holding some of the two hundred, as many feel that it is a burden to belong to anywhere from six to twenty societies. In closing I wish to thank my associates in office, as well as every member of the society, for the hearty co-operation and support they have accorded me during my term of office.

Judges' Report.

E. H. Cushman said that some of the exhibits were excellent; but that there was yet room for improvement, and that the awards were made strictly in accordance with merit. The judges were given a vote of thanks for the fair and able manner in which the judging was conducted.

Color Chart Committee's Report.

Arthur Cowee of the color chart committee reported that they had not yet adopted a color chart, but said that a hand chart by Vilmorin was very good and reasonable in price, and that he would secure a copy. He said that it was advisable to go slowly and secure something that will be altogether desirable. The report was received.

Nomenclature Committee's Report.

Prof. A. C. Beal gave a verbal report of the work of the committee for this year, to date, but said that a complete report would be made at the end of the trials in the fall. This report will be published in a future number of the bulletin. His report was accepted with a vote of thanks. Prof. Beal was made an honorary member of the society. Appropriate resolutions were prepared by Prof. Beal, who was appointed by President Hendrickson to draft them, on the deaths of Prof. L. B. Judson, Prof. John Craig, and W. H. Denning; and it was voted that these resolutions be spread on the minutes of the society, and that copies be sent to the bereaved families. After a lengthy discussion regarding the registering of varieties of gladioli, it was voted on the motion of B. Hammond Tracy, that members of the society pay a fee of $1.00 for registering new varieties not catalogued, and that non-members pay a fee of $2.00, all catalogue varieties to be registered before the next meeting or to be charged a like sum thereafter.

Election of Officers.

The election of officers for 1912-1913 resulted as follows: I. S. Hendrickson, Floral Park, N. Y., president; Matthew Crawford, Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, vice-president; L. Merton Gage, Groton, Mass., corresponding secretary; H. Youell, financial secretary, pending the decision of the executive committee in regard to abolishing this office; Carl Cropp, Chicago, treasurer. Executive committee: Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y.; E. E. Stewart, Rives Junction, Mich.; Maurice Fuld, Philadelphia, Pa. Nomenclature committee: Prof. A. C. Beal, Ithaca, N. Y.; Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y.; Leonard Joerg, Flowerfield, N. Y.

Secretary Gage's Report.

A meeting of the executive committee of the American Gladiolus Society was held in New York city on December 6, with the following members present: Arthur Cowee, E. W. Fenigar, A. T. Boddington, I. S. Hendrickson. The matter of a die and medals was discussed, and it was finally decided to purchase a die and offer ten sets of medals the first year to as many local horticultural societies. It was thought best to offer a silver medal for the first prize and a bronze medal for the second prize, the ten sets of medals to cost $70.00. The matter of the registration bureau was taken up, and it was decided to combine this committee with that of the nomenclature committee already established, with trial grounds at Ithaca, New York, where all tests can be made. The matter of certificates of merit was then taken up, and it was the sense of the meeting that these certificates should be awarded only by the nomenclature committee, and not by judges appointed for the annual exhibition. Prize winners for the best articles on gladioli, written for amateurs, were: Mrs. Francis King, Alma, Mich., first; Mrs. May B. Crane, Hammondsport, N. Y., second. President Hendrickson appointed Mr. Cowee and Prof. Beal as members of the color chart committee. I regret to report the death of two of our members, Professor L. B. Judson, who was one of the little party of organizers at Boston, and W. H. Dunning, of New York City, who joined our ranks but recently.

THE NEW MEDALS.

The face or obverse side of our new medals represents a spike of gladiolus flowers with "American Gladiolus Society" engraved around the rim. The reverse side is a simple wreath of gladiolus blooms, with space for engraving. The design is unique and beautiful. The medal is made in sterling silver, colored silver gray, and is also made in bronze. It was designed and made by the Boston Badge Co., Boston, Mass. The medals will be given to the representative horticultural societies which will offer them, in their schedules, to be competed for by amateur exhibitors of gladiolus blooms at summer shows. The conditions require that the individual exhibits shall consist of fifteen named varieties, three spikes each; the same to be correctly labeled. The silver medal is for the first prize and the bronze medal for second prize. The following societies have been given sets of these medals for their summer exhibitions: Massachusetts Horticultural Society, Boston, Mass.; Newport (R. I.) Horticultural Society; Southampton (L. I.) Horticultural Society; St. Catharines (Ont.) Horticultural Society; Pasadena (Calif.) Horticultural Society; Melrose (Mass.) Horticultural and Improvement Society; Worcester County Horticultural Society, Worcester, Mass.; and Elberon Horticultural Society, Asbury Park, New Jersey.

I have received two letters from the secretary of the National Gladiolus Society and the two numbers of their National Hand Book and have sent them copies of all of our bulletins. The secretary, Mrs. Atkinson, writes that it is the earnest desire of the National Society to exchange views and co-operate with our society in straightening out questions of nomenclature.

NEW MEMBERS.

The correspondence has been very large for the past year, and includes many letters soliciting new members which have brought quite satisfactory returns and I have fourteen to my credit. Ten more sent in by other members have been sent to me, besides some more that were sent to Financial Secretary Youell direct.

I believe it would be a good idea to offer a prize to the one securing the largest number of new members for the coming year, and I will promise not to enter the contest because I think the secretary would have a little advantage in a contest of this kind.

Regarding the bulletin, as chairman of the bulletin committee I would say that there are members of our society that could give us a great deal of help in making it more readable and interesting, if they would only feel so inclined. We need items of interest and material for our question box, and any grower, whether a beginner or a man of experience, can often give us valuable suggestions. Thanking those who have given us a helping hand and earnestly asking, like Oliver Twist, for more, I submit this report for your consideration.

The treasurer's report was not read but will appear in the bulletin, together with the report of the financial secretary.

Report of Exhibition Committee.

"We have much to be proud of in the exhibition. The exhibits as well as the prize list, are more than twice as large as any previous show we ever held. Last year's prizes amounted to $150.00; but this year it reaches $350.00, besides gold, silver, and bronze medals, silver cups, etc." H. YOUELL.

Mr. Youell's report was accepted and the committee given a vote of thanks. Prof. Whetzel of Cornell University gave a most interesting and instructive talk on the diseases of the gladiolus, and afterward answered many questions by several of the members present. A petition, to which a large number of signatures of growers were attached, calling for a change of the customs tariff on gladiolus bulbs, was read by Arthur Cowee. It was voted that a copy of this petition be sent to all members to sign and obtain signatures, and that each member take up this matter with his congressman. The discussion regarding what constitutes an amateur exhibitor was referred to the exhibition committee.

Washing Gladiolus Bulblets.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:—

Are small bulbs and bulblets of gladiolus injured by washing immediately after digging? H.

The following responses to the above question have been received from prominent growers in addition to those published in our issue of February 3, page 62.

No. We have washed small lots of bulblets for more than twenty years. The one thing to avoid is getting them too dry. As a rule we do not wash bulbs, but we have done more of it this fall than usual, as the ground was so wet. The small bulbs are put in shallow, tight-bottomed crates and stacked up to dry. Some windy day in the winter they are taken out in a sieve and rubbed and sifted until free from dust and roots. When many are to be cleaned we use a fanning mill. When we have a large number of marked varieties that we want to save separately, with their bulblets, we wrap the bulblets in paraffine paper and put them and the bulb that produced them in a paper sack on which is written any name or memorandum that we wish to preserve.

M. CRAWFORD.

I do not see how bulblets could be injured by washing if dried thoroughly at once. Small bulbs are more or less injured by handling and washing would have a similar effect. If not dried at once, the moisture would swell the bulb and be liable to burst the covering. It would also have a tendency to start growth. E. S. MILLER.

Bulbs or bulblets may be washed without injury if they are thoroughly dried after washing, but washing is unnecessary, unless, perhaps, the soil is infected with disease, in which case it might prove beneficial.

L. MERTON GAGE.

We do not practice this method, and cannot pass an opinion from experience, but we will say we do not believe the small bulbs or bulblets would be benefited by it. E. T. BARNES.

No, not if thoroughly dried.

E. H. CUSHMAN.

WITH THE GROWERS

Heacock's Wyncote Establishment.

The Wyncote establishment of the Joseph Heacock Co. furnishes a fine example of up-to-date methods in growing palms as well as intensive culture as applied to greenhouses. The large stock is composed almost entirely of Kentias Belmoriana and Fosteriana. The former are grown as single specimens, while most of the latter are planted seven to a pot or tub. All stock that is too large for a six-inch pot is planted in cedar tubs, which Mr. Heacock believes are much better than pots, not only for the health of the plants, but because they are preferred by the decorator, the neat green tub presenting a finished appearance in a decoration and not having to be hidden with a basket cover as do the plain pots.

To the lover of palms it is a pleasure to walk through the various large houses under the guidance of Superintendent Shober, who is a palmist of the first water, and admire the luxurious glossy foliage which shows the plants to be in most vigorous health. From the boxes of seedlings to the two-inch pots and on through the various sizes up to the twelve-inch tub specimens, there is that same healthy, thriving growth which finally results in their calling for a new pot, as Mr. Shober says they do, when the strong roots push the ball of earth out of the pot. All the stock is grown on the place from seed imported direct from the native land of the kentias. Two years ago the houses were considerably enlarged, roses and carnations, former specialties, were discarded, and still with all this extra space every foot is full and much of the younger stock is only waiting for the fall shipments to get the needed shift.

It is hard to pick out the best in a large stock such as this, but the ten-inch tub Belmorianas are splendid specimens, and the twelve-inch tub made-up Fosterianas certainly prove a delight to the decorator; they are such superb plants. Arecas are also grown and very good eight to ten-inch pots stock is seen. A house is given to Phoenix Roebeleni, which are as yet in small sizes. Boston and Scottii ferns are also grown in quantity. Cibotiums are favorites here and fit in nicely with the palms, being grown when young, hanging to the rafters of the houses and finished on pedestals which rise above the younger palms. There are a splendid lot of the finished plants here in from eight to ten-inch tubs. The smaller sizes are not offered.

The cibotium is what is called "velvet" as it takes up no bench room and is a good producer. The houses of cattleyas, another specialty here, are in splendid shape, an immense stock of flowers being cut from them the past season. An expensive improvement is now going on here, being the installation of three large 100 h. p. boilers at a cost of more than $4,500. Some of those taken out had done service for nearly twenty-five years. Mr. Heacock is a great economist when it comes to greenhouse space and the visitor will rarely ever find empty benches or floor space. The system established keeps the supply always coming along and it almost automatically crowds into any empty space as it appears. K.

Pittsburg Cut Flower Co.

To erect and thoroughly equip over five hundred thousand square feet of glass in eleven years and make it a profitable investment would seem to be a large enterprise, but that is just what has been done by Fred Burki, president of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., and his associates at the firm's range at Bakerstown, Pa. There are so many good features in the methods of carrying on the work at this range that one may be pardoned if some were overlooked in one brief visit. First and most important, they grow fine stock and a lot of it. Mr. Burki, who is well known to the trade as a very skillful and practical grower, spends most of his time at the range, his home being at Crystal farm. His foreman, Fred Kochoer, is also a very practical and experienced man.

It is true that the land is hilly, but in planning the various houses that fact seems to us to have been utilized to good advantage in catching sunlight in the short winter days. All the water used is raised from a pond on the place to two large tanks holding from 1,400 to 1,700 barrels each. Two gas engines fed with natural gas from wells on the farm are the motive power used for pumping. A third gas engine is used to run the refrigerating plant, a feature that attracts attention—the storage rooms for cut flowers being large and convenient with a large packing room adjoining. The range is heated by eight tubular boilers ranging from 100 to 150 horsepower. The farm comprises 240 acres, much of it being in hay, as quite a number of horses are kept on the place, though the flowers are carried to Pittsburg, about twenty miles, on an immense auto-truck. In addition to the land used for carnation planting, there is a considerable area in peonies, phlox and other hardy flowering plants. The stock now on hand includes about 200,000 carnations, 50,000 rose and 25,- 000 chrysanthemum plants, besides 4,000 orchid plants and a large glass area in asparagus, both plumosus nanus and sprengeri.

A large force of men (about seventy in all are employed on the flowers) were engaged on August 7 in hauling from the field and planting carnations, the stock having made strong and healthy growth. Both roses and chrysanthemums were in fine condition. The orchid house is a very attractive feature—the shelves being arranged so as to form a roomy house beneath, where potting can be done in a cool place. The house is also bordered with a luxuriant growth of asparagus sprengeri. All the stock grown is sold at the company's store, 121 Seventh street, Pittsburg, of which T. P. Langhans is the efficient and capable manager. In the management of the sales of the immense cut which daily reaches the store, Mr. Langhans is ably assisted by W. A. Clarke, the treasurer of the company.

Godfrey Aschmann.

There is always something of interest to the visitor to this establishment of intensive culture at 1012 West Ontario street, Philadelphia. Situated as he is in a thickly populated section of the city with almost every foot of his ground covered with greenhouses, Mr. Aschmann has to make the most of his space. With his work tables always full, he trims from the walks by putting narrow shelves along the front on both sides of the walks. Hanging shelves from the roof and elevated plant stands also are temporarily used during the busy seasons of spring and fall. These stands are used to bring on the seedlings and freshly potted rooted cuttings that appear always ready for a shift and waiting for table space.

Several little innovations that may be useful to other growers are seen here. A bench of pans of sand filled with poinsettia cuttings were seen. These pans were standing in saucers of water, none at any time being filled to the top. There was no bottom heat, yet all the cuttings appeared to be in a healthy, robust condition. Mr. Aschmann says that they take a little longer to root than with bottom heat, but make strong, vigorous plants and that he loses very few plants by this method. Begonia Gloria de Lorraine and pink Lonsdale are found here. Being rooted in pots of soil (all short cuttings), there is no bottom heat. The cuttings were placed in 2-inch pots of soil set close together on the bench and given a thorough soaking. They are not again watered for two weeks and the result is most astonishing. There is very little waste, the stock making very nice plants for 3 inch pots for the holidays.

Cineraria seedlings germinate in a small elevated frame with shaded glass. Mr. Aschmann says that they must be given great care in this early state to prevent fungus. Primula obconica and other types of this popular plant are to be seen in quantity. This is the home of the araucaria and many plants of this variety are here. Excelsa, Mr. Aschmann says, sells the best, and his importations run into the thousands each year. Outside azaleas in good condition are another plant on Mr. Aschmann's list. So valuable is the space here that the compost heap has been leveled off and the entire surface covered with azaleas placed so as to keep them as moist as possible. Boston ferns and their variations fill several of the houses. Many fern balls were sending out buds in profusion a short time ago. Kentias, very good medium sized plants, filled one house and looked very salable. Rubbers, Jerusalem cherries and hydrangeas were in open frames outside. Daisies and verbenas from seed planted out for stock, were interesting exhibits. Mr. Aschmann is justly proud of his compact establishment and its well grown stock, and is always glad to show his visitors around. K.

LYONS, IA.—George E. Dallam has completed the installation of a new heating system at his greenhouses.

NOKOMIS, ILL.—Edgar Easterday has sold his flower stock to Mrs. R. O. Henderson of Pana. Mr. Easterday will use the greenhouses hereafter for the raising of vegetables.

The Third National Flower Show.

GROWING FOREIGN EXHIBITS.

Certain European growers of bulbs, rhododendrons and flower seeds are anxious to connect with some florist in the neighborhood of New York to force their products and have them in good shape to be exhibited at the National Flower Show, early in April, 1913, it being obviously impossible to bring such stock as bulbs into flower in Holland or England and then transport them in that condition next year.

If any florist is willing to take up this matter will he please advise me how many he will be able to handle and at what price? I will then put him in communication with the parties interested. Aside from the financial consideration I trust some florist will feel interested enough to take up this matter, as it is the desire of the European seed and bulb men to show some of the very latest and best novelties in their respective lines.

C. H. TORRY, Chairman.

Quarantine Law Enforcement.

By an act of congress approved by the president on August 20, 1912, entitled "An act to regulate the importation of nursery stock and other plants and plant products," etc., the Secretary of Agriculture is authorized and directed to quarantine any state, territory or district of the United States, or any portion thereof, when he shall determine the fact that a dangerous plant disease or insect infestation new or not theretofore widely prevalent in the United States, exists in such state, territory or district. Before promulgating his determination that it is necessary to institute such a quarantine, he shall give a public hearing at which any interested party may appear and be heard either in person or by attorney.

The Secretary of Agriculture is further directed to prohibit the importation into the United States of any class of nursery stock, fruits, vegetables, roots, etc., whenever he shall determine that such prohibition is necessary to prevent the introduction into the United States of any tree, plant or fruit disease, or insect infestation, new or not widely prevalent within the United States. Before issuing his proclamation to this effect he is directed, as in the case of quarantine against a state, to give a public hearing to any interested parties who may wish to appear in person or by attorney.

There is imminent danger of the introduction into the United States at the present time of two dangerous plant diseases and one insect known to cause great damage in other countries. One fungus disease, the white pine blister rust, injures four important species of pine in practically all European countries. It is a fungus disease and would be a most undesirable importation in the United States if it be brought here, as it is liable to be on imported nursery stock. It would cause enormous damage to coniferous forests.

Another fungus disease which is a menace to American agriculture is the potato disease known as potato wart, potato canker, black scab, etc., caused by a fungus which, in advanced stages of the disease, utilizes every particle of food in the tuber and reduces it to a brownish black soft mass of a very unpleasant putrid odor. The disease occurs in many parts of Europe and in several islands not far from the Atlantic coast of the United States.

The menacing insect pest is the Mediterranean fruit fly, an insect which is tolerably well described by its name, and which is now known to be established in the Hawaiian Islands. Its introduction into the United States from the territory of Hawaii would be a calamity of the first importance to fruit growers. The state of California, because of this insect, now quarantines against a long list of fruits and vegetables from Hawaii, including oranges, Chinese plums, prickly pears, Damson plums, peaches, figs, tomatoes, grapes, squashes, and a large number of less well known fruits and vegetables. Other Pacific coast states, however, have no such quarantine, and the introduction of the insect through ports in those states is possible and perhaps imminent. It is also found in Queensland, New South Wales and West Australia.

To prevent these undesirable immigrants from entering the United States the Secretary of Agriculture proposes to exercise the power vested in him by the new law and declare a quarantine against the territory of Hawaii in the case of the Mediterranean fruit fly, and also to prohibit the importation from Great Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Russia, Germany, Austria, Switzerland and Italy of four species of pines and their horticultural forms liable to introduce the white pine blister rust, namely, white pine (Pinus strobus Linnaeus), Western white pine (Pinus monticola Douglas), sugar pine (Pinus lambertiana Douglas), and stone or cembra pine (Pinus cembra Linnaeus). The importation of potatoes that may bring the potato wart disease from Newfoundland and the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, and from Great Britain, including England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland, and from Germany and Austria Hungary will also be prohibited.

In compliance with the law, however, he will, before issuing his quarantine proclamations, give public hearings to persons interested who may appear in person or by attorney, or submit their views in writing. Announcement is hereby made that these hearings will be held as follows:

On the white pine blister rust, September 16, 1912.

On the Mediterranean fruit fly, September 18, 1912.

On the potato wart disease, September 20, 1912.

All hearings will be held at the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., at 10 o'clock a. m., on the dates above specified.

Photographs illustrating the three dangers above mentioned can be obtained upon application to the Chief of the Division of Publications, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Driveways to Railway Stations.

Paper read by C. J. Andrews at the sixth annual convention of the Railway Gardening Association, Roanoke, Va., August 13-15.

One of the most serious problems the railway gardener has to deal with is the construction and maintenance of driveways, and it becomes especially serious if his jurisdiction extends over driveways to freight yards, as well as passenger stations. With him there is no regularly organized road department, with its recognized needs for a definite appropriation, and the money used for driveway maintenance most generally is taken from what would otherwise be available for landscape work. Being then so essentially utilitarian in their nature their construction should be from the standpoint of utility. A well built driveway should be free from dust or mud—for dust and mud are causes of grinding away the surface. Macadam or crushed stone in some form is the universally used material on road surfaces; it provides a considerable degree of permanence, but is by no means, even when made of the best material free from the dust and mud referred to.

Travel is increasing everywhere, both in quantity and speed, and the standard of street and road maintenance demanded by the public is growing higher and higher, especially since the automobile has come into such extensive use. For this reason the railroad gardener is hard pressed to find some means of permanently improving his macadam surfaces or some substitute thereof. Macadam is reasonably cheap, asphalt, wood-blocks, or brick comparatively expensive. Something between the two is demanded, something that will utilize the existing macadam and which can be supplied without an expensive plant or a highly trained force of workmen. An application of oil or tar to the surface, which in either case might be crude or refined, was first suggested as an improvement in this direction; much benefit has been derived from the use of oil and tar in suppressing dust and holding the surface particles together, but where the traffic (especially to and from freight yards), attains considerable volume they have been found only temporary in their effects.

To have any value as a binder, the tar must penetrate beneath the surface and this it cannot do in a well filled compressed macadam. If heavy enough to have the desired binding quality, the necessarily small quantity and thin layer used deteriorates rapidly, is much affected by moisture and freezing, and especially in case of tar, becomes brittle in cold weather and rapidly wears away. The use of these materials have been tried on our division for several years with the above result. The failure to obtain the desired permanent result or economy of maintenance by surface application on ordinary macadam suggests the advisability of specially preparing the surface for the reception of tar or oil by cleaning off dust, spiking up, and bringing the coarse stone to the surface, or by the application of a layer of new stone—all for the purpose of securing greater penetration and better binding effect. In some cases the result seemed to justify the increased expenditure, while in others the result was not so good, as the tar was unequally distributed, leaving the road spongy in places.

The cost of one surface application of "tarvia" composed of 60 per cent of tar, 30 per cent of asphalt and 10 per cent heavy Texas oil applied hot, is from nine to eleven cents per square yard, without anything allowed for re-dressing or new stone. A heavy Texas oil may be applied in the same way for twelve to fourteen cents per square yard, while if the surface is specially prepared, or new stone used, the cost of a macadam surface treated with "tarvia" or oil may vary from twenty to fifty cents per square yard. Very few macadam surfaces that have been used for any length of time are in a condition to receive this sort of treatment without some re-dressing or new stone, so the minimum figure given above will often be very greatly exceeded.

The method of treatment referred to is what we call the penetration method, which generally applies as the bitumen used is heavy enough to act as a binder between the particles of stone. It must be heated when applied, and to be effective it must penetrate a certain depth. The method of application is as follows: The bitumen, either oil or tar, is heated in portable wagon tanks (after being thoroughly mixed in a large tank) to at least 200 degrees Fahrenheit and then spread upon the road surface under steam pressure of from twenty to fifty pounds through a hose with a spraying nozzle, handled by a competent man, making sure it is applied evenly. Immediately after the application and before it has time to set firm, a thin layer of clean stone, not over one-half inch in thickness should be used, then rolled, but not too much.

as many a good road has been permanently ruined by too much rolling after the bitumen has been applied.

To apply bitumen and get good results, the stone must be dry and the weather warm. If applied in cold weather it will begin to crack and break in a few months, and if the cracks are numerous the only repairs that can be successfully made is to spike up the whole surface, harrow it to bring the coarse stone to the top, or add a layer of new stone, roll down well and then put on a new application of bitumen. The time of the year when the greatest damage is done to driveways treated by the surface or penetrative method is the winter or spring when the frost and excessive moisture has left the macadam in a somewhat loosened and weakened condition and when the bitumen is more or less brittle from the cold. When in this state a road surface apparently in good condition will sometimes go to pieces badly in a few days. Another thing to be considered is the character of the vehicles using the roadway. Plain rubber tires are comparatively harmless on any sort of bituminous surfaced roadway where the particles are sufficiently bound together to prevent their being loosened, and where the protective coating of bitumen is not broken through. But the grinding and pounding of iron-tired traffic has a much more serious effect where the layer of bitumen is comparatively thin, especially during the season when it is brittle.

We find much more evidence of this in our freight yards than on the driveways to our passenger stations. As the use of a driveway increases and as the grade and traffic passing over it improves, just in proportion does the objection increase to the repeated use of so disagreeable a substance as road oil. Like many other crude things of life it is tolerated when nothing better is known or nothing better can be afforded. We find it much cheaper to buy the bitumen from a large manufacturer, mixed in proportion as desired, than to do our own mixing, as we only use a small quantity at one place. Cities that use large quantities will find it cheaper to buy the material in a crude state and mix with a machine or by hand in a large vessel made for the purpose. No skill is required to mix bitumen, only one should be sure and get the proper amounts of tar, asphalt and oil.

I will say in conclusion that we almost invariably use a tandem roller of not over ten tons. We like it better than the Springfield roller, as the ground covered by the tandem is much greater than the Springfield—therefore you can roll fresh bitumen much quicker and complete the road before it has time to harden—leaving a smooth surface and no marks. After we complete a driveway we do not allow any vehicles of any kind on it for from eighteen to twenty-four hours. This gives it ample time to harden so the wheels will not make ruts in it, thereby spoiling the surface of the road.

Corn On the Cob.

By Arthur D. Pratt, in Puck.

When Summer rolls round with her pageant of beauty,

A riot of color, a world-wide parade, Away with dull care! Who would sing of stern duty

When Nature in sweetness and light is arrayed?

The corn fields are rustling, a message foretelling

Of joys soon to be, for ere long we shall rob The stalks of their harvest; my bosom is swelling

In anticipation of corn on the cob.

Don't lead me to one of those fashionable show-rooms,

The home of the tip and the festive dress suit;

'Way down on the farm we have lots of elbow room

To take a firm grip on the succulent fruit.

Despising those symptoms of pure affectation

Precariously stuck in each end of the cob.

Dame Nature's equipped me for this delectation—

With two sturdy lunch-hooks; I'm here on the job.

Please pass me the salt and the pepper, the butter,

The cool, smiling butter from dairy's recess;

Both corn and emotion so fill me I utter

These words 'neath a strong gustatorial stress.

And, though a mouth-organ performer resembling,

I'm careless of comment, regardless of jeers.

With corn on the cob there's no chance for dissembling—

Come, pass me another, I'll muss up my ears!

Ah, blest be the man whose strong molars discovered

This food of the Gods for man here below!

The store of delight for us all he uncovered

When husked from the sheaf were the kernels of snow.

The platter's piled high with ears fragrant and steaming,

The very aroma arouses a throb.

Come, boys, shed your coats, this is no time for dreaming,

We're here to do business with corn on the cob!

I sometimes think that never blows so red

The rose as where some buried Caesar bled;

That every hyacinth the garden wears

—Omar Khayyam.

GREAT OVERSUPPLY OF STOCK.

The market is still in a very unsatisfactory condition with a great oversupply of all kinds of flowers. Carnations are arriving in much larger quantities and the receipts of chrysanthemums are also much greater. Some fine Golden Glow and Smith's Advance are obtainable and at very reasonable prices. Orchids are a trifle more plentiful and more gardenias are also seen. American Beauties are also in large supply and roses in all the leading varieties are being sold at very low prices. Short stem roses are a glut and the retailer who has any funeral work at present is indeed fortunate for he can have the pick of the stock at practically his own price. Killarney, White Killarney, Richmond, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Radiance, Prince De Bulgarie, Lady Hillingdon and Melody are in fine condition and a shipment of Brides this week also showed up very good. Gladioli are a drug on the market and asters are so plentiful that a frost at present would be welcome. The general opinion of the wholesale men is that the aster is a "dead one" and ought to be discarded. It seems that every farmer or suburbanite who has a lot is growing asters and consequently consigning them to this market, crowding out the grower who has glass and is supplying the dealer with stock all through the year. The practice ought to be discouraged, for the grower is entitled to some consideration and ought to be given the preference. Dahlias and lilies are also arriving in quantities and lily of the valley is equal to the demand. Greens of all kinds are plentiful and some fine wild smilax is now arriving. The warm weather of the past week affected the market considerably, and the temperature on September 1 reached 95 degrees, the highest in history for so late in season. The severe rainstorm of the day following helped conditions a great deal, and the weather is now much cooler and the market a little firmer. Greens are having a very good call and a shortage in asparagus is reported.

NOTES.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are showing a fine line of all kinds of seasonable stock, particularly gladioli and report business as good as can be expected with the present market condition. W. E. Lynch is now quite at home at this establishment and is pleased with his new surroundings.

The Northwestern Floral Co. made its first shipment of carnations to Kyle & Foerster on August 31. James Prenicka says that his firm is shipping a large number of field grown carnation plants and that the receipts in their department are far ahead of last fall.

Thos. Fogarty and Miss H. V. Tonner will be married at St. Mary's Church next Wednesday, September 11. The happy young couple will spend their honeymoon in Canada and if time permits will visit Mr. Fogarty's native home in the Emerald Isle. Dwight L. Harris says that the Pulverized Manure Co. had a corking good August and that his firm did a very good business at the S. A. F. convention.

The board of directors of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association held a meeting at the association store on Wednesday, September 4.

Willie Sporos, of the Madison Floral Co., has returned from Terre Haute, Ind., where his friend George (Knockout) Brown fought Skelly on Labor Day.

A. T. Pyfer says that the Chicago Carnation Co. is having a good call for field grown carnation plants and Lewis P. Lord, with the Lord Plant Box Co., of Minneapolis, Minn., left this week for Pittsburg on business. He has been demonstrating his new idea cut flower box to the local trade and succeeded in booking several large orders. The new box solves the problem of a practical folding wooden box for growers who send or carry their cut flowers any great distance. The chief advantage of the box is that it folds down into less than one-third its size, saving two-thirds the space in storage and one-half the return charges when empties go by express. Another good feature is that the box requires no nails, for the cover locks automatically.

Henry Kruchten and Miss Rose Parkinson were married last Wednesday, August 4, at the home of his brother, John Kruchten, Rev. Lederer officiating. Mr. Kruchten is very popular with the local trade and his many friends wish him a safe journey on the sea of matrimony. The happy young couple will make their home in the future at 2208 Wilson avenue.

The Des Plaines Floral Co., is nearly through planting and the plants that are already in the houses look very promising and some Golden Glow chrysanthemums are ready to be cut. The proprietors say that demand for field grown carnation plants is very good and that the call for White Enchantress is unusually heavy.

Bassett & Washburn are particularly strong in all kinds of reasonable cut flowers and C. L. Washburn says that his firm is cutting on an average of 2,500 American Beauty roses every day. This firm is filling many orders for Golden Glow and Smith's Advance chrysanthemums.

Poehlmann Bros Co. is showing some very fine orchids, particularly oncidiums and white dendrobiums. The cut of American Beauty and other roses is very large and some choice White Killarney, Killarney, Richmond, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Prince de Bulgarie and Lady Hillingdon are noted.

Louis Wittbold says that trade is improving considerably and that his firm is receiving a large number of orders for decorative plants. The Geo. Wittbold Co. is now cutting some very good pink roses at its Edgebrook range and has finished planting its poinsettias.

Peter Reinberg is still cutting heavily in American Beauty roses and the quality of the stock in general is very fine. Tim Matchen says that trade is a trifle better and that the shipping especially shows a marked increase.

Wietor Bros. shipments of roses are now very large and choice stock in all the leading varieties is arriving. The demand for field grown carnation plants is very large and the large surplus is steadily disappearing.

J. A. Budlong is featuring a fine grade of American Beauty roses and Golden Glow and Smith's Advance chrysanthemums. The supply of stock in general is unusually large and of very good quality.

The Gardeners and Florists' Union No. 10615 cordially invite the trade to attend a basket picnic at Ebert's Grove, 6668 Ridge boulevard, Sunday, September 15 at 2 p. m. Admission 25 cents.

H. Van Gelder says that the shipping trade at Percy Jones' store is picking up considerably and that his firm's new catalog is now ready for mailing.

F. O. Franzen, the Summerdale avenue florist, is enjoying both a good retail and wholesale trade and is at present busy filling orders for fall bulbs.

Wm. Lorman is feeling fine since his recent illness and is again in charge of the shipping department at the A. L. Randall Co.'s store.

The next meeting of the Florists' Club will be held at the Union Restaurant, West Randolph street, Thursday, September 5.

Robt. Northam, George Reinberg's popular storeman, says that the last week was the quietest one he has ever experienced.

H. H. Wilkerson, H. Wittbold's efficient manager, has things running in fine shape and the store very handsomely decorated.

John Kruchten says that his growers' gardenia crops are in fine condition and that he will soon have large daily shipments.

Erne & Klingel are supplying their customers with a fine grade of wild smilax, the first shipment arriving on August 29.

HOT WEATHER AND DULL TRADE.

Continued warm and oppressive weather has been with us all week and trade has suffered considerably. There was lots of stock on the market and much of it was sold cheap in order to unload, but at that it was far from cleaning up. The coming week schools and theatres open, and it is to be hoped that with cooler weather, things will pick up. The West-end stores are all ready for business, after painting and refitting their stores. Carnations are very poor, showing the effects of the heat. American Beauty roses have been plentiful and are selling at a low price.

NOTES.

Albert J. Windler, president, Frank Windler, vice-president and treasurer, and A. W. Gumz, secretary, will form the Windler Wholesale Floral Co. and will open up at 1310 Pine street on or about September 16 or 17. They solicit consignments of cut flowers and will keep a full line of supplies and wire work. Albert J. Windler, although not in the flower business, has had good business knowledge, having been manager at a large wholesale concern. Frank Windler, a young man well known and liked by the trade, has had experience in all three branches of the trade as grower, retailer and wholesaler, having got his wholesale experience with the Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. Albert Gumz has faithfully worked for Geo. H. Angermueller for over six years and has a thorough knowledge of the wholesale business. The storeroom, which is one door east of C. A. Kuehn's establishment, is very roomy and light. They have installed a large icebox. The young men will have the best wishes of the florists in general.

F. H. Weber is home again and his store is repainted. David Geddes attended to everything during the boss's absence at the convention.

C. A. Kuehn has introduced his son Charlie to his patrons. He is a chip off the old block and will attend strictly to his father's interests.

BETTER BEAUTIES

than those we are offering are not obtainable; so why not save trouble and get the best by placing your orders with us right at the start? Our other stock is of exceptionally fine quality, and we have plenty of the best grade to go around.

While we have been sweltering here Alex Siegel has been sitting in his cottage at Mackinaw, Mich., enjoying the cool weather.

Arthur J. Myer, with C. A. Kuehn, reports trade as dull. He says there is good demand for good stock, however.

The Kelley Floral Co. has repainted its store. This firm has a large trade in goldfish and a big cut flower trade.

Julius Schaeffer, with the Ayres Floral Co., is preparing for the latest novelties in fall trade.

A. Elberfield, of the Alpha Floral Co., of Kansas City, was in town the other day.

The Allenwood Greenhouses, which comprise about 25,000 square feet of glass, are now closed. Since the death of A. T. Linn, which occurred last June, his sons have given up the business. It is not definitely stated what will be done with the range.

I. V. Kinder has recently erected about 12,000 square feet of glass near town and will engage in plant growing.

Joseph Hanky has a good retail store and a good business. He also has considerable glass.

Wm. R. McKean, though engaged in other business, continues to grow considerable stock.

WEEK CLOSES SATISFACTORILY.

The closing week of August was fairly satisfactory. The volume of business was large and the prices, considering the general market conditions, good. The shipping trade continues strong. Good white asters again ran short last week. The supply was large but scarcely adequate. It appears that the buyers want that flower above all else. In the other colors only the best cleaned up properly and they had to be good and clean throughout to do that. The other colors sold at lower prices than the white. In roses the American Beauty supply continues large and good. They sell up nicely and it is the exception rather than the rule to have to hold any quantity over until the next day's business. Other roses are in large supply. The good ones sell well at fair prices while most of the short ones hardly sell at all. Gladioli are still in an over-supply. Only the fair light colors sell well. Other fancy stock sells after a fashion while the smaller stuff has really no market worth mentioning. The Gigantium lilies are in a moderate supply and the call for them just uses it up. The same is true of speciosum and rubrum. A few valley are offered.

NOTES.

An important and interesting meeting of the Florists' Society will be held Monday evening, September 9, at the club rooms. The subject of geraniums, their adaptability and price will come up for discussion.

The formal opening of the Hill-Heller store in this city took place the early part of this week. The store-room has been fixed up in a very attractive style that shows the good taste of the management.

Visitors: Alpha Elberfield and party, Kansas City, Mo., and Milton Alexander.

The Hyde Park Rose Co. held its annual meeting of stockholders on Saturday. H.

TRADE CONTINUES TO IMPROVE.

Cut flower sales still continue to show a decided increase over those of last week. Stock on the average is better than ever after the heavy rains. Dahlias are arriving in increased supply and in very good condition. Asters and gladioli remain about the same as to quantity, but the quality has improved considerably. Water lilies are now a thing of the past. Easter lilies have had an excellent call, stock cleaning up daily. A few short stemmed carnations (outdoor stock) are arriving. American Beauties are plentiful, and stock was never better. The many duplicate orders received prove they have given satisfaction everywhere. White roses have been short of the demand which has been heavy on that particular color. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

The many friends of John Leuschner extend their sympathy in his bereavement. Mrs. Leuschner died Wednesday, August 27, after undergoing an operation for a tumor. She was buried Saturday, August 31, the services being at the home in Lakewood. C. F. B.

STONINGTON, CONN.—J. Henry Schaffer is building an addition to his greenhouses.

WEST CHESTER, PA.—The summer meeting of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society was held here August 27 in connection with a meeting of the Fruit Growers' Association of Chester County.

JULY AND AUGUST QUIET.

July and August have been two of the quietest summer months we have ever had as far as business goes, but the outlook for the coming season, is excellent. With our mills all working and no material increase in building greenhouses this summer this market should be as it was before the recent panic. The late crop of asters are here in such large quantities that not more than one-half of them can be sold. The stock is very fine. The same thing can be said about gladioli. They are unusually fine but move slowly. Lilies are also quite plentiful with a fair demand.

NOTES.

Carrie Jordan and Annie Garriety, who conduct stands in the Pittsburg market, have returned from their outing at Atlantic City. While they were away the city built new and more modern stands, and they now have very fine and convenient quarters.

Mrs. E. A. Williams is cutting a very fine crop of asters in all colors. So far she has not been bothered by the aster bug which has destroyed the most of the local growers.

W. A. Clark has returned to Chautauqua Lake to spend a few days there before the season closes.

Mrs. J. Elicker, Homestead, Pa., is putting up more glass for growing holiday plants for her trade.

J. L. Geisey has returned from Pittsburg's favorite vacation point, Atlantic City, N. J.

The A. W. Smith Co. receives a wagon load of outdoor flowers daily from Canfield, Ohio.

R. J. Daschbach is spending his vacation in the wheat growing section of Iowa.

E. F. McCallum is spending a couple of weeks at Ocean City. E. J. M.

Pittsburg Notes.

Henry Menschke of Castle Shannon, is now frequently seen in this city. Since August 1 he has been connected with the recently organized Ludwig Floral Co. as treasurer. A recent visit to his Castle Shannon range showed everything to be in fine condition. He has erected this season several new houses with an aggregate glass area of 25,000 square feet which brings his total of glass up to 80,000 square feet. His 35,000 carnation plants are particularly fine. They were planted directly from pots to the beds in June and made exceptionally sturdy growth. A unique feature of his place is his disposal of the furnace smoke. His range is located on a hillside and formerly the smoke and soot settled back on the glass. After studying the situation he had a trench dug running 450 feet up the hill. Two conduits of concrete were constructed from the furnaces the entire distance and the smoke now escapes into an open pit.

The twenty-fourth annual exposition of the Western Pennsylvania Exposition Society opened in the exposition building on the "Point," on the evening of August 28 and will continue to October 19. Aside from his great steel and iron industries, it is doubtful if "Father Pitt" is as proud of any of his other possessions as the exposition and old Fort Pitt, and both are on the "Point." The opening night was very rainy but there was a very fair attendance. While there were no formal exhibits by florists the exposition has made some business for several firms in the way of decorating with palms, ferns and other foliage plants. The exhibits of the products of the children's garden under the auspices of the Pittsburg Playground Association were also an interesting feature.

Much space is occupied by the dealers in various household necessities and devices. There is something to interest everybody as there are several amusement sections. The San Francisco Exposition Tour Co. occupies space and is active in creating interest in the Panama Exposition of 1915.

Samuel McClements of Randolph & McClements is pushing the work of piping and fitting up the new conservatories in connection with their new store and everything will soon be in fine shape. The new show room is already filled with a great variety of foliage plants and is indeed a show as viewed from Penn avenue.

At their Canonsburg range, J. B. Murdock & Co. now have a great stock of carnations (of which they make a specialty) coming on. At their city store business is becoming quite active and Howard Carney, who is in Chicago, expects a good season. They are now receiving good stock of the early chrysanthemums.

The A. W. Smith Co.'s store in the Keenan building, always attractive, has been even more so for the past week, with thousands of gladioli, and tritomas artistically arranged in the show window and other available places. They have a fine display of pot plants, the most noticeable being the hydrangeas.

The monthly meetings of the Florists' Club will be resumed on the night of September 3 at the Fort Pitt Hotel. Gladioli will be the evening topic and a large display of these flowers is expected. President Ludwig and others will give their impressions of the Chicago convention.

Fred Burki drops in about once a week from his home at the Bakers-town range of the Pittsburg Cut Flower Co. and feels the pulse of trade in the wholesale line. This company continues to put on the market a great stock of roses.

Wm. C. Mohr, a young man well and favorably known in the north side trade, has secured a position with the H. D. Mann Co., of Syracuse, N. Y. and will enter on his duties September 15.

Many of the palms and other foliage plants used in decorations of the exposition building are from the conservatories of Mrs. E. A. Williams, who is a member of the exposition society.

The Foley Mfg. Co., of Chicago, has closed a contract with the Indiana Floral Co., of Indiana, Pa., for two new houses 34x200 feet each. The construction is already under way.

E. J. Fancourt of Philadelphia was a visitor on August 31. A. F. F.

Connecticut Horticultural Society.

Active fall work began auspiciously August 23, when business meetings were resumed after the summer respite. All efforts this autumn are to be concentrated upon the dahlia exhibition at Unity Hall, Hartford, September 19-20. For a number of years this society has also given a chrysanthemum exhibition in November, but will, this season, confine itself to one show. The state fund of nearly $200 has, by legislative enactment, been reduced a half, much to the discomfiture of this and other allied societies.

A large accession of new members this fall and winter is expected, four having been added at the last meeting as follows: D. J. Flynn and J. Thomas Brydon, Hartford, and J. Ernest Andrew and Harry W. Andrew, Bristol. Special prizes have been liberally offered for the dahlia exhibition, among which are the following:

By H. L. Metcalfe, Hartford, $2 for largest dahlia bloom; first prize, $1.25; second prize, 75c.

By a member (anonymous), $5 for best 6 vases of gladiolus, 6 blooms each, distinct varieties; first prize, $3; second prize, $2.

By Thomas J. Grey Company, Boston, $5 for best collection of dahlia blooms, named varieties, one bloom each; first prize, $3; second prize, $2.

By C. H. Sierman, Hartford, $10 for best exhibit of dahlias in pots not exceeding 10 inches in diameter; first prize, $6; second prize, $4.

By the Joseph Breck & Sons' Corporation, Boston, $10 for the best collection of asters, 50 blooms of each variety; first prize, $6; second prize, $4.

By Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, silver cup for collective exhibit of greatest merit. This prize is intended for the individual having the best all-around exhibit, quality and quantity both considered.

By Arthur T. Boddington, New York, $25 for the best collection of vegetables, to be judged by the scale of points in use by the Lenox Horticultural Society; first prize, $12; second prize, $8; third prize, $5.

Vice President J. Alfred Weber, of Hartford, again had charge of the immense floricultural exhibit at the Connecticut fair, at Charter Oak Park, which opened on Labor Day, with Ex-president Roosevelt as one of the attractions. The society has just suffered the loss of a valued and honored life member, in the sudden decease of Stephen Delbar, of Hartford, who dropped dead on Monday, August 26, after a long and useful life. He was a lover of horticulture, and a member of the former organizations out of which the present society evolved. GEORGE W. SMITH, Sec'y.

Washington.

The condition of the market here since congress adjourned is the worst it has been all summer. Stock of all kinds is in over supply.

NOTES.

The auto parade of September 2 called for quite a little extra work for some of the downtown florists. Gude Bros. carried off first prize with a beautiful decorated car of American Beauties and also had the good luck to decorate another prize winner.

Z. D. Blackstone had the decoration of the Barker truck. It had a colonial house with window boxes of purple asters and clematis. He also decorated the Potomac electric car with red dahlias and clematis.

Geo. Shaffer had his delivery car entered and it was very handsomely decorated with asters and green stuff. He also had a very neat car in the old Dutch market style.

William Gude will defend the Dorrance challenge trophy at the National Flower Show in New York, next April. If he wins again, the cup becomes his permanent property.

Walter Hawley of Gude Bros. has returned from his vacation after spending two weeks at his home in New York.

Joe Merritt of Roslyn, Va., is sending in some very fine dahlias. G. C. D.

FISHKILL, N. Y.—Benjamin Hammond, who attended the Chicago convention of the S. A. F., has a very interesting article on the condition of things between the metropolis of the lake and the east in a recent issue of the Fishkill Standard.

Oklahoma, City.

The market for truck-growers which was started here several weeks ago has proved such a benefit to both growers and consumers that another market has been planned for the east side of the city. It will open three days a week, beginning September 2.

Trade is not very brisk. There is a little something doing every day but it is only a little. Local grown outdoor flowers are about over and a very good grade of white and pink asters are coming in from points farther north.

J. F. Hickey, manager of the Barteldes Seed Co., went to Lawrence, Kan., the firm's headquarters, August 31.

VERY LITTLE DOING.

It has been dull before, but there were reasons, such as the weather, the season, etc. Last week, however, was the limit. There was very little doing, not enough as one dealer puts it, to pay for the ice. This week trade is a trifle better—just a shade more demand. There is an abundance of stock coming in, although many growers are cutting lightly. Should a demand of any size develop, there is no question of getting stock enough to meet it. New crop American Beauties are very good for the season and all other rose stock is improving. My Maryland is now seen with stems from 24 to 30 inches in length. Quite a number of the new roses will be seen on the market the coming season, Lady Hillingdon, Mrs. Taft, Mrs. Ward and Sunburst, having been liberally planted. Asters dominate the market. They constitute two-thirds of the bulk of the stock. Many are not worth the shipping charges, but among the higher grades are some well grown flowers that bring fairly good prices. Gladioli are still very plentiful, but prices are low. Easter lilies and valley are more than equal to the demand. Cattleyas are the really scarce flower, they being sent in only on order.

CLUB MEETINGS.

The September meeting of the club was most interesting. An important feature was an address by President-elect Farquhar, who spoke of the honor conferred on him and the responsibilities placed on his shoulders. The society was greater in every way than it had ever been before. Greater in membership and greater in the work to be accomplished. The coming year would see the great National Flower Show in New York and the convention later in Minneapolis. He predicted a wonderful exhibition in New York and that Philadelphia would share largely in the honors. David Rust at his suggestion is getting up a committee composed of the foremost men in the business to work up enthusiasm in this city so that all will be properly arranged when the time comes. Referring to the S. A. F., Mr. Farquhar thought that the office of secretary was one of the most important and that the term of office, whether by appointment made by the executive committee or by election by the society, should be extended to three, or possibly five, years. It takes this officer one year to get acquainted with his duties, said the speaker, and perhaps two, then he becomes useful and can conduct the affairs of the society much better than a green man. Adolph Farenwald read a paper on his trip abroad and visit to the Great International Exhibition. This was very instructive and entertaining. The members of the club not present missed a great treat. Joseph Heacock, I Rosnosky and Robert Kift gave accounts of their visit to the Chicago exhibition. President Thilow also spoke of the work of the publicity committee of the florists' clubs at the convention. A fine exhibition of dahlias was made by the Leo Niessen Co. They were from the Peacock Dahlia Farms at Williamstown, N. J.

NOTES.

The Robert Craig Co. is also much pleased with its sales at Chicago, over 5,000 crotons and many other plants being sold at that time. The new houses at Norwood are nearly all finished, four of them being filled with stock. One is given over entirely to poinsettias which are coming on splendidly. A table of poinsettia cuttings, 11,000 in all, in which there was not a loss, all being rooted, is one of the proud records of the place.

Echoes of the convention are still heard. John Ruppert, of the Dreer force, reports that they have been packing convention orders for the past ten days. He says they did more business in Chicago than at any other convention, except the one held here. A waste paper press installed here converts waste paper into a by-product. Formerly this rubbish was burned with considerable trouble. Now the baled material is readily sold, bringing in quite a sum in the course of a season.

The Dreer Co. exhibited a novelty in its Chestnut street store window last Monday, it being a quart of luscious strawberries, a new late fruiting variety called Americus. The berries are large and of fine flavor. It is said to be as prolific as the earlier June sorts. There is also on exhibition about fifty varieties of hardy phlox which attract considerable attention.

Charles H. Campbell has purchased property at 3532 Germantown avenue and will erect a greenhouse in which to carry on the business until the permanent store at the old place, 3601 Germantown avenue is erected. Three houses, 16x150 feet, with cement sides and iron gutters, have just been completed at the country place at Penllyn, Pa.

H. Bayersdorfer, who had the largest display ever made at an S. A. F. convention, says his firm also broke the record with the business done. Mr. Bayersdorfer says that without doubt this winter will be the greatest season ever experienced in the flower trade.

The M. Rice Co. is greatly elated over their reception at the convention. B. Eschner thinks that there is an era of prosperity coming, judging from the orders from visiting florists from all parts of the country.

W. K. Harris also showed good judgment by adding to his service a fine three-ton delivery automobile. It will carry as much as their largest wagon and do three times the work of that now ancient vehicle.

Berger Bros. are handling some very desirable carnation plants, strong vigorous stock of the best varieties. Asters, Easter lilies and Killarney roses are leaders this week too.

The Leo Niessen Co. is adding an iron platform to connect the elevator service with the supply department.

Edward Reid and family are looking over their ranch in North Dakota. He is expected in this city September 20.

George Craig now runs a fine Auto-car in his delivery service. It will no doubt be a great trade booster. K.

Boston.

MARKET IMPROVING.

The market conditions have improved the last part of the week although trade is not especially brisk. Still there was a general feeling that conditions are better. In roses the summer varieties hold the center of the stage. Chrysanthemums (Golden Glow) are good but rather soft owing to the wet weather. With cooler weather we expect an improvement. Smith's Advance is going to be largely grown in this section. One grower has 15,000 plants. Carnations, owing to the shortness of the stems, are not in great demand. With the passing of Labor Day, the influx of vacationists home again, the opening of the schools and colleges, and with the aster soon over, we may expect trade to fall into its normal channels.

NOTES.

The greenhouse building here has been all that the builders desired. The Lord & Burnham house, built for Wm. Nicholson, Framingham, is a beautiful piece of workmanship. The King houses that have been built here have been constructed entirely of California redwood.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Boston Flower Exchange is to be held Saturday evening, September 7. Action will be taken on a proposal to move from the present location to Winthrop Square.

Means and Thatcher have been appointed managers for the Garland Construction Co. of Chicago. Here is a western firm reaching out for business in the East.

The Morehead steam traps agent reports that business in his line is all that he could wish. The latest to install one is Robert Montgomery of Natick.

The auction of stalls in both markets was held Saturday. The direct-ors of both markets were well pleased with results. MAC.

Monongahela, Pa.

The J. Shelby Crall Co. has recently been replacing some old houses with new ones and increasing its glass area. This firm has bought out E. A. Lute's interest at Monessen and has just opened a store there. They have also a good store in the business center of Monongahela.

The second annual picnic of the Terre Haute Florist Club occurred August 29. Sixty-eight members and their friends took lunch and went ten miles up the Wabash river to Tecumseh. A stop was made there and all kinds of amusements occupied the time. The party returned at 7:00 p. m. There has been a great deal of funeral work the last two weeks which has helped considerably.

John E. Heini and wife, and Fred G. Heini, wife and daughter met Geo. Heini of Toledo in their autos at the half-way house between Indianapolis and Terre Haute, for dinner, after which the entire party returned to Terre Haute. Geo. Heini will be the guest of his brother for some time.

Fred Heini's new greenhouses are about completed. They are planted to roses, carnations and green stuff.

Henry Graham and wife have gone on a two months' trip to Los Angeles to visit their son and daughter.

9-in.	6 feet		6 00

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubs, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, and painted green. These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established, and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When in Philadelphia Be Sure to Look Us Up

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your convenience, both going and coming. Then you will see our Palms of all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place), and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to our Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

It is reported that a large shipment of Chinese narcissus bulbs has arrived in this country decayed and worthless and have been abandoned to the government by the importers.

CHICAGO.—Prices on the Board of Trade September 4, for grass seed were noted as follows: Timothy, $4 to $5 per 100 pounds.—Vaughan's seed Store reports a good demand for winter top-seeds.

DENVER, COLO.—The Colorado Seed & Nursery Co., 1515 Champa street, was recently incorporated with C. R. Root, president, Wm. F. Horlacher, vice-president, and L. Malone, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Root was 21 years with the Barteldes Seed Co., 14 years as general manager. Mr. Horlacher was nearly 14 years with the same company as florist and horticulturist and Mr. Malone was identified with the Barteldes concern for nine years, four years as manager of the city store.

Chisholm Sales Manager.

Thomas W. Chisholm, who has just completed his first year's work for the Braslan Seed Growers Co., Inc., San Jose, Calif., has been made sales manager of that company. Prior to his association with the Braslan company, Mr. Chisholm was identified, in important capacities, with one of the most prominent eastern seedsmen, latter going west to take up the same work in Southern California. Mr. Chisholm, who is a native of Edinburgh, Scotland, has been close to the seed industry all his life and is thoroughly familiar with every branch of the work. During the past year, since returning from his eastern trip, Mr. Chisholm has had the Sacramento and San Joaquin River growing operations of his company under his care and his promotion to the position of sales manager is largely due to his complete success in this work.

Quarantine Law Hearings.

The Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., has issued a public document on the enforcement of the federal plant quarantine law. In compliance with the law, before quarantine proclamations are issued, public hearings will be given to persons interested who may appear in person or by attorney, or submit their views in writing. Announcement is hereby made that these hearings will be held as follows:

On the white pine blister rust, September 16, 1912.

On the Mediterranean fruit fly, September 18, 1912.

On the potato wart disease, September 20, 1912.

All hearings will be held at the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., at 10 o'clock a. m., on the dates above specified. Photographs illustrating the three dangers above mentioned can be obtained upon application to the Chief of the Division of Publications, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. The full text of the document will be found elsewhere in this issue, page 420.

Warning Against Low Grade Hairy Vetch.

The Secretary of Agriculture has issued a warning to prospective purchasers of hairy vetch seed against certain lots of low grade offered by some wholesalers. The greater part of the hairy vetch seed used in the United States comes from Europe and much of that of recent importation contains only from 15 to 80 per cent of hairy vetch seed, the rest being spring vetch or various wild varieties. The price is higher than ever before and the consequent loss is greater where adulterated seed is bought.

The seeds of hairy vetch are spherical while those of the other varieties are more or less irregular and vary greatly in size. The hairy variety is dull grayish-black in color while the other kinds vary in color also. The seeds which have become crushed are a bright lemon-yellow if of the hairy kind. The department sums up its warning thus:

If the seed is not spherical it is not hairy vetch.

If the seed is not uniformly a grayish-black color with a greenish tinge on fresh seed it is not hairy vetch.

Teneriffe Onion Seed in Texas.

San Antonio, August 28.—Between 300 and 400 members attended the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Southern Texas Truck Growers' Association, held here Wednesday and Thursday of this week. It is not likely that a greater acreage will be encouraged for next year although the seed situation has been solved. Last June a representative was sent to the Teneriffe Islands and while there he succeeded in buying enough yellow seed to fill all of the orders. Crystal wax seed will be scarce. In view of the success met with by the representative it is not thought the acreage next year will be reduced over the season just closed when 11,000 acres were planted in onions. The board of directors have fixed the price of seed at $1.75 per pound. The shipments made by the association for the year were about divided as follows:

Onions—2,437 cars, net to growers 62.17 cents per crate.

Potatoes—487 cars, net to growers 95.95 cents per bushel.

Cabbage—240 cars, net to growers $1.41 per cwt.

Miscellaneous—212 cars.—Packer.

Christmas=Flowering Sweet Peas

WE ARE SUPER-HEADQUARTERS

All true stocks of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas will be scarce this season. Some varieties are a total failure owing to the exceptional season in California this Spring. Our advice to intending planters is to order at once.

Mr. William Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., the great sweet pea specialist sows our seed almost exclusively. Our stocks of Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas have stood the test for years, and we can refer you to the largest growers of this increasingly popular flower, as to the trueness and quality of our seed, earliness of blooming period and strength and habit of plants.

The following varieties are the "best by test" and include Zvolanek's and our own introductions, grown for seed from selected stocks by the leading California grower and specialist in Sweet Peas.

Our output last year was nearly 3,000 lbs. Few kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality, germination and trueness to type.

We Can Make Immediate Delivery of the Following:

BODDINGTON'S EXTRA-EARLY CHRISTMAS WHITE SNOWBIRD. An exceptionally early Sweet Pea for indoor flowering—will bloom six weeks after sowing. Color clear white, upon long stems; habit fairly dwarf and of exceptionally free-flowering qualities. Without doubt the finest early white for indoor planting. We sell one grower in Pennsylvania 35 lbs. of this variety every year; name on application. Oz. 25 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. 75 cts., $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$1.25, lb. \$2.00.

BODDINGTON'S CHRISTMAS PINK. This is the earliest and most profitable and useful Sweet Pea in cultivation, as by sowing the seed under glass in latter part of August, flowers can be cut from Thanksgiving on during the Winter months. Oz. 15 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. 50 cts., $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. 85 cts., lb. \$1.50.

BODDINGTON'S CHRISTMAS WHITE. A companion to our Christmas Pink. Just as free and profuse a bloomer. Oz. 15 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. 50 cts., $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. 85 cts., lb. \$1.50.

ANGELINO. Self pink; new variety. Oz. 50 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. \$1.50, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$2.75, lb. \$4.50.

CANARY. Similar to the above, but flowers of an exceptionally good yellow. Oz. 35 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. \$1.00, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$1.75, lb. \$3.00.

CHRISTMAS METEOR. Scarlet; fine open red flower. Oz. 35 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. \$1.00, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$1.50, lb. \$2.50.

Outdoor Mulching.

Mulching is a practice not used as much out-doors as it should be. The growers under glass know full well its value; in fact, they could not produce the crops they do without it. Combined with mechanical watering, the mulching of coarse crops with manure produces not only quantity but also quality. Such crops as celery, cauliflower, cabbage, lima beans, egg plants, mangos and tomatoes are greatly benefited by using fresh horse manure between the rows. We add plant food, conserve moisture and improve the mechanical condition of the soil at the same time. Generally after the middle of July our team work breaks down and we immediately start drawing manure for mulching. This is wheeled into the rows by means of wheelbarrows and spread at once. It is used as a scant covering between some crops, to the depth of 4 inches, among celery; while for late seeding of spinach we apply with a manure spreader right after sowing the seed. This is the surest and safest method of wintering spinach, as the plants come up between the mulch and are protected from heaving and freezing. Another point is it relieves the procuring of the year's supply of manure. The work is spread out over a longer period. It is also the most economical in some respects, as money spent this way is not tied up for a year, the returns coming quickly. We have practiced this method for a number of years and like it better each season.

American Association of Nurserymen.

Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa., President; J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore., Vice-President; John Hall, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y. Thirty-eighth annual convention to be held at Portland, Ore., June, 1913.

ACCORDING to a report of the International Apple Shippers' Association Idaho's apple crop this year will be 127 per cent larger than last.

THE report of the thirty-second annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, held at Boston, Mass., June 12-14, has just come from the press. A copy may be had of John Hall, secretary, 204 Granite Building, Rochester, N. Y.

Quarantine Law Hearings.

The Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., has issued a public document on the enforcement of the federal plant quarantine law. In compliance with the law, before quarantine proclamations are issued, public hearings will be given to persons interested who may appear in person or by attorney, or submit their views in writing. Announcement is hereby made that these hearings will be held as follows:

On the white pine blister rust, September 16, 1912.

On the Mediterranean fruit fly, September 18, 1912.

On the potato wart disease, September 20, 1912.

All hearings will be held at the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., at 10 o'clock a. m., on the dates above specified. Photographs illustrating the three dangers above mentioned can be obtained upon application to the Chief of the Division of Publications, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. The full text of the document will be found elsewhere in this issue, page 420.

Cork.

As most people know, cork is the outer bark of an oak. This tree, known to the botanists as Quercus suber, is an evergreen, native to the Mediterranean region, and is cultivated in France, Spain, Portugal, Italy, Morocco, Tunis and Algiers. If carefully done, removing the bark does not injure the tree, and a new supply may be obtained from the same specimen after a few years. We are so familiar with the use of cork for the stoppers of bottles that we seldom realize its manifold other uses, though its connection with bottles dates back only about five hundred years. We so commonly speak of the stopper of a bottle as a cork that we see no incongruity in the expression "a rubber cork." Just as our word for stopper has been derived from the word cork, so cork itself has probably been derived from the Spanish corcho, which in turn is derived from the Latin cortex meaning rind. Some authors, however, would derive cork from Quercus, the generic name of all oaks. Cork is present in the bark of all trees, though in quantities too small to make it useful in the many ways in which cork from the cork oak is employed. The cork-barked elm, the sweet gum and a few others have strongly developed cork. —The American Botanist.

FACTS ABOUT "DIRECT PRESSURE" WATER SUPPLY SYSTEMS

If you are through experimenting with inferior and unreliable contrivances for handling the water supply question and your needs now demand that the problem be solved, then Standard Systems demand your attention.

The very nature of the water supply problem demands reliability as first consideration in purchasing a pumping engine. Manufacturers, who have spent less time than we in studying this problem, are naturally unable to cope with it, as our many years experience has taught us to do. We are pioneers in this line and when you install a you are through experimenting. We have done that for you.

In that new Catalog No. 12, we recently had published, all types of "Standard" gas, gasoline and electric pumps are described and illustrated in a most complete way. Interesting facts and figures together with unusual illustrations make this book valuable to you. You will find twelve half page illustrations which explain greenhouse systems.

There is not another catalog in the greenhouse field that touches so clearly on the subject. A copy should be in your hands.

WHAT THE USERS SAY

—ABOUT—

KROESCHELL BOILERS

Cast Iron Boiler Cracked in Two Years.

We have a No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler. It takes care of 7000 sq. ft. of glass; it would take care of twice that amount.

I first had a new cast iron boiler which lasted two years, when it cracked to pieces. The second was a second-hand boiler.

I consider your boiler the best paying investment I ever made.

You can refer anyone to us.

MARYSVILLE FLORAL CO., Marysville, Ohio.

Cast Iron Cannot Be Compared with Kroeschell.

We bought a No. 2 Boiler in 1904. It takes care of 5000 sq. ft. of glass, and we could add 2000 more. We are very well satisfied. We used a cast iron boiler before we had yours. It cannot be compared with the Kroeschell Boiler. Your boiler has certainly a great capacity for heating water.

HALL & ROBINSON, Montreal, Canada.

Kroeschell Better than Cast Iron.

I bought a No. 6 boiler in 1903. It has now 10,000 sq. ft. of glass, and we could add 3300 more. This is ahead of five or six cast iron boilers which I have used. I saved $50 per season on the coal bill.

M. C. WARD, Quincy, Mass.

I bought a No. 4 boiler in 1902. Has 7000 sq. ft. of glass; could add 200 more. It is perfectly satisfactory. Would keep only Kroeschell Boiler. Would not have a cast iron boiler for a gift.

GEO. ENGEL, Xenia, Ohio.

Mr. Engel has increased his Plant and ordered another No. 4 Kroeschell.

FERTILENE

Especially prepared for the production of lusty CHRYSANTHEMUM BLOOMS.

THE ADVANTAGES of Fertylene over other manure, are: It is clean, has no offensive odor, is soluble and thus easily prepared; is immediate and permanent in its effect, so highly concentrated that it is the cheapest, saves time and labor and gives accurate results. 1-oz. is sufficient for ten gallons. Ten pounds, $3.00; twenty-five pounds, $6.00; fifty pounds, $10.00. Sample packets of one-half pound mailed for 30c. Sample packets of one-pound mailed for 50c.

We know it will do that, for we have tried it. This gutter lends itself to an outside wall, as an eave, most admirably.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Peonies.

Now is the best time to move or divide peony roots. Plants that have been in one location for a number of years will grow too thick and will not produce either so many or so good flowers as younger plants, although the peony does not produce the best quality flowers the year after transplanting. The ground in which peonies are to be planted should be well enriched and deeply spaded in preparing it for the young plants. In digging the plants, dig all around them and then carefully insert the spade underneath and lift the plant, taking pains that the large roots are not broken. For these pieces of root if left in the soil sometimes start new growths and if other varieties are later planted in the ground, cause a mixture. The roots can be cut up into quite small pieces, but it is better to leave three strong eyes to each piece and not divide into too small plants. Set the plant good and deep and firm and if the ground is dry, give it a good watering.

Decorative Plants.

The return of the customers from their country and seaside summer homes will create an immediate demand for palms, ferns and other decorative stock and the retailer or grower who has not already prepared himself should do so at once. Plants can be purchased at this time and shipped safely and in order to save expense they should be purchased at once before colder weather sets in, for they can be transported by freight now and after freezing weather it will be necessary that they be forwarded by express and the difference in the charges of these two methods is considerable, adding materially to the cost of the plant shipped by express. A fine assortment of palms is a necessity at this season and should be obtained at once in the saleable sizes as befits the trade. Kentias and arecas from two to four feet high can be bought and are the sizes more in demand than either smaller or larger sizes. Phoenix Roebellenii is a very decorative palm and in the smaller sizes finds a good sale, but the larger sizes are still quite expensive and can be handled only by the high-class trade. Ferns of the nephrolepis family and dracaenas will be in demand, in fact a full line of good decorative stock is a necessity at this time in any up-to-date establishment having a retail trade. The stock on hand should now be in active growth and should not receive any check. It is well to be prepared to give these plants a little fire heat as soon as the nights become so cool that the temperature in the houses drops much below 60 degrees.

Tulips and Narcissi.

The tulip and narcissus bulbs should be placed in the pans and boxes as soon as possible after their receipt. It does them no good to leave them lying around, and it is far better to get them in the soil as early as possible. Much of the trouble in blooming these bulbs is laid to the tardy treatment of the growers by the bulb merchants of Holland, and in case of failure they are quick to use this as an argument as the cause. If the bulbs are planted early they will at once start to make roots and the forcing of them is then a comparatively easy matter. Have the flats all ready, as has been written of Paper White narcissus of convenient size. Any old rose or carnation soil is good enough, but if it binds too closely, mix in a generous quantity of sand. Set the bulbs close together and pack the soil firmly around them. Have a place prepared outside and set the flats on strips of boards and water thoroughly. It is not advisable to depend upon a rain, but unless the fall is exceedingly dry they will not need further watering. Cover the pots and boxes with about three inches of soil, over which throw some old straw or litter to prevent too rapid evaporation. Here they can remain until freezing weather sets in, when if there is a dark, cold cellar, those that are to be forced during the winter can be moved into these quarters, while those that are to be bloomed in the spring can be more heavily covered and be easily handled after the warmer days of spring arrive. If there is no suitable cellar they can be wintered outside, but it would be better to build a frame around them and cover with shutters for it is a very disagreeable job shoveling off the snow and frozen covering during the cold winter days. Where they are to remain outside it is better to plan about how many are to be brought in each week, and place them together so that it will not be necessary to open up too many places, but have the different varieties that are to be taken out successively placed after each other and together, and much of the hard, cold work can be dispensed with.

Geraniums.

All the cuttings that can be taken should be secured now, for a frost that will cut everything down may soon be expected in the northern part of the country at least. In making the cutting all the large leaves should be removed, leaving only the smaller leaves and the top. The most economical way to propagate these fall cuttings is to insert the cuttings in 2½-inch pots filled with sifted soil, into which a liberal amount of sand has been mixed. After the cuttings have been placed in the pot they should be given a good watering and placed on shelves preferably near the glass, and shaded with papers for a couple of weeks. The papers will prevent too rapid evaporation and consequently continual watering, which will cause the stem to rot if the cuttings are kept too wet. It is much better not to wet the cuttings, after the first watering, until they show signs of wilting. A sprinkling of the foliage in the morning will carry the plants along for some time before watering the pots will be required. If cuttings enough cannot be secured the plants should be lifted and potted that a good supply of cuttings may be secured early in the winter.

Sweet Peas for Christmas.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

I have a greenhouse 30x100 feet and grow carnation plants. I wish to plant a bench of sweet peas. When should I plant to get a good crop for Christmas and what varieties are the most saleable? A. S. H.

You should plant at once. Christmas Pink is the most saleable.

G. W. FRENCH.

There is little time to be lost in order to get in a good crop of sweet peas for Christmas, as they should be sown by September 15 at the latest, and would be better a little earlier. The most saleable colors are pink, white and lavender, and earliest of all, Christmas White, and Mrs. Wallace are among the most satisfactory varieties in those colors. W. H. T.

In reply I would say that sweet peas should be sown now to have the crop in full flower for Christmas. The best sellers for Christmas are: Christmas Pink, Boddington, Pink Watchung, Zvolanek, Earliest of All, Burpee, all of which are synonymous; and Earliest White Burpee, Watchung, Zvolanek, Snowbird, Boddington, which also are all synonymous.

Chicago Stores That Advertise.

Much is said these days about the quick handling of flowers at low prices and many opinions are expressed as to the best way to conduct the business along these lines. The plans followed by the most successful men engaged in this new method of merchandizing cut flowers are about as follows: First, get or arrange for a large stock at the lowest quantity price. Then let the people know, through the columns of the daily press by conspicuous advertisements of the great price reductions. Be sure that the bargains are genuine. Location has much to do with the selling, the store having to be in a central shopping district, as people will not go far out of the line of travel to get something they don't actually need even if it is cheap.

The Fleischman Floral Co., Chicago, is probably one of the most successful of those which have taken up this manner of handling cut flowers in large quantities at low prices and in getting the general public in to see them by extensive advertising. Eight to ten per cent of the amount of their business is not considered too much to be spent in this way. August is not the time of year to see a cut flower store in good running order as a rule. A visit to this establishment during the convention week, however, would have convinced anyone of its thorough going business-like method and great possibilities for taking care of a large trade. The store proper is not large, about 22 feet in width and 35 to 40 feet in length. There are two back windows in one of which is a rockery well trimmed with plants and in the other plant baskets filled with colodiums and trimmed with pink ribbon. There are no counters and two large ice boxes, one on each side, carry the stock. One contains roses; the other orchids, violets and valley. Around a large column in the center of the store is a shelf on which are cards, envelopes and writing material. Across the rear of the store is the office, the cashier's desk and the telephones.

The entire store from floor to ceiling is mirrored in so that there appears no limit to its size. Handsome electric fixtures are placed at every available point and the effect produced combined with the reflection of the many mirrors is brilliant in the extreme. The basement is the workshop of the establishment, for nothing is made up in the store proper. It is very commodious, being three times the size of the store. Here is a large storage box or refrigerator. All three of the cases are cooled by the ammonia system—no ice being used. In speaking of their methods, George Weinhoeber said that they did not aim or care to do a dollar box business. They would rather handle the roses selling individually at the time for $3.00 per dozen, for $1.50. American Beauties that brought $6.00 for $3.00, and so on. They buy cattleyas by the thousand and sell them at from 35 to 50 cents each when the regular price is 75 cents to $1.00. They can handle all that is sent to them at their price. They carry American Beauties by the thousand or more a day. Their business has gained tremendously the past two years and they expect a greater ratio of increase the coming season.

A. Lange on Madison street, another extensive advertiser, has for a long time made a specialty of $1.00 boxes and while he says there is little or no profit in them, yet, extensively advertised, they have been business bringers. A number are always made up ready for instant delivery or used as samples to take orders. During the season girls are busy all day long putting up these dollar boxes which for the most part are made up of short roses, two, three or four dozen roses being used according to the season. The store, convention week, was crowded with vases of cut flowers placed around and in the ice box. The window was also full of a variety of the best of the season. There was no question as to its being a flower store, and even at this season a large force was busy as bees waiting on the customers that thronged the place. Most of the stores in the shopping district appear to carry quite large stocks. No flowers are allowed to be sold on the streets and the street men have rented basements, doorways and other available spaces and many of them appeared to handle considerable stock—judging from the amount they carried.

While the Fleishman Co. and Mr. Lange find the advertised bargains a factor that draws the attention of the people to their stores, the actual sales in these departments are but a feature of their general business, which includes large funeral and wedding orders together with the Christmas and Easter rushes which are conducted in both these establishments on a large scale. The H. R. Hughes store is also extensively advertised, but in a different manner. Mr. Hughes is situated on Van Buren street in a residence district. In his efforts to reach the public, he gets out very unique folders generally pertaining to the various floral and other holidays of the year. The printed matter is original and interesting enough to be read through and laid aside for reference. Cuts of his elaborate window decorations which have been described in THE AMERICAN FLORIST are used to illustrate the folders. K.

Gude Auto Wins Prize.

That Gude Bros. of Washington, D. C., are not only enterprising flower merchants but are thoroughly alive to all the possibilities of the trade and capable of turning their sense of the artistic to good account is proved by the result of the motor vehicle parade held by the Washington Post, September 2, in which this firm won the first prize of $150 cash. There were a large number of entries and most of them of considerable merit, but the large crowd seemed unanimous in the opinion that the judges had selected the right machine for first honors. Gudes used a Lippard-Stewart light delivery car shrouded in white cheese cloth and studded with American Beauty roses. The display was the largest of its kind ever shown in the East, which is all the more honor for the winners. This was not the only honor won by this firm, however, as it also made the floral emblem for the Anheuser-Busch Co. which gained honorable mention.

Langhans Arranges Funeral Flowers.

The flowers for the funeral of Mayor C. C. Schmidt of Wheeling, W. Va., were arranged by Arthur Langhans, one of the best known florists of that city. The photograph published in this issue shows the bier of the dead official as he lay in state at the Elks' Auditorium. Mayor Schmidt was Grand Trustee of the Grand Lodge B. P. O. E. Floral work came from and was photographed for from all over the United States. This was the largest funeral ever held in Wheeling and 12 automobiles were required to convey the flowers to the cemetery. Some very expensive work excellently done is shown in the photograph.

The Pink Dinner Table.

Encircle the table with garlands of pink roses, clustering pink carnations in the center and at the ends of the table, using the rose foliage lavishly. At each guest's plate place a candlestick of pink china with a shade made of pink full-blown roses laid on flat, using their foliage only for a finish. Little rosebuds should be arranged at the top and bottom in symmetrical rows to give it a quaint effect. These candlesticks should be placed so as to form a circle towards the center of the table. Electric lights are best, but pink candles can be used if electricity is not available. Connect these candlesticks with bowknots of pink satin sash ribbon so as to make the pink effect as striking as possible. A scroll of pink ribbon on which the menu is printed in silver can be placed to advantage from each candlestick in front of the guest plate. The guest cards should also be a large pink rose leaf card. A small corsage of pink roses made in pyramid style will be excellent to place in each serviette. Carnations can be used here if desired. The wine glasses should be of pink Venetian glass. In the center of the table arrange a low, graceful, loose-effect flat basket of maidenhair ferns.

And then—to still further carry out a pink effect—a carpet can be made of pink roses, leaving just enough room for the plates and cutlery. In the center—under the rose carpet—a huge block of ice can be placed in a pan and surrounded with clusters of electric lights. This, if artistically arranged is most effective where a number of tables are to be used and where the main table is to have an individuality. To add to its oddity a rich cut glass bowl filled with huge hothouse grapes can be arranged on either end of the table. A. E. K.

THE CARNATION.

Carnations Dying.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:—

Some of my carnations are dying. They seem to rot off at the ground. I do not know if it is an insect that eats them or not, but they are webbed up as if the work was done by a spider. What would you advise me to do?

Alabama.

S. E. B.

According to the description it appears that the plants are developing stem rot. I would advise keeping the cultivator going to open up the surface of the soil. Then, as soon as possible, transfer the plants to the houses.

C. W. JOHNSON.

Seasonable Notes.

It is now late for planting in from the field and any of this work still to be done should be finished up without delay. It will be necessary to keep the house closer for a longer period to get up active root action again directly after planting than is the case with the earlier planted stock when the plants are smaller and do not take as long to recover. Good judgment should be exercised to guard against getting the soil too wet at the start with this fresh planted stock, weather conditions now being such that the atmosphere does not dry up as quickly as was the case a few weeks ago when early planting was being done. It will be necessary to do any watering or spraying before noon to insure the plants drying out well before night. To allow the plants and the inside of the house to be wet or damp over two or three nights will quickly start up stem rot. The fact that these plants were outside making a rapid growth through the extra moist conditions and heavy dews makes them much more susceptible to stem rot and we have found that after the first watering in (which should not be a drenching), they will start off better if held a little to the dry side. Also be sure and clean out any weeds as soon as they appear in the new soil because they stop the circulation of air through the soil.

The order of business with the early planted or established plants is to make everything ready for starting them off on their season's work. They will begin to come into bloom very shortly now. See that they are properly supported before they do so. It is less trouble to put on the supports now than it will be after the stems begin to lengthen out. Topping back the shoots should be discontinued unless it is the object to throw the crop of a certain variety later for a special purpose or in cases where the plants are still very small, but it must be borne in mind that it will take longer for the shoots to come up again as the days pass by. Also the thick heavy foliage varieties are longer in cropping up again than are those with finer grass. During the months of September and October the well established plants will make a rapid growth and every means should be put forth to enable this growth to be as sturdy and productive as possible. The plants do not require to be thoroughly soaked at all times to bring this about, but should be allowed to dry out to a reasonable extent between waterings. Another very important feature is plenty of fresh air.

After the middle of September we may expect the nights to become cooler but this does not mean that the ventilators should be closed up tight as soon as the thermometer begins to drop. Keep up the ventilation and natural conditions as long as it is possible to do so, provided the inside temperature does not go low enough to cause dampness, but there is scarcely any danger of that for a few weeks yet.

C. W. JOHNSON.

Growing Carnations in Old Soil.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Have you anything in your files in reference to the growing of carnations whereby one can use the same soil these plants were in the previous year by simply inserting bone and other fertilizer into this soil and giving it a thorough mixing, placing it in the same benches and putting the new plants in this for the following year? Do you consider this practical?

J. W. E.

In our issue of May 20, 1911, W. Greivelding has the following on this subject: "The plants are grown in beds with sides 12 inches high and in order to supply drainage, under some of the beds a ditch was dug which was filled with stone, but as the under-soil seems to drain the water well enough no difference was noted between these and the beds which were not so prepared. After the carnation plants are thrown out about July 1 the beds are cleared of all rubbish and then spaded over and left rough, little sulphate of potash in rotation, beginning in February and given the mulch every two weeks, and sometimes in spring all the different fertilizers are incorporated in one mulch. That the plants do not take up all the fertilizers given is shown by the growth in the older beds, some of which have soil that has not been renewed for five years, for the plants in these beds are doing better than in the others which were started two years later. The first year the bed sometimes shows a green scum that comes upon the surface and a little of this will also appear the second year, but after that the beds are always clean and entirely clear of it. There are about 5,000 plants in the houses and have made a fine growth and are producing good flowers. The following varieties are grown: Mayday, Mrs. C. W. Ward, Dorothy Gordon, Alma Ward, White Perfection, Enchantress, White Enchantress, Rose Pink Enchantress, Victory, O. P. Bassett and J. Whitcomb Riley and all are doing well except the last two. Chrysanthemums are also grown in the soil that has not been renewed for five years."

Heleniums.

The various members of the genus helenium form an important and showy group of hardy herbaceous perennials, without which no garden is complete. They are plants of free growth, succeeding in ordinary garden soil that is thoroughly prepared by just as the spading leaves it, for 10 days to dry out, when it is again spaded and allowed to stand another 10 days. It is then smoothed over and well watered, and as soon as it can be worked, an inch and a half or two inches of manure is spread and again spaded that the manure may be well mixed in, after which it is ready for planting. Mr. Greivelding uses no liquid manure but the plants are mulched with lime, hardwood ashes, sheep manure, bone, dried blood and a digging and manuring previous to planting, and beyond the routine work necessary to keep the plants clean and staked, little further attention is necessary; triennial lifting and division of the crowns is advisable in order to secure the maximum development, according to a writer in London Gardeners' Magazine, as increase is generally of a lavish character, and after the period named the size of the flowers begins to deteriorate on established plants.

ROYAL INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION AT LONDON, ENG.

Collection of Fruit Exhibited by Laxton Bros., Bedford, Eng.

Heleniums are most effective when planted in clumps of three or more of a kind, and as the mass of color when in flower is great, they should not be lumped together when staking, but spread out lightly, supported by twiggy sticks, or tied out singly on light bamboo canes.

The earliest to flower is H. Hoopesi, a dwarf species, with golden-yellow flowers; this is followed by H. Bolanderi and H. Bigelowi, both yellow-flowered species, the first-named having a brown center; these vary in height from one to two feet. None of them rivals H. pumilium magnificum in floriferousness; this subject attains a height of two feet, and begins to flower in June, continuing for about three months; the flowers are of a large size, soft rich yellow in color, and with crimped petals; it is altogether a first-rate and reliable plant for garden decoration, and grows to a height of three feet.

H. Riverton Gem shares all the good qualities of the last-named, but differs in color of the flowers, which are golden-yellow flushed by a clear shade of terra-cotta. Helenium autumnale and its varieties are conspicuous subjects in the autumn garden. H. cupreum commences to bloom in July, and continues until late in autumn; in height it rarely exceeds two feet, forming dense bushes, and bearing flowers of a lively copper-yellow color. H. grandicephalum striatum is a taller-growing edition of the last-named, and flowers later, generally beginning in August; it attains a height of five feet, and has yellow flowers heavily striped with dark red. H. superbum produces self flowers of a beautiful yellow, and grows from five to six feet tall, being in season from July till September.

All the species and varieties of helenium are valuable for house decoration, being of great service where quantities of cut flowers are required, and particularly for large vases.

To the Grower of Sweet Peas.

For the last two years we have been working on the diseases of the sweet pea and their control. We are about to publish a preliminary bulletin and we are anxious to incorporate in our work the experience and observations of all the leading practical horticulturists and gardeners. In our investigations we have dealt with the following troubles: Damping off, similar to the damping off of lettuce and other plants; anthracnose, producing a wilt disease of the tips as well as a leaf and pod disease; "streak," a dreaded disease in England and it is now rapidly spreading in this country. This disease is characterized by a dark streak all along the center of the stem; mosaic disease, similar to the mosaic of tobacco and tomato; root diseases due to fungi and eel worms. Due credit will be given you in our report, to any contribution which you will be so kind as to give us. The Department of Plant Pathology will highly appreciate and consider it a great favor if you will kindly fill out the lists of questions which we here include. An early reply will be duly appreciated as it will save the losing of unnecessary time.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Insects.

We have recently had several inquiries for the best means of eradicating the leaf tyer (Phlycaenia ferrugalis) which seems to be on the increase. From the accompanying illustration it will be seen there are three stages or forms of life during its existence. The first is the larva or worm which is light green and feeds usually upon the underside of the leaves, leaving the epidermis or skin-like upper surface. Its habit of drawing two leaves together or rolling the edge under by means of a fine silky web is the means by which it acquired its name. As the worm attains full size (about $\frac{1}{2}$ inch long) it seeks a secluded place where it changes to the second stage, or chrysalis form, and is about three-eighths inch long, with a brown covering. In a few days this chrysalis breaks its covering and in this transformation is provided with wings, then being in the third or mature moth state. With these wings it is enabled to go to other plants or houses and deposit eggs which soon become larva. Such remedies as Paris green and arsenate of lead would be effective if it were possible to apply to the underside of the leaves, but we find such applications are not sufficiently vigorous in their action to keep the pests in check. Tobacco and cyanide fumes have no effect.

During the propagating season (January to July) we turn our attention to the moth, using a piece of screen wire 8x10 inches attached to a stick for a handle (the same as a fly swatter) and follow the hose every day, striking them as they rise. At planting time the plants are cleaned of all worms before placing on the benches. Throughout the growing season the stock is gone over every few days and all disfigured foliage is carefully examined for this larva. They are exceedingly persistent in maintaining a foothold when once established and no one should allow them to go unchecked, thinking they will disappear when the houses are cleaned up. This is not the case as we have seen the larva so numerous as to entirely devour the foliage of stock plants. This method entails a great deal of labor, but it is the only way we have been able to keep our stock clean.

To those who are troubled with red spider and thrip we would suggest the use of Hammond's thrip juice, No. 2, applied with an auto sprayer. The directions say 1 part to 20-40 parts of water and we find 1 to 40 is effective and obviates danger of burning. We prefer applying toward night or on cloudy days as a precaution against injuring the foliage. This is the best thrip remedy we know of and also keeps the stock free of aphids. For black or green aphids we prefer sodium cyanide to tobacco fumigation as it is easier applied, more effective and lasting. For houses 30x100, containing about 24,000 cubic feet of air space, we use four dishes, each containing 6 ounces of water and 2 ounces of sulphuric acid, into which we drop 1 ounce of sodium cyanide.

Those who have not used the deadly poison should exercise the greatest care both in handling it and after it comes in contact with the acid. The gas is as transparent and colorless as the air, but when inhaled is death to all animal life. Never undertake to investigate its action or re-enter the house for three hours after its installation. Also see that the houses are locked to protect persons who are unfamiliar with the dangerous conditions. Caterpillars and cut worms should be hand picked. The former are usually found on the underside of the leaves and the latter in the ground, usually near the plant upon which they are feeding.

Chrysanthemum Pests.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Will you kindly inform me how to destroy thrips on chrysanthemums and cinerarias? All the leaves on my chrysanthemums are turning yellow and fall down. I see lots of small insects under the leaves. Do you think that the trouble is because the plants are too close? The bench is four feet wide and I have planted six plants. I am afraid I will lose them all. Do you think so? V. C. Quebec.

We have had no experience in destroying thrips on cinerarias, but can see no reason why an effective remedy for these plants in chrysanthemums should not be equally forceful upon other plants. The best remedy we know of is Hammond's thrip juice No. 2. We specify No. 2, as they manufacture two kinds and our experience has been confined to this particular formula. It should be applied with an auto spraying outfit and be thorough in the operation. Applying to both upper and under surfaces of the leaves 1 part of thrip juice to 20-40 parts of water are the directions given, and as we have found 1 to 40 very satisfactory, conclude a stronger solution is unnecessary unless in aggravated cases or on hard wooded plants. When applied on bright hot days we notice some tendency toward burning the foliage under glass and so we prefer administering late in the afternoon or on cloudy days. V. C. can also keep his chrysanthemums and cinerarias free from aphids and red spiders by frequent applications.

A large proportion of this formula is soap, which gives the foliage a clean glossy texture. Thrip juice can be obtained from Hammond's Paint and Slug Shot Works, Fishkill, New York.

Wilcox's New Range.

J. F. Wilcox & Sons of Council Bluffs, Ia., have recently completed two enormous greenhouses rivaling in size the greatest in the country. Each house is 60x1,000 feet and modern in every respect. The work was done by the King Construction Co., North Tonawanda, N. Y. The house shown on the right in the accompanying illustration was blown down by a hurricane July 31 but the work of erecting it again went on so expeditiously that it was practically completed ten working days later, or August 13, when the photograph was taken. Curiously enough, the other house, though but twenty-five feet away, was undamaged by the storm, which was a severe one. The new range puts the enterprising Wilcox firm among the big growers of the country.

Growing Old Cyclamens.

It has been said that the cyclamen is somewhat difficult to manage after its second year, and that few people find it worth while to keep the corms longer. I beg to differ, as I know from experience that the cyclamen can be grown for almost an indefinite period. I have some corms from twelve years to eighteen years old, and 6 inches in diameter, with splendid foliage and full of flower, writes a correspondent of Gardening Illustrated, published in England. The blooms are of good quality, in fact, I think they are just as good as when the first-seedling corms flowered.

As this article is intended to interest those who already possess cyclamen corms two or three years old, and have not yet succeeded in managing them well afterwards, I propose to confine my remarks to these. My plants at this date (March 12) are a mass of bloom with good foliage. The treatment is very simple, causes far less trouble than looking after seedlings, and gives, I find, better results. The plants require a lot of watering at this stage, having so much top growth to support. My largest plants are quite 2 feet through. The house should be provided with blinds, to be drawn down in the middle of the day, as strong sunshine causes the blooms to flag, even if the plants do not require water, and this gives them an untidy appearance. Keep them as cool as possible by day by shutting the heat off, and only turn enough heat on at night to keep up a temperature of 45° to 50°. Keep the stage nice and moist in the daytime by syringing freely, taking care not to wet the flowers more than can be helped. This is a wonderful help in keeping the plants clean and making them last in bloom a long time. All flowers when wanted for cutting should be removed by a sharp jerk, this bringing them clear away. When going out of bloom remove the plants to a light, airy shelf in a cool greenhouse if room can be spared; if not, a light, sunny frame on a bed of ashes will do, and give enough water to keep from flagging. Do not dry them off, but let them ripen off gradually. When all the foliage has died down, which will be about the end of June or early in July, then take the corms in hand for next year's work. Pull off all old leaves, turn out, and repot into same size pot, or give a slight shift if thought necessary; but take care not to over-pot. The compost should consist of two parts good loam, one part leaf-mould, one peck old cow-manure to a barrowful of soil, and a nice sprinkling of charcoal, sand, and a little crushed oyster shell. Remove all old drainage. Drain the fresh pots well, only rubbing enough soil off the old ball to enable you to work in, say, half an inch of new compost all around. Give one good watering, place in a frame facing west, on a good bed of ashes, and shade from strong sun. Keep plenty of moisture about them by sprinkling as often as necessary, but not to sodden the soil, as this would be fatal. Treated in this way they will soon show signs of breaking afresh, and when they have fairly started more air can be given, but not to cause a draught. I always water with a rose, thoroughly wetting the leaves. When once they get going they make rapid growth, and may be given weak liquid manure when the leaves begin to spread well over the pots. They may be kept in a frame until about the middle of October, when move into a cool greenhouse, and if the stage is an open one it is better to cover it with slates and a coat of ashes or spar. In this way more moisture can be kept about them. Treat as when in the frame, and give liquid manure once a week, varying it. Only use enough fire heat to keep out frost and keep the air in motion. If the foregoing details be carried out good results should follow. This is my treatment in brief, and I have every reason to be satisfied.

Vegetable Growers' Association.FIFTH ANNUAL CONVENTION.

President H. F. Hall opened the convention Wednesday morning at Rochester, N. Y., introducing Mayor H. H. Edgerton, who welcomed the growers to the city. In his annual address President Hall mentioned certain needs of the association. One of the most conspicuous of these is a bureau of information on crop and market conditions. The president recommended the appointment of a committee to consider the advisability of establishing such a bureau for the benefit of the members only. The afternoon session was devoted to addresses and discussions on crop combinations and rotation. Addresses were made by H. F. Thompson of Attleboro, Mass., and Professor R. L. Watts of Pennsylvania State College. At the close of this session the ladies attending the convention were invited by the local association to an auto trip through the city. "Theory and Practice in Vegetable Breeding" was Dr. H. J. Webber's subject during the evening. O. G. Bishop of Pontiac, Mich., and E. W. Catchpole of North Watts; "Our Ladies," by S. W. Severance; "How Can Our Legislature Benefit Our Association?" by G. F. Argetsinger. Willis K. Gillette was toastmaster.

During Friday morning's session Chauncey West spoke on "Soil Fertilization" and Professor W. J. Wright, director of the New York State College of Agriculture, Alfred, N. Y., gave a lecture on "Some Special Points in Greenhouse Building and Equipment." Following the lectures a general discussion took place on such greenhouse problems as watering, packing, marketing, etc. The election of officers also took place at this meeting. All the officers were re-elected with the exception of Secretary S. W. Severance, who declined the nomination. The office was filled by E. A. Dunbar of Ashtabula, Ohio. C. R. White, president of the New York State Vegetable Growers' Association, gave an address on "Co-operation—Its Benefits, Obstacles and Future," during the afternoon. Following this lecture a final general discussion took place. It was not decided where the next convention will be held.

Third National Flower Show.

The National Flower Show committee is now working on the final schedule. The committee respectfully requests of business houses or individuals who may be considering the offering of special prizes that they make decisions at once, so that they may receive due publicity and the growers have a chance to grow specimens for the prizes offered. Since publication of our last report the following special prizes have been offered:

In addition to previous generous donations, the H. F. Michell Co., of Philadelphia, offers $50 in cash for a first prize, a silver medal as a second, and a bronze medal as a third, for the best single-stem plant in a 4-in. pot of Geranium Helen Michell, a new variety the company is distributing at the present time.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., of Philadelphia, offers the Pennock-Meehan cup for the best red forcing rose not yet disseminated, whether of domestic or foreign origin, 12 blooms. Exhibits to be judged by the official scale of the American Rose Society. The cup is valued at $25. The Pennock-Meehan cup, value $25, is also offered for 12 blooms of the best forcing rose, any other color, not yet disseminated, whether of domestic or foreign origin, exhibits to be judged by the official scale of the American Rose Society.

The Leo. Niessen Co., of Philadelphia, offer a silver cup, value $30, class to be announced later.

The Lord & Burnham Co., New York, has taken up class 28 of the preliminary schedule for one specimen plant Azalea, not less than 4 feet in diameter, first prize $20 in cash, or a gold medal.

Everything points to the fact that horticulturists are fully aware of the great importance of these expositions and that they are determined to assist by all the means within their power to make the Third National Flower Show the grandest exhibition ever held in this country.

 Chairman Publicity Committee.

PORTLAND, ORE.—Committee members of the Pacific Northwest Land Products Show, which will be held in this city November 18-23, and in which the Oregon State Horticultural Society is actively interested, met here for preliminary preparations September 3.

WEEK'S BUSINESS GOOD.

The past week was fairly good. The opening of Tilden's drygoods store gave the flower business a boom. It looked more like a flower store than a drygoods store. A well appointed place for the sale of flowers is included in this mammoth building. Nearly 250,000 people visited this store on the opening day and, of course, the flowers were seen, admired and advertised. Another big store in the course of a few weeks will be ready to open with the same line of goods so we may expect another grand rush on the flower line. Everything helps and especially in a time when trade is lagging. Carnations have not as yet made much appearance, only one grower, Arthur Capers of Wellesley having excellent Fair Maid from two year old plants, good flowers and long stems. This is another case of the pupil showing his heels to some of his instructors. Roses are about the same as last week.

NOTES.

At the American Hotel Saturday night, September 7, a party of the stockholders met to discuss the advisability of changing the location of the Boston Flower Exchange from Park street to Winthrop square, corner of Otis street. The sentiment was wholly in favor of the change. Park street has of late become congested. It was narrow to begin with and the increased traffic has made it worse. The new market will be down beside the two wholesale firms, Welch Bros. Co. and N. F. McCarthy & Co., convenient to the express offices and plenty of rooms for teams to drive in and stand, besides being close to the South station. The old room in Park street was unsuitable for flowers, low ceilings and not enough air or ventilation. The move is good for they are to have two floors, basement and street floor, high studded and plenty of ventilation, with three times as much floor area as where they are at present. It seemed to be the wish of those present that this be taken for 10 years and that all the flower interests could be located together. The vote, 52 "yea" and six "no," showed plainly the sentiment of the meeting. A buffet lunch was served.

Cornelius Casey of Melrose died Friday, September 6. He made a specialty of Marchael Neil and Perle roses and was one of the old time rose growers. The business will be carried on by his sons.

BUSINESS ENCOURAGING.

Business the past week looked very encouraging to the retailers of this city. A fine lot of funeral work was turned out and wedding flowers and decorations were in evidence and the general run of business was good—a fine increase over previous weeks. Inside grown stock is coming in fine; roses are good and very fine carnations are arriving. The supply is taking care of the demand. The outside stock is poor, having been damaged by the recent excessive rainfalls. Good outside stock is not available.

STATE FAIR.

The Minnesota state fair was held at Hamline last week and as some fine premiums were offered nearly all the leading florists of the Twin Cities exhibited their stock. Although the cut flowers exhibited this year were not as fine as in previous years, the plant exhibits were better than ever before. Among the prize winners in these two exhibits were: Holm & Olson, St. Paul; Minneapolis Floral Co.; J. Vasatka, Minneapolis; F. A. Farar, St. Paul; J. S. Farmer, Minneapolis; C. C. Hunter, Minneapolis; Flower Shop, Minneapolis; R. A. Latham, Minneapolis; Hoyt Nursery Co., St. Paul; D. W. C. Ruff, St. Paul, Aug. S. Swanson, of Minnetonka, but formerly of the Merriam Park Floral Co., in the Midway District, acted as judge and received much praise for his decisions. Gus Malmquist of Minneapolis, assistant superintendent of horticulture, deserves much praise for the way stock was staged and the general appearance of the exhibits.

NOTES.

Holm & Olson are displaying in their windows the awards received at the State Fair. The cards representing premiums are all mounted on a large board and an appropriate sign reads: "34 first premiums out of 37 entries." They are creating a great deal of comment.

C. Kinsman of Austin, Minn., N. Clearine of Faribault, and N. Nielsen of Mankato, visited the fair. Other visitors were: W. R. Hall, Osage, Ia.; J. J. Kariens of the H. A. Dreer Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and Henry H. Wenderoth, with Nicholas Wapler, New York.

C. T. Haupt, florist at Concord and South Robert streets, has just completed the erection of a fine new house which will be devoted to bedding plants exclusively. The rest of his place is being remodeled and put in shape for the coming season.

H. Puvogel is rapidly completing his new houses and his place presents a fine appearance. He expects to have the work completed before frost comes.

MARKET SHOWS IMPROVEMENT.

The local market shows some improvement. Prices have not soared any or even tried to move upward. But the demand seems better and the supply, taken as a whole, has let up somewhat. The one flower that is constantly in greater demand than can be furnished is the white aster. The other colors in asters are ample. Along with white asters may be classed giganteum and longiflorum lilies. Some days last week there was a shortage of these. The tremendous oversupply of gladioli seemed at the close of last week and the beginning of this to have let up and assumed reasonable proportions. It is probable that the cut is nearing its close for the season. In roses the American beauties alone sell well. They clean up as a whole very regularly. The pink are moving only fairly well but of the white only the best sell. Shorts do not move at any price. Quite a number of the retailers are handling large lots of tuberose. The carnation cut is on the increase.

NOTES.

The meeting of the Florists' Society on Monday evening was well attended. The discussion on the various questions that came up was thorough. The geranium price problem was the special order of business and was care-

OBITUARY.

Charles L. Yates.

Charles L. Yates, treasurer of the American Association of Nurserymen and manager of the National Nurseryman, the association's official paper, died suddenly September 5 at his home in Rochester, N. Y. Death was the result of acute indigestion and came as a great shock to his many friends. Mr. Yates had long been identified with the nursery trade and was a national figure in the work to which he had devoted a great part of his life. He was born in Canada in 1847 and was 65 years old at his death.

When 21 years of age Mr. Yates moved to Lowell, Mass., and engaged in the wholesale commission business. Later he was interested in western mining operations, but returned to Waltham, Mass., and became a nurseryman. He was a salesman for Geo. A. Stone for four years and then went to Philadelphia. From there he went to Rochester and engaged in the business for himself. Mr. Yates' demise is the second loss by death suffered by the National Nurseryman in the last few weeks. Prof. John Craig, the editor, having departed this life a short time ago. The funeral of Mr. Yates was held Saturday, September 7.

FROSTY nights may be expected soon and ample provision should be made for the protection of tender plants in the open, as fine weather may continue several weeks after the first damaging cold snap.

NURSERYMEN and others who desire a permit to import nursery stock under the new quarantine law, which goes into effect October 1, should address the Federal Horticultural Board, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Personal.

Arthur Newell and wife of Kansas City, Mo., write August 30 from London, Eng., saying they are enjoying their visit immensely.

Quarantine Law Hearings.

The Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., has issued a public document on the enforcement of the federal plant quarantine law. In compliance with the law, before quarantine proclamations are issued, public hearings will be given to persons interested who may appear in person or by attorney, or submit their views in writing. Announcement is hereby made that these hearings will be held as follows:

On the white pine blister rust, September 16, 1912.

On the Mediterranean fruit fly, September 18, 1912.

On the potato wart disease, September 20, 1912.

All hearings will be held at the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., at 10 o'clock a. m., on the dates above specified. Photographs illustrating the three dangers above mentioned can be obtained upon application to the Chief of the Division of Publications, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. The full text of the document will be found elsewhere in this issue, page —.

Get a Permit to Do Business.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

A true type of those laws which I have protested against for the past four years is seen in the new so-called nursery stock quarantine law which takes effect October 1. I wrote as follows four years ago:

Prosperity exists only under favorable conditions. The Congressional Record shows, not that more laws are needed, but better laws; not laws to restrict business, but to promote it; not drastic and restrictive enactments with prison penalties for the first offense under untried conditions; not federal bureau control for increasing government employes and patronage at the expense of both business and labor. Some such laws have been enacted, more are threatened.

Secretary Wilson, his Bureaus, and his standpat aids in Congress have put another one over. It carries a prison penalty and is unfair in those directions which I pointed out and un-American and against the common law rights of the business citizen. Every business man should protest now before he is tied hand and foot by similar laws carrying police regulations, prison penalties and heavy fines, putting the most reputable lines of business in the country into the law-controlled classes and making it appear to the general public that this trade must be a disreputable one, in that it can not be carried on without special permission and under special police control.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

Public notice is hereby given that A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn., offers for registration the following new seedling rose H. T. (J. B. Clark x Richmond). Any person objecting to the registration or to the use of the proposed name, is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from date.

RAISER'S DESCRIPTION.

The rose is a hybrid tea, a cross between Richmond and J. R. Clark. The habit of growth is strong and sturdy, and the foliage excellent. The flower is large and double and opens perfectly at all seasons of the year. In color it is similar to Richmond, although richer in color and in the bud. In form of flower and in fragrance it resembles Gen. Jacqueminot and combines with this excellent color, strong growth, great productiveness, and wonderful keeping qualities, which strongly recommend the variety as an excellent forcing rose. The variety will be disseminated in 1913. The name which I wish to give the above described rose is Milady.

CONDITIONS UNCHANGED.

The offerings at the local wholesale houses are about the same as the week previous. Asters are still plentiful in all colors, and the quality is good. Carnations are becoming more plentiful. A few sweet peas are still coming in, but mostly of poorer quality. Roses are plentiful and the demand good. Jap lilies and Easter lilies are again plentiful with a fair demand.

NOTES.

The garden festival of the Cleveland public schools was on this week in the Sweetland Building. There were flowers and vegetables, shrubs and canned stuff. The most of the exhibitors were children who had grown their own things in a little backyard or schoolyard. The J. M. Gasser Co. exhibited some fine Killarney and Maryland roses. The Taylor Flower Shop had a dining room and table-decoration in one window and a porch decoration in the other. Both attracted much attention and favorable comment.

The Jones-Russell Co. is having its store painted and redecorated on the inside and otherwise generally fixing up for the busy season.

The Cleveland Florists' Exchange received their first shipment of Southern smilax, consisting of 40 cases, on Monday, September 2.

Al. Wilhelm, of Montana, who formerly worked for the J. M. Gasser Co. is spending a few weeks at his home here. C. F. B.

MARKET AT LOW EBB.

The condition of the market might be worse but if so it would surely stand still, as it just barely keeps moving now. Last week was said by several wholesale dealers to have been the nearest to bottom of any that has gone before. Asters are still very plentiful but the quality is retrograding and much of the stock handled scarcely brings enough to pay express charges. One of the dealers, who was getting together quite a large lot of asters for an order, said when complimented on the sale, "This is no sale—it's a gift, and I am ashamed to make out the slip." Roses are improving but the extreme heat of the past few days makes the stock soft. There is a fair demand for about all the white ones and the American Beauties, but all the others move very slowly. Easter lilies are plentiful and valley is about equal to the demand. Cottleyas have almost to be prayed for. One dollar is the price. The growers say that ten days from this time will see a change and there will be sufficient to let everyone have a few. There are plenty of good gladioli and hydrangeas by the wagon-load.

NOTES.

Fred Chyezewsky, greenhouse manager for Alfred Campbell of Collingdale, has resigned his position, having purchased from Charles Meehan fifty acres of land on which is 60,000 square feet of glass. This is situated at Churchville on the Newtown road. Mr. Chyezewsky's specialties will be roses, chrysanthemums and asparagus, with which the houses are now planted. William Prevail is to succeed as greenhouse superintendent for Mr. Campbell.

New stores are opening and more are to follow. One of the best informed men in the business says, "this is going to be a great season—the best ever." Mrs. J. Smith opened a retail cut flower store at Front and West Moreland streets on September 9. Another new one is to be opened at Germantown and Erie avenues. James Cah is the proprietor. Others are slowly "hatching out" and will swing their signs to the breeze before long.

Emil H. Geschick, of Johnston, Germantown, had the misfortune to lose a horse by death last week. From the automobile lists seen lying around it would seem that Mr. Geschick is considering turning the stable into a garage.

George E. Campbell, Flourtown, is installing a new 100 horsepower boiler. George says he is not taking any chances as he must have heat to grow good stock. His house of the new Sunburst rose is looking fine.

M. Rice & Co. had a customer last week who traveled 500 miles to see their store and look over the stock. He came direct from the train and after leaving his order hastened to get the next train for home.

— Watson, at the Leo Niessen Co.'s market, says that there is too much stock about for the business doing, that American Beauties are moving better and also that the Sunburst is a coming rose.

Chrysanthemums are in fine flowers, but they have not found favor to any extent; a little more autumn tinge on the shade trees will have to show first.

M. Rice & Co. report Julius Epstein and wife of San Francisco, Cal., and Frank Schoen of the Gasser Co., Cleveland, as among their visitors.

The Dreer Co. is cutting herbaceous flowers in assortments, large, showy, long-stemmed stock, that make fine vase flowers for decoration.

John Berger is home from a two week's vacation in Maine. He looks hale and hearty and ready for business. K.

Buffalo.

WEDDINGS HELP SOMEWHAT.

If Buffalo had been favored in July and August with the weather that we are getting now the loss to the grower who expected so much from his peas, asters and other outdoor flowers would not have been so heavy. However, we hope to have a good fall and a prosperous winter. Trade is about what can be expected. Several weddings are on for this week, calling for choice flowers and moderate decorations.

NOTES.

Some florists are making slight alterations and improvements in their stores. Palmer & Son are putting a tile floor in the lower store. S. A. Anderson has beautified his store with some very fine mirrors and new ribbon and basket cases. Keitsch & Co., L. H. Neubeck and Ed. Altman have been repainting.

B. J. Meyers, superintendent of W. J. Palmer's Lancaster plant, while returning from Buffalo with Mrs. Meyers met with a very serious accident. Their car skidded and turned turtle seriously injuring Mr. Meyers and breaking both of Mrs. Meyers' arms and otherwise injuring her.

Leo Elbers, who has purchased the greenhouses at Main and Amherst streets, Central Park, is well satisfied so far and has his stock in good shape.

R. E. Boettger of Eggertsville has had the best asters this season.

The last meeting of the B. F. C. had a fair attendance. Flower show business was the topic. Chairman Kasting will announce his committees very soon.

Several of the trade went to Syracuse this week to attend the meeting of the New York State Federation of Florists' Clubs. President Kasting left Wednesday.

W. J. Peake, who purchased the La Tour property on East Parade avenue has put up a store front and is now all ready for business.

E. C. Brucker has returned from a well earned vacation. BISON.

GOOD CALL FOR AMERICAN BEAUTIES.

The 94-degree weather this week has again broken all records for September and several deaths are due to the intense heat. The extreme hot weather did not do the stock any good and chrysanthemums especially suffered considerably and in some instances were so soft that it was almost impossible to ship them. The weather on Sunday, however, was a little cooler, the mercury dropping to 80 degrees. Stock of all kinds is plentiful, with the exception of cattleyas, for which the demand is heavy. White dendrobium of fine quality are in better supply and gardenias sell up well. American Beauty roses are of very fine quality and arrive in good supply, but they are having a very good call. Killarney, White Killarney, Bride and My Maryland are in fine shape and Richmond, Radiance, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Sunburst, Melody, Prince De Bulgarie and Lady Hillingdon are also showing up well. The longer grades are selling well, but there is a great oversupply of short-stemmed stock. Asters are still arriving in large quantities, but the supply is much shorter than it has been, and gladioli are still seen in large lots everywhere. Lilies are plentiful and dahlias are also in large supply. There are plenty of greens, some exceptionally fine ferns and wild smilax arriving. Business the greater part of last week was very quiet, but trade picked up considerably Saturday and was much livelier than it has been for some time. A good frost to kill the out-door flowers would be welcome now. The supply houses are making displays and pushing their stock and this reminds one that the holidays are only a few months away. The market on September 10 is still in about the same condition although asters and gladioli are commencing to shorten up and good stock is said to be scarce. Chrysanthemums are now moving a little better and Monrovia has made its appearance. American Beauty roses are still moving well and some very choice stock is now arriving.

NOTES.

The Chicago Rose Co. has made a great many changes in its store, and the new arrangements are proving to be of great benefit. This firm will change its name after October 1 and will then do business under the name of Joseph Ziska. Mr. Ziska, the present proprietor, has been in the wire-working business in this city for more than 32 years and has one of the most complete establishments of its kind in this country.

Wietor Bros are cutting from a large crop of American Beauty roses and the stock that is now arriving at the store is very fine and the quality all that can be desired. This firm has had a good supply of American Beauties all summer, but N. J. Wietor says that the present cut is the largest his house has had this season.

The Raddlen Basket Co. is certainly having a busy season and has found it necessary to increase the force in the shipping department so as to get the orders out on time. Mrs. A. Kinder says that the firm has received over 50 inquiries the past week for catalogues and that the fall trade promises to be very large.

Theodore Vogel stole a march on his many friends on September 4 when he was quietly married to Miss Gerda Larson of this city at the home of her parents at 3139 South Park avenue. Mr. Vogel is in the employ of the Alpha Floral Co. and is one of the proprietor's best salesmen.

Chas. L. Washburn says that Bassett & Washburn's new range will be planted with carnations this season tee was given a vote of thanks for the excellent manner in which he conducted the various events during the convention at Ravinia Park. Chairman Farley of the bowling committee announced that the bowling league is in course of formation and requested all those interested to send in their names so that they may take part in the league series of games to take place this fall.

TOO HOT FOR TRADE.

With the thermometer in the nineties business is a very difficult proposition. Carnations are not so plentiful and there has been somewhat of a demand for good asters. White chrysanthemums are in but do not seem of very good quality or much in demand. Tuberoses and Harrisii lilies are selling fairly well. Schools have opened, also theaters.

THE MULLANPHY OPENING.

Owing to a great increase of business the Mullanphy Co. has had to enlarge its quarters. They now occupy stores at 3514-20 North Grand avenue. They gave a grand opening to their friends and patrons September 6-7 with music by a select band.

Flowers were given away. Many thousands of American Beauty roses were distributed and no one went away empty handed. Nathaniel Kingsley, Wm. Seeger and Martin Seeger comprise the firm. They have been in business for five years and by direct attention and politeness to their customers have secured an immense trade. Every customer, however small or large his order, is treated on the square. The boys are the largest buyers in the wholesale market and their trade is much sought after by the wholesalers as they are very prompt in all their business transactions. Their stores are the most elegant and modern in the city. Artistic fixtures and elegant surroundings give the customer a good impression. The decorations are white enamel and gold, with a very pretty fountain as you enter. A large McCray refrigerator has been installed, 13x20 feet and 12 feet high, with French plate and mirrors of French bevel glass. Over 100 lights illuminate the store and show windows. Three automobiles and two wagons make up their delivery service. The basement was beautifully decorated by R. C. Hayes who showed a beautiful mantel decoration of Boston ferns, Whitmani, asparagus and aspidistras, designed by F. W. Delaney. There were two table decorations by Alphonse Artmann of Hanover and a beautiful corsage of lily of the valley by Miss Anna Bernhart. Some beautiful design work was shown by Miss Soffie Hoehl of Berlin. All the wholesalers and quite a number of retailers paid a visit and gave their congratulations.

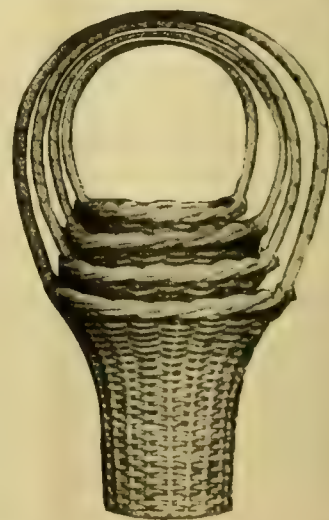

NOTES.

The new wholesale house will be opened September 16. Frank Windler and Al. Gumz are very busy getting everything in shape. Telephones are installed, flower tables are ready and all that is now needed is the flowers and the customers. These boys are hustlers and will get there.

Ostertag Bros. had the flower booth at the Coliseum "Made in St. Louis" Exhibition. They donated the flowers that are sold there for the benefit of the Post-Dispatch pure milk fund for the babies. Miss Helen Ostertag had charge of the booth and boosted sales.

BUSINESS CONTINUES DULL.

Business has been rather dull for the past two weeks. Asters and gladioli can be found in nearly every garden. Gardeners take along a few hundred asters with their vegetables and sell them as low as 10 cents per dozen. Outdoor flowers that cannot be watered every day are very poor, owing to three weeks of dry weather with the glass around 92° the greater part of the time. Roses are improving and some carnations are coming in, as are some 'mums, but there is very little call for anything just at present. Cosmos are also being shown and help to make a variety.

Moline, Ill. They were the guests of A. Anderson, superintendent at Deere's and ——— Sorensen, superintendent at Butterworth's. The members were shown through the Deere grounds and greenhouses and saw many things of interest. Mr. Anderson's seedling carnations are looking fine for this time of the year. The bedding, borders, shrubs, etc., were at their very best and the club members spent some two hours going over the place. Several large carpet bedding examples were exceptionally fine and received the praise of every one, as did also a bed of very fine geraniums.

After being served with refreshments the members were taken over the Butterworth estate. This place is laid out in the old English style with a stone fence around it and screened from the public by shrubbery, vines, trees, etc. An old-fashioned flower garden containing the flowers our mothers loved so well is one of the chief attractions. The meeting proper was held after the place had received a good inspection.

After routine matters were disposed of the club adjourned to the home of Mr. Sorensen, where a fine hot supper was in waiting.

NOTES.

Ludwig Stapp will entertain the club members at his home on the second Thursday in October. A representative of a Chicago cement firm will give an illustrated lecture on cement products and the uses of cement around the greenhouse.

R. M. C. Rohlfis, proprietor of the Alta Vista Nurseries, took in the convention and later made a trip to St. Paul and through Wisconsin. He reports a fine trip.

Miss Woltman is having her store repainted and repapered. Also a new front is being built, making her store one of the finest in town.

H. Koopman has leased the two greenhouses on North Brady street from J. W. Davis and will conduct a retail establishment.

Forber & Bird have just put in a new store front, which improves their place of business wonderfully. T. E.

TRADE BRISK AGAIN.

This city is again enjoying good business and the summer lull is a thing of the past. The visit of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught created a demand for flowers that were at times hard to get and the local wholesalers were cleaned out. The opening of the Industrial Exhibition also called for a large number of plants and flowers and with the daily banquet and the bouquets presented the work was well scattered. The warm weather has been hard on the new rose crop but they are coming along nicely. Ed. Mawley, the new red, is a great favorite, being much better than Richmond at this season. Yellow roses are having quite a run but American Beauties are the old favorite and hard to beat. Carnations are again coming in from the young plants, but are on the small side as yet. Chrysanthemums, both yellow and white, are fairly plentiful and meet with ready sale. The first violets are with us and a full line will soon be on the market.

INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.

The arrangement of the large groups was again the leading feature of the exhibition in the Horticulture Building and the displays were a credit to the exhibitors—McVittie, gardener for Sir Henry Pellat, took first prize with a collection of plants and orchids so well arranged that it would be hard to beat. Central Prison was second and Reservoir Park third, while Thos. Manton was fourth. The retailers' section was sadly neglected and the new policy of no prize money did not appeal to the usual exhibitors. H. G. Dilleuth, E. Grainger & Co., Thos. Manton and S. A. Frost were the only ones who realized that there were good advertising possibilities in the 970,000 attendance. The parks department put up good groups not for competition and great improvement was seen in the quality of the stock; the arrangement was well carried out and the new commissioner is certainly working wonders. The gladiolus section was well looked after by A. Gilchrist of West Toronto and Campbell Bros. of Simcoe, Ont. A. Gilchrist was awarded the gold medal and was also given permission by the duke to name one of the seedlings Patricia in honor of the duke's daughter.

NOTES.

Visitors: Wm. Hall and wife, Montreal; Chas. A. Smith, Lachine; H. L. Jansen, Berlin; Wm. Gammage, London; A. Fraser and son, Prescott, U. S. A.; H. B. Jones, Cleveland, O. Dan McRorie and A. J. Rossi, San Francisco, Calif.; Emil Schloss, New York.

R. Jennings has sent in some blooms of a yellow sport of Smith's Advance which were well liked. Their strength of stem make them preferable to Golden Glow.

The new houses now in course of construction are being held up for glass, which is causing considerable inconvenience. H. G. D.

TRADE AGAIN ACTIVE.

Conditions have improved lately. The weather is fine, people are coming back, schools have reopened and trade begins to be active again. As-ters have been very good this season and at times there was a glut, but they will probably be scarce from now on, for the late heavy rains have caused the "yellows" or blight to appear badly. Sweet peas in heavy and well manured ground were a failure this year, while those on light or well drained ground are all right yet. The old fashioned varieties have come out away ahead of the newer or Spencer types. The Spencer varieties made a very good showing in the beginning of the season, but after ten days' heat we got a drop in temperature during a rainy spell which made them drop the buds, from which they never recovered, while the old varieties came out fine and are in full bloom yet and of good quality. Roses are scarce but good. Carnations we have not seen for months.

CLUB MEETING.

At the monthly meeting of the Montreal Gardeners and Florists' Club there was quite an exhibition in the club rooms. W. H. Horobin exhibited a large bunch of Osmunda cinemom fiber, which many of those present never had seen before. It was sent by T. Martin from Eglinton, Ont. Another exhibit of much interest was a Ficus Repens in the seed pod. This could not be recognized by the best experts as being Ficus Repens, but the exhibitor's word goes without question. There were also some magnificent sweet peas and salpiglossis by J. Phillips from Verdun. The essay on "Roses" was postponed till the next meeting and G. A. Robinson was called upon to tell his experiences at the S. A. F. convention in Chicago. This George did and for nearly an hour the meeting was entertained in fine style. The trip to Pochmann's was an eye-opener to all. The Chicago parks left a lasting impression, especially the conservatory in Garfield and the boulevards and driveways. A party of Canadians also visited Jack Johnson, the heavyweight champion. They were well armed with a letter of introduction from J. Flanagan.

REVIVAL OF TRADE EXPECTED.

For the last ten days or two weeks the weather has been insufferably hot and all classes of business have been quiet in consequence. The flower trade is about as usual at this time of the year, funeral work causing what little activity there is, but the schools will be opening now and a brisk revival may soon be expected. The quality and quantity of flowers has been unusually good, especially in roses and asters. There has been an abundance of Harrisii lilies all the season. The new carnations are coming on nicely and will be ready for the fall demand.

NOTES.

The Joy Floral Co. are still having very good American Beauty and other roses. Their flowers of every kind are better than usual for the season. Already they have had a window display of yellow chrysanthemums, which is very early for the season. Their trade has been good throughout the summer. Thomas H. Joy did not attend the florists' convention, as he expected, but his rose grower, R. Smith, went instead. Mr. Smith found it both pleasant and instructive and returned full of enthusiasm.

McIntyre Bros. are going right ahead with their West End store and are now extending the former residence out to the street to give them more room for storage. In the rear, where they have plenty of space, they intend to build greenhouses for decorative and growing plants. They expect to be ready for business by October 1 and in the meantime they are still having a good trade from their greenhouses on the Hillsboro road.

Geny Bros. have had fine Harrisii lilies all summer and these have gone a long way in making handsome floral bunches and designs for funerals. They had fine asters but these are done now and there will be no more. Their roses are in fine condition and promise well for the winter.

The opening of our state fair brings in many visitors but as no premiums are offered of sufficient interest to the florists there will be no display by any of them, but there may be some amateur exhibits, which are generally very good.

L. Haury & Sons have had a good supply of flowers and have done a fairly good business through the season. They have had a nice lot of cheneille plants that have sold well, being very useful for window decoration.

The window displays at this time of year are confined to a few ferns and a blossom or two scattered here and there, but the heat precludes anything very elaborate or very beautiful.

WHOLESALE MARKET DEMORALIZED.

The wholesale cut flower market could not be in a more demoralized condition than it is at present. There are enormous quantities of all seasonable flowers accumulating. Much of this stock it is impossible to dispose of at any price. There are a few exceptions such as carnations and orchids. Carnations are in very light supply and while they still are short stemmed, prices realized are very fair. There are no orchids to speak of and any price asked is obtained. Several dealers are now receiving white chrysanthemums. The yellow chrysanthemum "Golden Glow" which has been much in evidence, meets with very poor sales. The new crops of roses are improving in quality each day but as they are still so very short stemmed they still have to be disposed of in bulk. The quality of American Beauties is very good and while it is true a few of the very best of these sell at very fair prices the balance have to be disposed of with the general shipments of roses at very low prices. There is the usual supply of valley and lilies. These perhaps are selling as well as anything.

NOTES.

Chairman Chas. H. Totty of the National Flower Show committee is a daily visitor, working out the details of the great National Flower Show. The final schedule is in course of preparation and will be sent out shortly. A great interest is being taken in the official programme and at this early date several large blocks of space have been reserved on the main and second floors for trade exhibits.

Joseph Trepel, who has several successful flower stores in Brooklyn, has added one more to the list at 805 Manhattan avenue, near the Greenpoint Ferry. The opening took place Saturday on which occasion he provided an elaborate spread in the evening. Many of the prominent wholesalers were present.

The well known Bridgeman seed house, for the past six years controlled by the Rickards Bros., is now closed. Al. Rickards has resumed his old position with Stumpp & Walters and Wm. C. Rickards will make his headquarters with Young & Nugent, where a seed and bulb department will be maintained.

It is expected that there will be a large party of visitors from New York attending the meeting of the New York State Federation of Floral Clubs in the Horticultural Building at Syracuse, New York, Thursday, September 12, at the time of the state fair.

During the week Sidney Hoffman of Boston was a very heavy buyer in the market, buying up more than 3,000 Beauties as well as enormous quantities of other flowers which he used on the occasion of the opening of a department store in Boston.

The Bedford Flower Co. of Bedford Hills, N. Y., has commenced to ship roses of very good quality to Moore, Hentz & Nash. This place is now in splendid shape, and the outlook is for very good results the coming season.

Wm. P. Ford is now all settled in the new store at 107 W. Twenty-eighth street. Mr. Ford has gone to a great deal of expense in making this one of the best equipped wholesale businesses in the city.

The New York Flower Auction Co. will open for business Tuesday, September 10, 1912, at 146-148 W. Twenty-eighth street. John P. Cleary, well known in plant circles, will be the auctioneer.

Wm. B. Marshall & Co. have taken larger quarters at 126 W. Twenty-third street, where they will have ample room to take care of their business.

A. L. Young & Co. are receiving a full line of the newer roses from J. A. Budlong & Sons, Auburn, R. I.

President Richard Vincent, Jr., of the S. A. F., attended the meeting of the club Monday, September 9.

Recent visitors: Sidney Hoffman, Boston, Mass.; J. Michelson, Chicago, Ill.; A. Wienhoeber, Chicago, Ill.

Henry C. Reidel has returned from an extensive trip made through Canada.

San Francisco.

TRADE OUTLOOK FAVORABLE.

Business continues to improve and a good fall trade seems assured. Flowering plants are still scarce; a few small primulas are about all that is offered. Bostons have sold quite well and there have been desultory sales of asparagus, adiantum and Kentias. Mums and violets are becoming more plentiful daily; orchids are very scarce, not by any means enough to fill orders; valley has advanced in price; liliun roseum is plentiful and the stock excellent, a limited amount of giganteum being available. With the exception of American Beauties, roses are improving in quality but more so in price. Ulrich Bruner leads. Carnations are getting better; a few asters and sweet peas are coming in yet, but sultans, coreopsis and other outdoor stuff are plentiful. Prevailing prices are: American Beauties and Ulrich Bruner, $1.50 a dozen for best; Killarneys, Richmond, Maryland and a few Kaiserin, 50 cents a dozen, some for less; carnations average 20 cents a dozen, lilies $1.50 a dozen stems, a few specials bringing $2; mums are $1.50 a dozen for the best grade, down to 75 cents; valleys have risen to 50 cents a dozen, and violets move readily at 75 cents a dozen bunches.

ANNUAL PICNIC.

Last Sunday the flower shops were all closed to enable the florists and their help to attend the annual picnic of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society which was held in Scheutzen Park near San Rafael. The members with their families and florist friends congregated to the number of 400 and proceeded to thoroughly enjoy the outing. A brass band furnished music in the spacious pavilion for the dancers who thronged the floor the greater part of the day. On the racetrack a varied program of athletic events was carried out. Races for the young and old, races for the lean and fat, girls' races, shoe races and last but not least important, the tug-of-war between the florists and growers. That the rivalry was genuine was shown by the stubborn pull put up by both sides. For fully five minutes after the signal was flashed neither side gained an inch, then the growers with a concerted effort gained 8 inches; for several minutes the florists gamely held their own until, contesting every inch, they were finally pulled over the mark by the brawny growers amidst the shouting of the excited onlookers. Frank D. Pelicano captained the Florist team and the Growers team was directed by P. Ferrari. The day was ideal and not an accident occurred to mar the pleasure of the happy and harmonious party of picnickers. To Vincent Matraia much credit is given for the perfection of the arrangements which added so materially to the pleasure of all.

NOTES.

The windows of J. B. Boland Co. attracted much attention last week with a display of select Ulrich Bruner and White Killarney roses arranged with excellent taste in large baskets decorated with appropriate ribbon. The store force is augmented by the return of Walter Champreux who left some months ago on account of poor health. Walter comes back entirely recuperated.

Among other mums, Henry Maier is sending in some nice Wm. Duckham. Having a large stock of well grown plants to cut from, this Burlingame nursery will be an important factor in the supplying of mums to the local market.

H. Plath has just arrived from the convention of the S. A. F. and in view of the encouraging action taken by that body in regard to 1915, all are particularly anxious to hear his report to the local society. T.

Albany, N. Y.

CLUB MEETING.

Members of the Albany Florists' club to the number of about forty were present at the September meeting which was held on the evening of the fifth at the establishment of the president, F. A. Danker, 744 Central avenue. A partial report on the clam-bake held at the Abbey, Glenmont, August 24, was submitted. The report showed that a balance of $2 remained after the payment of all expenses with a number of tickets still out and to be reported upon. It was decided on account of the lateness of the season not to take part this year in entering exhibits at the Glenmont fair, but to make an effort next year in that direction. One proposal was presented to be acted upon at the October meeting. The club accepted the invitation of James H. Snyder, secretary of the Violet Growers' Mutual Protective Association, to pay him a visit at Rhinebeck on the afternoon of September 19 and the entertainment committee was instructed to look after the arrangements.

Lord & Burnham, New York, are building a conservatory 20 feet by 50 feet in the rear of Whittle Brothers' store, 52 North Pearl street. The conservatory will be an adjunct to the store and a decided attraction. The firm is engaged also in making some extensive alterations to the front and also the interior. When finished this fall the place will be one of the finest retail establishments in the state.

John T. Travison, florist, 337 South Pearl street, was recently declared the winner in a voting contest held by the Times-Union, a local newspaper, in connection with a fair held for the benefit of St. Anthony's Italian church. Mr. Travison received 150,000 votes. The award brings with it a free trip to Europe and return.

William C. Gloeckner, retail florist, 97 State street, has been elected president of the Boosters' Club, made up of members of the Albany Chamber of Commerce who attended the convention of the Atlantic Deeper Waterway Association at New London, Conn. The club of about 100 went to advocate strongly the deepening of the upper Hudson. It was through Mr. Gloeckner's energy and persistence that enough members were obtained to make a delegation of 100 to attend the convention which was held September 4-5. The Boosters at their organization presented Mr. Gloeckner with a pair of gold cuff buttons, diamond studded. R. D.

Wheeling, W. Va.

Among the market florists, John Hellstern is a veteran and always shows a variety of stock. He has a considerable glass area at Spring Valley.

Several Ohio florists also have market stands here, among them being G. L. Greiner of Bridgeport, A. Keker & Sons of Martin's Ferry and A. Starbuck of Colerain.

The sympathy of the trade is with Mrs. Louis Laupp whose father was buried on September 7.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubs, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, and painted green. These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established, and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When in Philadelphia Be Sure to Look Us Up

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your convenience, both going and coming. Then you will see our Palms of all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place), and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to our Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

CHICAGO.—Prices on the Board of Trade September 11, for grass seed were noted as follows: Timothy, $3.75 to $4.75 per 100 pounds.

ROGER BROS., Alpena, Mich., say they are having an unusual amount of wet weather, which has made it very difficult to gather peas in good condition.

TEXAS onion growers who buy Teneriffe seed are required to place their orders now for 1913 with their association manager and advance 25 cents per pound.

WATERLOO, IA.—The Galloway Bros.-
Bowman Co. has purchased property adjoining that it already owns and will erect a three-story cement seed store house.

NORTHERN France growers of Lilium candidum report from one-seventh to one-tenth of a crop. The bulbs have matured so poorly that some growers have declined to lift them.

CHAMPAIGN, ILL.—The Champaign
Seed Co. is erecting a new two-story building, 22x100 feet. The first floor will be occupied by the retail and the second by the wholesale department.

LESTER L. MORSE, who spent the day in Chicago September 6, returning from Europe, confirms reports of serious rains all over Europe and expects sweet peas will sell at double last year's prices.

China states that a person in his district invites American dealers in seeds and bulbs to correspond with him in regard to establishing agency connections in the United States for the sale of Chinese lily (narcissus) bulbs.—Daily

THE issue of August 30 of the Tribune of La Crosse, Wis., contains an interesting article on the John A. Salzer Seed Co. of that place. The Salzer firm is one of the country's most enterprising seed houses and the buildings occupy a solid block. The company enjoys a large export as well as domestic trade.

Gladioli in Holland.

Regarding the sale of gladioli in Holland a prominent grower there writes: "Lately there has been in Holland a sort of mania for new gladioli.
It did not, however, last very long.
Some considerable lots of young stock were offered at auction sales and prices went down and we fear the gladiolus rage is over now."

California Seed Growers' Association, Inc.

J. W. Edmundson and M. W. Williams announce the formation of the California Seed Growers' Association, Inc., with J. W. Edmundson as vice-president and manager and M. W.
Williams as secretary and treasurer.
The company will engage in the growing of garden seeds for wholesale dealers and will be open for business at their offices in the First National Bank building, San Jose, Calif., after Sep-

Rickards Brothers Fail.

William C. Rickards, Jr., and Alfred J. Rickards, doing business under the firm name of Bridgeman's Seed Warehouse, Rickards Bros., proprietors, at 37 East Nineteenth street, New York, have filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities $21,194 and assets $1,381, consisting of accounts $1,134 and bulbs in storage $247. The stock was sold by a city marshal September 3 and on September 4 the fixtures were sold under foreclosure of a chattel mortgage held by Mary
A. Hurlmann for $4,000. There are 130 creditors. The business was established in 1840 by A. Bridgeman & Son and Rickards Bros. succeeded to it in August, 1906.

Nebraska Seed Crops.

Waterloo, September 7.—We have a few shortages and failures but expect to fill our vine seed orders nearly 100 per cent, with moderate surplus yields on some standard kinds. We estimate the total yield of cucumber and melons, with Nebraska growers, at 50 to 60 per cent of last year's crop, the acreage being smaller and the average yield lighter. Squash and pumpkin acreage equal to last season but crops set light and will give but moderate returns. There is a good deal of late corn in the country and we need all of this month without killing frost. Weather warm and unsettled, with frequent showers.

Fremont, September 7.—We have not received complete reports from our growers for the month of August, but the conditions are generally quite favorable and we look for fair crops of corn if frost holds off long enough for it to become fully matured. We also expect to make good deliveries of most varieties of vine seeds, but there are a few kinds of melons, pumpkin and squash which may be a little short.

E.

Peas and Beans.

Grand Rapids, Mich., September 5.—
While we have had very good success with our cultivated crops of peas in the west, grown on irrigated land, our crops elsewhere have turned out very poorly. This is especially true of our crops in Ontario. Crops in Michigan have turned out very badly, almost as bad as last year. In the state of Wisconsin our crops are a little better, but they are not coming up to the early estimates.

As regards bean crops, those on heavy lands are stunted in growth of vine and are still in a green state.
We have had entirely too much rain for the past six weeks and a long spell of dry, warm weather is necessary to mature the crop. Should we have an early frost it would be very disastrous to the bean crop. Our crops on light soil are looking better, but they too need sunshine and considerable of it. Under these conditions we can hardly look for more than two-thirds of a crop, perhaps not so good, while on the other hand if we should have continued wet weather and early frosts, there is no telling what damage it will do. We can therefore only hope for continued dry weather.
B.

Connecticut Seed Crops.

Orange, September 7.—Practically all seed crops are now harvested, except corn, with about the following results:
Beet is a fine crop, deliveries from 50 to 100 per cent, acreage much larger than ever before in Connecticut, but demand exceedingly active and practically all seed previously contracted for. Carrot medium to fair crop only;
parsnip good; turnip and kale fair only, practically all gone on contract orders, little or no surplus.

Onion, under a reduced acreage is very good. This crop not yet threshed so that until seed is in bags, we cannot estimate just what present crop will show, but it should show from 75 to 100 per cent.

Sweet corn is about two weeks later than usual and cared splendidly. With favorable fall we believe we shall have one of the best crops for several years.
W.

NICHOLSON, PA.—Arthur Maynard, who recently purchased the greenhouse owned by E. Day, has removed the glass to his place in High street.

ham Flower Association held its annual show August 30-31. City Park Superintendent Gibson was the judge.

Boddington's "Quality"

Christmas=Flowering Sweet Peas

WE ARE SUPER-HEADQUARTERS

All true stocks of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas will be scarce this season. Some varieties are a total failure owing to the exceptional season in California this Spring. Our advice to intending planters is to order at once.

Mr. William Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., the great sweet pea specialist sows our seed almost exclusively. Our stocks of Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas have stood the test for years, and we can refer you to the largest growers of this increasingly popular flower, as to the trueness and quality of our seed, earliness of blooming period and strength and habit of plants.

The following varieties are the "best by test" and include Zvolanek's and our own introductions, grown for seed from selected stocks by the leading California grower and specialist in Sweet Peas.

Our output last year was nearly 3,000 lbs. Few kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality, germination and trueness to type.

We Can Make Immediate Delivery of the Following:

BODDINGTON'S EXTRA-EARLY CHRISTMAS WHITE SNOWBIRD. An exceptionally early Sweet Pea for indoor flowering—will bloom six weeks after sowing. Color clear white, upon long stems; habit fairly dwarf and of exceptionally free-flowering qualities. Without doubt the finest early white for indoor planting. We sell one grower in Pennsylvania 35 lbs. of this variety every year; name on application. Oz. 25 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. 75 cts., $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$1.25, lb. \$2.00.

BODDINGTON'S CHRISTMAS PINK. This is the earliest and most profitable and useful Sweet Pea in cultivation, as by sowing the seed under glass in latter part of August, flowers can be cut from Thanksgiving on during the Winter months. Oz. 15 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. 50 cts., $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. 85 cts., lb. \$1.50.

BODDINGTON'S CHRISTMAS WHITE. A companion to our Christmas Pink. Just as free and profuse a bloomer. Oz. 15 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. 50 cts., $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. 85 cts., lb. \$1.50.

ANGELINO. Self pink; new variety. Oz. 50 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. \$1.50, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$2.75, lb. \$4.50.

CANARY. Similar to the above, but flowers of an exceptionally good yellow. Oz. 35 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. \$1.00, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$1.75, lb. \$3.00.

CHRISTMAS METEOR. Scarlet; fine open red flower. Oz. 35 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. \$1.00, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$1.50, lb. \$2.50.

CHRISTMAS STELLA MORSE. Creamy buff standard, wing slightly tinged with pink. Oz. 50 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. \$1.50, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$2.75, lb. \$4.50.

FLAMINGO. Color scarlet; free-flowering and early. Oz. 50 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. \$1.50, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$2.75, lb. \$5.00.

FLORENCE DENZER. Pure white. Oz. 25 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. 75 cts., $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$1.25, lb. \$2.00.

TRADE HAS BETTER TONE.

While there is no improvement of note in trade, yet there is a better tone to business since the beginning of September, and there is an undercurrent that makes one think that things are just starting to boom. Everyone seems to think business will be all right no matter who is elected. The crest of the late crop of asters is now here, the wholesalers receiving them by the wagonload. Gladioli are as plentiful as ever but move out better. Lilies are rather scarce and command good prices. Everyone is cutting smiles and there is no demand for any of it.

NOTES.

Barber, the well known buyer of the Jones-Russell Co., Cleveland, O., spent a day in Pittsburg on his way to New York, and while here E. J. McCallum proposed that he get on the back seat of his motorcycle and visit his canoe club, twelve miles up the river. Everything was all right until a rain storm made the streets so slippery that near Aspinwall they took a spill and landed in a mud hole, which made a new suit necessary for Mr. Barber.

Frank Schoen of the Gasser Co., Cleveland, O., visited here September 5. Mr. Schoen was for years with A. M. Murdoch of this city, and as he was always very popular with the local trade he was warmly welcomed.

George McCallum is spending a week at F. H. Westhoff's range of glass, absorbing some of the principles of growing, which he figures will be of great benefit in the selling end.

A. W. Smith is bothered considerably this summer with the hay fever, and states that he will never be found in Pittsburg during the summer months again.

John Sicely of the McCallum Co. is a very proud man since August 27, when he became the father of an eight pound boy.

The Blind Floral Co. is cutting a nice lot of lilies, hitting it just right, as nearly everyone is not cutting any at present.

W. A. Clark has returned from his summer cottage, but says he cannot get down to work right, until the rush starts.

Fred Butz of New Castle was a recent visitor here, coming to town to arrange for a new ice box.

The Florists' Club met September 3, but owing to the warm weather there were very few present. J.

BALTIMORE, MD.—The annual meeting of the Maryland Horticultural Society will be held here November 18-23. The exhibition in connection with the meeting will take all the space in the sixty thousand square feet of the Fifth Regiment Armory, and the show promises to be one of the best in the country.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa., President; J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore., Vice-President; John Hall, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y. Thirty-eighth annual convention to be held at Portland, Ore., June, 1913.

The obituary of the late Charles L. Yates, whose sudden death occurred at his home in Rochester, N. Y., September 5, will be found elsewhere in this issue.

NURSERYMEN and others who desire a permit to import nursery stock under the new quarantine law, which goes into effect October 1, should address the Federal Horticultural Board, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Nursery Quarantine Law Penalties.

The recent nursery stock quarantine law, which goes into effect October 1, provides punishment for violators by a fine not exceeding $500 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the court.

The Drastic Nursery Bill.

The Department of Agriculture certainly put over the nursery interests of this country the most drastic, unfair and un-American law which its jesuitic legal department has yet conceived. The American merchant nurseryman, never yet accused of dishonesty or vicious attempts at introduction of dangerous stock, now can not purchase and import any stock without first obtaining a permit from the secretary of agriculture and under such at present unknown conditions as that politician sees fit to impose. Second, he can not receive a single package of foreign goods at any port unless he immediately notifies the secretary of agriculture at Washington or his agent. Third, he is subject to both fine and imprisonment, and consequent disfranchisement, in case of any violation of the law whether done knowingly or not—that is the police regulation law, under which a man may be convicted if the violation be done by himself or his agent. This whole law assumes that the nursery industry is made up of individuals so disposed to violate the law that they must operate always under government control and drastic regulations such as are required to govern habitual law-breaking classes. The seedsmen have fought this attempt of the government and certain congressmen to discredit their industry for four years and have insisted the seed law must show that violations if charged be proven to be "knowingly" done and that imprisonment be not imposed upon the citizen engaged in known respectable vocations, maintaining that fines were ample protection for the public.

Packing Materials.

At the recent convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, held at Boston, Mass., June 12-14, considerable discussion was evoked by a question taken from the question box, reading: "What are the best materials to use for packing, whether moss or excelsior? Is there any third material that is used extensively?"

"It depends upon the kind of stock you are shipping," said Harlan P. Kelsey. "For some kinds of shipments charcoal and sawdust are extensively used. Where shipments may be six weeks to two months in transit, there is nothing like dry sphagnum moss. Mr. Wilson showed us some little evergreen trees of the Arnold Arboretum yesterday, pulled off the rocks at Russian Thibet, that were ten weeks in transit, packed in fairly dry sphagnum moss. Too wet moss cannot be used, for the reason that the stock will heat, or start to grow, and will not remain dormant."

"Is your moss baled when you get it?" asked J. M. Pitkin.

"We do not get it baled," replied Mr. Kelsey. "We pull it out of the swamp. I understand the commercial sphagnum moss is usually taken out and made into bales. It is necessary to use fairly fresh sphagnum, not over two years old, and I think that is the best packing material we have at the present time."

"If Mr. Kelsey had to buy moss by the carload, instead of pulling it out of the swamp, he would advise using something cheaper," said Mr. Meehan. "With small evergreens, moss is preferable, but it is too expensive to use for shrubs. We use shingle tow and baled shavings, soaking it thoroughly so as to retain the moisture, and it will carry shipments in good condition from the Atlantic to the Pacific."

"I think the American nurseryman does the rottenest packing of any in the world," was Mr. Kelsey's reply. "If he had to ship abroad, to Japan and Russia, for instance, it would cure an American nurseryman of poor packing. The foreigners know how to pack, and they do pack well. It pays, and I think the good packers are going to get the business in the future."

"I think a great deal of trouble comes from not having the packing material between the bundles of trees or shrubs and the sides and ends of boxes, where protection is most needed," said Mr. Pitkin.

"We had a shipment packed in shingle tow which, through an error, was on the road nine weeks, and yet was found to be in fine condition when opened," W. C. Reed said.

"We buy our moss in carload lots from the Wisconsin swamps and pile it up where the snow will accumulate on it during the winter, and the melting of the snow on this moss puts it in fine shape for spring packing," said T. E. Cashman. "We use moss in storing and packing small plants, but in packing regular stock for shipping we use the shingle shavings, and mix with that for fall packing the planer shavings. This will often carry six to eight weeks without losing moisture. I believe that wood packing is preferable for shipping in this country. Moss, when piled up, will dry out to a depth of 6 to 8 inches, while shingle shavings under the same conditions will not dry out more than one-half inch in depth."

"Where you have rhododendrons, or azaleas, or that class of stock, they are better shipped in moss," replied Mr. Kelsey. "Evergreen should be packed damp, the roots kept separate with cross pieces and the tops ventilated. Keep the roots of ornamental stock moist and the tops dry."

Very Important to All Importers of Nursery Stock and All Foreign Shippers of Nursery Stock to the United States.

By the new law, Public Document No. 275, known as An Act to Regulate the Importation of Nursery Stock and other Plants and Plant Products, Establish and Maintain a Quarantine District for Plant Diseases and Insect Pests, the following section is of great importance to American importers and foreign shippers:

"Sec. 3. No person shall import or offer for entry into the United States any nursery stock unless the case, box, package, crate, bale or bundle thereof shall be plainly and correctly marked to show the general nature and quantity of the contents, the country and locality where same was grown, the name and address of the shipper, owner, or person shipping or forwarding the same, and the name and address of the Consignee."

The following method of classification has been adopted by the United States Department of Agriculture for the markings of cases, boxes, packages, crates, bales, or bundles referred to in the above section. In the table given below it will be noted that for such labeling the quantity in the boxes or packages must be inserted at the left hand and the approximate age or height at the right hand.

WHICH DO YOU WANT?

CAST IRON BOILERS—FOOL ECONOMY (false ratings, fuel waste, danger of breakdowns, dealers' profits), OR

KROESCHELL BOILERS—FUEL ECONOMY (honest ratings, safety, quick heat, no boiler pits, no dealers' profits.)

KROESCHELL BROS. CO., 452 W. Erie Street,

WHAT THE USERS SAY

— ABOUT —

KROESCHELL BOILERS

Cast Iron Boiler Cracked in Two Years.

We have a No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler. It takes care of 7000 sq. ft. of glass; it would take care of twice that amount.

I first had a new cast iron boiler which lasted two years, when it cracked to pieces. The second was a second-hand boiler.

I consider your boiler the best paying investment I ever made.

You can refer anyone to us.

MARYSVILLE FLORAL CO., Marysville, Ohio.

Cast Iron Cannot Be Compared with Kroeschell.

We bought a No. 2 Boiler in 1904. It takes care of 5000 sq. ft. of glass, and we could add 2000 more. We are very well satisfied. We used a cast iron boiler before we had yours. It cannot be compared with the Kroeschell Boiler. Your boiler has certainly a great capacity for heating water.

HALL & ROBINSON, Montreal, Canada.

Kroeschell Better than Cast Iron.

I bought a No. 6 boiler in 1903. It has now 10,000 sq. ft. of glass, and we could add 3300 more. This is ahead of five or six cast iron boilers which I have used. I saved $50 per season on the coal bill.

M. C. WARD, Quincy, Mass.

I bought a No. 4 boiler in 1902. Has 7000 sq. ft. of glass; could add 200 more. It is perfectly satisfactory. Would keep only Kroeschell Boiler. Would not have a cast iron boiler for a gift.

GEO. ENGEL, Xenia, Ohio.

Mr. Engel has increased his Plant and ordered another No. 4 Kroeschell.

No Greenhouse Equals The U-Bar

This is the U-Bar, the bar that makes U-Bar Greenhouses the Famous Greenhouses They Are.

At a glance that's apparent. The reason is, the U-Bar. To put it another way; you can put a gold plated harness on a heavy draft horse and hitch him to a swell little runabout—but with all his trappings he ambles along draft horse fashion just the same. So by the same token, putting a curved cave on a greenhouse does not make it a U-Bar curved cave house. It only looks something like it from the outside. A U-Bar house is distinctly different and it's the U-Bar that makes it so. Send for a catalogue and find out just why.

See that pile of high grade pig iron—that's one reason why Burnhams last the way they do last.

High Grade Pig Iron Goes Into the Making of Burnham Boilers---No Low Grade Scrap

That's why Burnham's are so tough.

That's why they wear so long.

Scrap iron is any old iron—high grade, low grade, any old grade, mixed together.

It might make a good boiler, and then again a mighty poor one—you never can tell.

The kind of boiler you are willing to put your money in must be made out of high grade iron—tough iron straight from the blast furnaces—iron that has never been used for anything before. Every ton of pig iron that goes into Burnham boilers is first tested for its purity, its toughness.

But this pile is quite another story—scrap iron. Good for some purposes, but we refuse to put a pound of it in our boilers.

These tests cost us a lot of money, but they do away with guess work.

You can depend on Burnhams because they are made right—made of the right iron—made by the right people.

The Early Advertisement Gets There

Here's a World Beater Record Our Dubble Lite Sash Made.

TWO sash frames were planted with lettuce on same day last February—one was covered with our standard single light sash—the other with our new improved Dubble Lite. The single light sash were matted and shuttered carefully—the others were never covered.

The mercury went down below zero several times.

In forty-nine days the single light lettuce averaged ten inches across. The Dubble Lite averaged fourteen inches.

Want to see the photographs?

We have always believed there was something to be said in favor of double light sash, but the results from our improved Dubble Lite kind have so far exceeded other kinds that we are now heartily recommending them to all our customers.

There's only twenty-five cents difference between the price of the unglazed single and Dubble Lite—and oh! what a difference in the work and the results they give!

All orders filled same day received.

Peter Henderson Puts in Hitchings Steam Heating.

Not being satisfied with fifty-one weeks of Troubles, our Trouble Man used some of his vacation days to prow around among the greenhouse men. One day he dropped in at the Peter Henderson range, Jersey City, and found enough trouble to hold him for that day.

As a solution of the trouble, they gave The Trouble Man an order to rip out the old heating system from all the thirty houses, and install an entirely new Hitchings steam system.

Just five days after the order was placed, our men and materials were on the job, and the work going merrily on.

Just now we are handling all our heating jobs just that promptly. But in a short time, the rush will be on, and someone will, just as sure as preaching, have to wait.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Fall Propagation.

There are many of the plants used for bedding purposes that are better propagated in the fall, for cuttings are more readily obtained, root easily and allow time for the growing of good stock. Ivy geraniums, to have fine plants in the spring, are much better propagated at that time. Vincas for the spring sales propagated in September make fine plants by the first of May. The long shoots can be cut up to two eyes each and they will root in three or four weeks, then potted in 2½-inch pots and kept cool until February, when they should be potted into 4-inch pots and grown along the sides of the beds or benches. Abutilons should be handled in a similar manner. The tender tips should be used for the cutting and these should be kept well watered and shaded until roots are formed, when they can be potted and kept cool until towards spring. The pelargoniums that were cut back and dried off last month should now be made into cuttings and should be taken and placed in the cutting bench. There are also many plants that the stock should be looked out for at this time and a few plants lifted and housed before frost. Many growers prefer to raise their salvias from cuttings and in this case a few plants can be potted and grown on. Any extra good double petunias should be lifted. Pyrethrum or feverfew, coleus and the other soft wooded plants should be selected and potted that they may become established before cool weather.

Sweet Peas.

The early sown sweet peas will soon need some support, and the plan most generally adopted by growers with peas inside is to pass strings around the plants fastened to stakes at each end of the row. If the rows are lengthwise of the bench stakes to which the strings may be fastened will have to be arranged about every ten feet. As soon as the plants have attained a height of six inches the first string should be tied on and strings should be added every six to eight inches as these plants grow taller. The plants must be kept growing straight throughout their culture, so they must have strings quite close together for their twining arms to catch upon, and if when the plants are in bloom they are not kept tied up a large number of the flowers will have crooked stems. Care must yet be taken with the watering and until the plants show active growth they should receive but little water, being kept on the dry side. If allowed to be too wet, stem rot will result and the plant will die. If sweet peas are to follow the early chrysanthemums the seed can now be sown. Three or four seeds in a 4-inch pot will be right for this time, for they will have to grow in the pots about six weeks, the middle of November being about as early as the chrysanthemums can be cleaned out and the beds made ready. Careful watering will be the watchword for the young seeds and do not thin out too early. Wait until the plants are in good growing condition, when they can be thinned out to one plant in a pot.

Cyclamens.

In order to have nice large plants of cyclamens for another year, now is the time to sow the seed. This can be deferred until later and the seed planted at any time until the first of the year, yet it is much better to start them early and obtain a nice well-foliaged plant full of bloom in a 6-inch or 7-inch pot than a smaller plant with but few blooms and flowers, which is sure to be the result with the later sown seed. Soak the seed for about 24 hours in tepid water and place the receptacle in a warm place, and plant in flats about one-half to three-quarters of an inch apart and there will be need for but little further labor until later in the winter. Be sure and have a light porous soil with a good proportion of leaf mold. The plants that are to be in bloom for Christmas should now be making good growth and be in the blooming pots. Any buds that show up at this time should be removed. Give the plants plenty of room and leave them from now on in full sunlight and in a cool, well-ventilated house. A sharp lookout for aphids must be kept up and regular fumigation continued. The plants for late winter and spring blooming can be kept out in the frames as long as safe from frost and then placed in cool quarters until time to give them more heat, which will depend upon the time they are wanted in bloom.

Pansies.

The pansies for early spring trade should be placed in the frames that they may become established before freezing weather commences. Make the soil good and rich. It is the plants with large flowers in the spring that find the quick sales and these cannot be obtained in poor soil. Set the plants about five inches apart and water well after planting. Keep those of a kind together and plant all the mixed lots adjoining. There is more time wasted in the retail selling of pansies than any other flower, traveling back and forth over a mixed bed trying to pick out a nice assortment. This is especially so with some customers and in setting out the plants try to prevent this as much as possible. When freezing weather comes cover the frames with sashes which will prevent the snow from lying too heavy upon the plants and also much freezing and thawing. If frozen for months and covered with sash no harm will be done, but if a warm spell should come on, the sashes should be raised to allow ventilation.

Anemones and Ranunculus.

The grower desirous of having something out of the ordinary in early spring should grow a few anemones and ranunculus. The bulbs are inexpensive and will help to increase the variety at a time when the flower users are looking for something that they have not seen all winter. No doubt failure in starting these bulbs has caused many growers to give up the attempt of their culture, but if once understood they are as easily grown as any other of the bulbous flowers. The bulbs should be planted in flats close together and covered with about half an inch of soil and then placed under a bench in a cool house. Under no circumstances water the soil or place them where water will drip upon them, for if they become wet they will surely rot. Place papers over the flats to prevent evaporation and in about three weeks the bulbs will throw out roots and the tops start. They can then be placed in pans or in the benches and grown as any other bulbs are handled.

DALLAS, TEX.—The Richmond Floral Co. has filed articles of incorporation and let contracts for the building of five greenhouses, 27x200 feet, to be completed in the next sixty days. The incorporators are A. L. Miller, A. M. Vaughan and J. W. Crotty, of this city.

COLUMBUS, O.—Alleging that the defendant broke a contract in opening a flower shop, Charles R. Wheeler, administrator of the estate of the late William Graff, has brought suit for damages against Samuel Graff, a brother. Mr. Wheeler charges that Samuel Graff sold his interest in the business to his brother four years ago with the agreement that he would not engage in similar business in this city. After William Graff's death in February Samuel is alleged to have opened a shop on East Gay street. Mr. Wheeler is conducting the William Graff store for the widow.

Prices of Floral Work.

We happened to be in a party all of whom were connected with the florist's business in one way or another, not long ago, and one mentioned that a certain dealer had arranged a wreath for which he had charged $50. Another of the party then said, "Well, I call that robbery, for it is not possible to put $50 worth of flowers in a design of that size." We immediately thought that the majority of those in the trade placed the value of floral work altogether too much on the cost of the material of which it was composed, and not upon the value of the ability of the one who arranged the flowers. The majority of florists, if they have a wreath to make for $10, and then another for $20, think that the second must simply be twice as large or contain flowers of twice the value. There is a certain class of trade that is carried away with size, but there are also many people who much prefer a beautiful arrangement of nice flowers, and are perfectly willing to pay a good price for artistic work.

We are certainly of the opinion that with a great many who consider themselves flower designers, that the only difference they make in their work is the quantity of material that they use, but there are also many who have that ability of placing an artistic touch to every flower piece that they arrange, and such a one should be able to obtain a remunerative value for his or her ability. We do not have to look far in other trades to see examples of this. We are only too glad to purchase a book by an able author and pay $1.50 or $2.00 for it, still we may buy a book that is much larger and perhaps as interesting for 50 cents or even 25 cents, but we are willing to pay for the ability and reputation of the author. A certain tailor may charge $35. or $50. for a suit of clothes, yet a suit of equally good material can be purchased for two-thirds or one-half that price at another store, but this cheaper suit will never have the fit or style of the more expensive one, and those that can afford it are willing to pay the difference. In no trade is the ability of the designer appreciated so much as in the trimming of hats. In a case in court that figured very prominently in one of the larger cities, the press made much comment of a $250 hat, yet it was admitted before the case closed that there was not more than $25 worth of material in the creation of the milliner. So it is with flowers, when they are artistically arranged, the designer of ability, especially when he knows he can produce a better article than is generally made has a perfect right, the same as the artist that can paint a beautiful landscape, or the tailor or milliner, to charge a good price for his work, and it cannot be considered in any sense robbery. We never hear this in other trades, and it does not help the florist business to continually hear such comments made upon rival tradesmen.

Tumbler Baskets.

These are not baskets that tumble, but are small baskets known by this name because they are made either with or are just large enough to hold, an ordinary tumbler or small tin cup. They have come into vogue the past year and are quite popular among the trade for advertising purposes, being used for window displays or to fill in large quantities for special or week-end sales. They cost from $8 to $15 per hundred. Glasses suitable for them can be purchased in almost any china shop at from $2 to $3 per hundred. When handled in a small way, such as a few in the window or on the end of the counter, filled with short roses or a combination of cheap flowers, to attract the customer who does not want to spend much, they are finding a place in many stores. They are seen in a variety of shapes and colors and made of more or less expensive materials. In filling, the glass is filled with water, the flowers gathered into a bunch and stuck in, or the glass is filled with sphagnum and then with water and the little basket made up. For quick selling with the same kind and amount of flowers in each they are quickly gotten together and a window full of them is sure to attract attention, with good results. A small bow of ribbon is tied on each handle, which adds to their attractiveness. The tumbler feature which insures the flowers being always in the water, makes for the success of the transaction, as otherwise the flowers would hardly keep over night in a warm room. Many large flower baskets are now supplied with zinc linings. In these the moss is made as wet as possible without letting the water spill. K.

Forcing Lilacs.

Felix & Dykhuis, well known horticulturists of Boskoop, Holland, have prepared the following interesting and instructive article on how to force lilacs:

One of the most popular shrubs for forcing is the lilac. Their large trusses of fragrant flowers are universally admired and the erect way they carry their blooms give them a stateliness of form and noble appearance which is not easily rivalled.

Before a lilac can be forced into bloom it wants a period of rest. The plants when grown in pots go into a dormant state about the latter part of October. A well-grown lilac differs from a poorly grown one not always by its larger number or thickness of its branches. Both plants may look almost alike. Sometimes the shape and appearance are in favor of the badly grown one. The chief value lies in the way they are treated during the summer. They should be grown in such a way that they go into the dormant state early and yet have stored sufficient nourishment to feed a full sized flower. It is easy to grow a nice looking lilac, but hard to grow an easy flowering one. If the roots are allowed to grow over the pots they make a strong growth and a field of lilacs grown in this way looks very healthy and fine as a rule, but their value for forcing is very doubtful.

When the lilac plant goes into a dormant state in October nature has not yet fulfilled its task. Although the superficial observer sees nothing uncommon on the buds, inside of them there goes on a number of chemical processes that makes them ready for the coming spring. Not before the buds are fully prepared a full sized flower can be produced. The winter, with its frost and snow, when all trees look apparently dead or asleep, nature continues to care for her children and prepares and develops them to objects of beauty which are admired by all of us. This secret, hidden process is of great importance for the coming flower and must be considered when we think of anticipating the rules of nature.

Before the plants should be forced into flower it is necessary that the period of rest is sufficiently advanced. That's why a plant forced in January or February forces easier and gives better results than when forced in December. To shorten this period of rest, freezing, hot water treatment and etherizing is applied with good results. Plants that have been exposed to frost have their period of rest shortened. For this reason it is advisable to heel in the plants outside so they are exposed to frost. Hot water treatment is best applied in a basin of water of 80 to 95° Fahrenheit. Only the buds and shoots need to be treated, the rootballs are left out. This treatment takes about 6 to 10 hours. If the temperature of the water is lower (70-80° Fahrenheit) 10 to 12 hours will be necessary. Plants that have been exposed to frost need of forced plants. When lilacs flower outdoors they do not make the large trusses and flowers as when properly forced.

When the lilacs are taken into the hothouse they should at once be given at least 80 to 90° Fahrenheit. If it is not possible to give them as much heat from the greenhouse pipes and if there are other plants in the same house that do not require so much heat, we would advise to place the lilacs in one end of the house and have this part separated from the other part with boards, glass or canvas. Then to bring the heat of the division to the necessary temperature it is advisable to place inside a stove and on top of this a vessel of water. The shorter treatment. Etherizing is done in an airtight box in which ether is placed and vaporized. This treatment takes about 24 hours.

Although it is rather difficult to give definite rules for forcing lilacs, it must for the greatest part, be left to the forcer to understand the exact needs of the plant and his requirements as to watering, airing and heating. Lilacs can be had in bloom at Christmas but the success with them is not very sure when they are not previously exposed to one of the three ways to shorten its rest period. The later the plants are brought inside the better. They force easier and make better flowers and trusses. Lilacs want a high temperature and to let them come slow, or as some florists, sometimes say, "almost natural" is entirely wrong. They should be forced. The meaning of that word clearly expresses itself. To let them come slow, is not forcing, and the results are not the same as can be expected heat of a stove is very favorable to lilac forcing. It makes the air dry where the boilers make it damp. Stove heat is very recommendable. One has to take care to spray abundantly 3 or 4 times a day through the branches and buds and also to have the rootballs in the pots sufficiently wet. On account of this spraying the surface of the soil will look rather wet, but this is deceitful, for the lower parts of the balls are sometimes too dry. On the other hand the balls should not be too wet. The plants do not consume much water in the first 8 days and if too wet the roots will get rotten. Here it is where the forcer should use his own judgment a great deal. He should know how much or how little has to be given. The buds have to be constantly kept moist. Within 10 to 12 days the buds break open and are about of a finger length. This is the time to lessen the heat until the trusses have attained their full size, which takes about 2½ weeks. Also the spraying should methodically be lessened. When the flowers begin to expand, a very thin spray once or twice a day will be sufficient. If the flowers are open the spraying should be stopped. Spraying on the open trusses is ruinous to the blooms. The last 8 or 10 days the lilacs can get sufficient heat from the greenhouse pipes and it is only with dark, wet weather that the stove needs to be used. During forcing it is well to give them once in a while a little airing.

The variety Charles Dix has a very fine lavender color but if forced wrong turns into a dirty white, which is neither wanted nor desirable. To insure this variety its beautiful color it is necessary to place the plants cooler after the second week of forcing and in a place where it is possible to give them fresh air from the outside through the ventilation. This should not be done when it freezes. Charles Dix, when flowering outdoors, is always blue. Even those plants which do not show good color in forcing get the right color outside.

Mary Legrave, single white, is the easiest to force, consequently the earliest. After this variety comes Charles Dix, single lavender, and Souvenir de Louis Spath, single purple, Mad. Lemoine, double white and President Grevy, double lavender. Experiments in forcing a number of other varieties, some of which are beautiful out of doors, generally proved to be of no value for forcing. Neither did they make enough buds when grown in pots.

Fame.

William Shakespeare was a dramatist some 400 years ago. Today a namesake of his is a jobbing gardener in a London suburb.

One day, as W. S., the latter, was chewing up the grass with his lawn mower, his employer for the day, a newcomer asked him:

"By the way, gardener, I have never heard your surname. What is it?"

"Shakespeare, sir," was the reply; "And my first name's William."

A broad smile stole over the other's face.

"What! William Shakespeare?" he exclaimed jestingly. "I seem to have heard that name before."

"Dare say ye have sir," replied the gardener casually; "I've worked about these parts for a good twenty year or more."

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Revised Classification.

The classification of the many forms of chrysanthemums does not greatly interest most of the growers, and yet if we speak or write of them intelligently there must be some way to impart a lucid idea of their character. A committee selected from the floral committee of the National Chrysanthemum Society of England specially for the purpose of revising the classification has made the following unanimous report.

SECTION I—INCURVED.

The distinguishing characteristics of this section are the globular form and regular outline of the blooms. The flower should be as nearly a globe as possible, as depth is an important point in estimating its value. The florets ought to be smooth, rounded, or somewhat pointed at the tip, of sufficient length to form a graceful curve, and be regularly arranged. A hollow centre or prominent eye are serious defects, as also a roughness in the blooms, unevenness of outline and a want of freshness in the outer florets.

The section is now sub-divided into: Sub-section (a)—Large-flowered varieties. Examples, Naomah and Mary Donellan.

Sub-section (b)—Medium and small-flowered varieties. Examples, Major Bonnaffon and Arline.

SECTION II—JAPANESE.

Japanese varieties include a wide range of form, size and color. Their florets may be either flat, fluted, quilled or tubulated, of varying length, from short straight spreading florets to long, drooping, twisted or irregularly incurved ones. In breadth the florets may vary greatly, ranging from those an inch in width to others scarcely broader than a stout thread. Some also either have the tips of the florets cupped, hollowed, curved or reflexed.

(a) Large-flowered varieties. Examples, C. J. Salter and M. Loiseau-Rousseau. (b) Medium and small-flowered. Examples, Mrs. Roots and Le Pactole.

Sub-section 3, Hairy Japanese. Example, F. J. Taggart.

SECTION III—ANEMONES.

The distinctive characteristics of anemone varieties are their high neatly formed centers and regularly arranged ray florets. There are two distinct sets of florets, one quilled and forming the center or disc, and the other flat and more or less horizontally arranged, forming the border or ray. The flowers may have the ray or guard florets broad or twisted, or narrow and forming a fringe, but should be so regularly arranged as to form a circle round the center. The latter should be a hemispheroidal disc, with no trace of hollowness and every floret in its place.

(a) Large-flowered, i. e., with a diameter of 3 inches and upwards. Examples, Mrs. F. Gordon, Dexter and Surprise.

(b) Small-flowered, i. e., with a diameter of less than 3 inches. Examples, Ada Sweet and Lida Thomas.

SECTION IV—POMPONS.

Pompon varieties have blooms that may be somewhat flat or nearly globular, very neat and compact, formed of short, flat, fluted or quilled florets, regularly spreading or erect, the florets of each bloom being of one character.

(a) Large-flowered, i. e., with a diameter of 2 inches and upwards. Examples, Diana and Julie Lagravere.

(b) Small-flowered, i. e., with a diameter of less than 2 inches. Examples, Minta and Zenobia.

SECTION V—SINGLES.

Single varieties may be of any size and form; but the florets, whether short and rigid or long and drooping, should be arranged sufficiently close together to form a regular fringe.

Sub-section 2, Incurved Japanese.

Sub-section 1—Varieties with one or two rows of ray florets. (a) Large-flowered, i. e., with a diameter of 3 inches and upwards. Examples, Catherine Livingstone and Arlee. (b) Medium and small-flowered, i. e., with a diameter of less than 3 inches. Examples, Anna and Little Barbee.

Sub-section 2—Varieties with three to five rows of ray florets. (a) Large-flowered, i. e., with a diameter of 3 inches and upwards. Examples, Hilda Wells and Merstham Jewel. (b) Medium and small flowered, i. e., with a diameter of less than 3 inches. Examples, Mary Richardson and F. W. Smith.

Sub-section 3—Anemone-centered varieties. Example, Kathleen May.

SECTION VI—SPIDERY, PLUMED AND FEATHERY.

Varieties in this section have small or medium-sized flowers of eccentric shape, but most frequently of a light and graceful character; some have thread-like florets and some have broader florets, but they may be either erect, horizontal or drooping and of various shapes and colors. Examples, Mrs. W. Filkins and King of Plumes.

Many of the varieties given in the original report, as examples of the types, are little known in this country and for the sake of comprehensiveness we have substituted in some instances, other kinds, with which the American growers are more familiar. This revision has not as yet been officially approved by the Chrysanthemum Society of America, but should be considered at its next meeting, as a uniform basis the world over from which to make such deductions, has many advantages.

ELMER D. SMITH.

Busy Season at Hand.

This is the time when the chrysanthemum grower is the man with many jobs on his hands that require his daily attention in the care of his plants. The different varieties continue to form their buds, which means that the taking of the buds should still be one of the leading features of the routine work. All buds should be taken as they appear from this date on. The early and second early varieties ought to be finished up so far as taking the buds is concerned and this holds good with a number of the midseason commercial varieties. The later midseason and late varieties will bud up steadily right along and should receive attention as soon as large enough to handle properly. After the disbudding any side shoots that may have been overlooked will push out rapidly and very soon begin to sap the strength from the plants. To guard against this it is a good policy to go over the beds and examine the plants, removing any side growths that have been left.

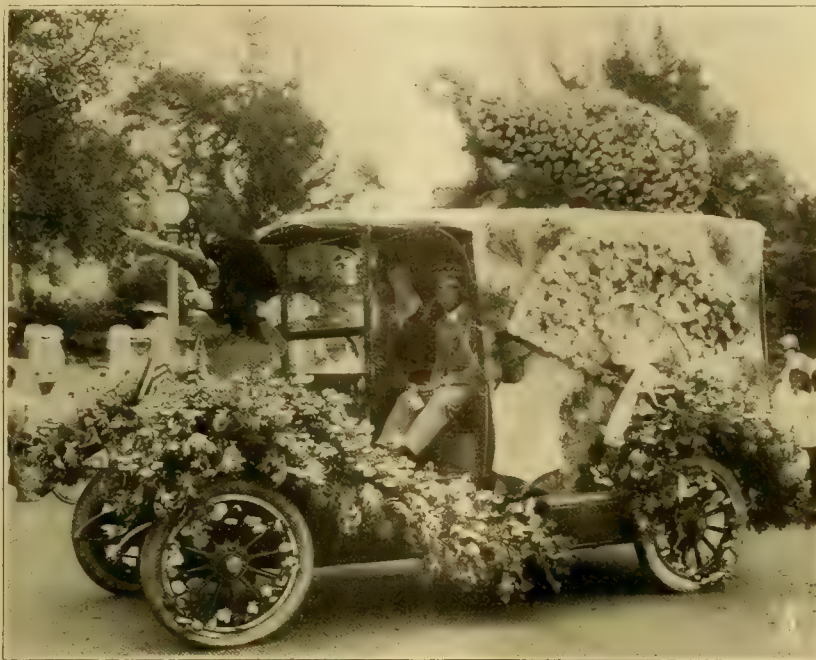

Another very important feature that would seem to be hardly necessary to mention here is to properly secure the plants so that the stems will be straight and stiff. They may have been tied up a time or two earlier in the season, but there are very few varieties that will not need a going over again directly after the buds are set. To prolong this work a week or ten days will make the job so much harder owing to the ripening of the wood. After the buds are taken the question of feeding with liquid manure suggests itself. The extent to which this should be carried depends on the object in view for the blooms. If intended for exhibition and the plants have already been treated liberally, the condition of the foliage should be a guide for further feeding. If the foliage is thick and brittle it is an indication the plants are getting more than enough and there should be a gradual let-up in the strength and quantity.

Weather conditions must also be taken into consideration in the feeding of the plants. During very hot weather such as we are getting this first week in September when the temperature is hovering around the 93-95 degree mark daily very little feeding should be done. To guard against any overforcing of the plants, as soon as the weather cools off a bit the feeding can again be gradually increased, provided the condition of the plants

Scales for Judging.

At the close of the Western exhibitions last year there were some misgivings or criticisms expressed or implied regarding the awards. To substantiate such a version of the judges' findings, the scale for judging exhibition varieties was cited as conclusive evidence. If my memory serves me right, the scales for judging commercial and exhibition blooms were arranged more for the use of the committee in considering new sports and will permit. A strong healthy plant will use up lots of stimulation to the benefit of the size and finish of its blooms. On the other hand, all the feeding in the world will not put a massive bloom on a weak plant. The plants for commercial cut blooms that were planted early and have now attained a good strength will also stand liberal feeding once in every week or ten days and there is not anything better for this class of stock than liquid cow manure (using one-half bushel of manure to a barrel of water and allowing it to stand a day or two before applying).

The stock that has attained sufficient strength to produce blooms of the required commercial size can be given a surface dressing of pulverized sheep manure for the roots to feed on, scattering the material over the surface of the beds, then watering it, using judgment not to water too heavily. Also do not allow the soil to become too wet directly after putting on the mulch. Every chrysanthemum grower knows the importance of keeping his plants clear of aphids at this stage of the development when the buds are beginning to expand because it means a great loss to allow the aphids to get the upper hand of the flowers. Now that the plants are heavily clothed with foliage less syringing is necessary and the afternoon syringing can be done away with entirely, so that any watering or syringing that has to be done is finished up by noon.

C. W. JOHNSON.

seedlings, than to be used literally in judging the various types that enter into such competitions. Be this as it may neither of the scales are adequate to do justice to all concerned, when commercial and exhibition types enter into the contest. The judge is bound to exercise his prerogative and favor the type which appeals to him from his point of view. If he be a commercial grower, the symmetrical blooms, with erect stems and fine foliage, are bound to meet his approval, and on the other hand the exhibition grower will consider size as the dominant factor.

It is true we do not grow chrysanthemums for the foliage—our chief object is the bloom—and yet we must not overlook the fact that when considering the intrinsic value, stem and foliage are very important features. Those with poor foliage and weak stems are of little value even though the flowers are of exceptional size. It may be impossible to arrange a scale that will be more practical, but to start the ball a-rolling and get an expression from others interested, we suggest the following, to be used in judging vases containing 6 or more blooms each.

Form and fullness.....	20
Size	30
Stem and foliage.....	30

Total 100

In such a scale form and fullness are considered together, and are equal to the points allotted to color. Stem and foliage equals size, and of the 100 points 70 refer to the qualities of the bloom and the remainder to stem and foliage.

THE ROSE.

Young Stock.

Young stock planted in June should now be filling the soil with roots and during September the roots will work up towards the surface. If when cultivating one should notice the little white feeders it is time to cease cultivating. These surface feeders should never be disturbed. The next thing to do at this stage is to get together some old rotten stable manure, break it up finely and scatter lightly over the beds. This will keep the soil in prime condition and prevent baking, and is not to be considered as a feeding medium. As the days grow shorter one should syringe as early in the morning as possible and be sure the plants are well dried at night. September is the time one usually gets a dose of mildew spot and a little air-slaked lime sprinkled around the walks and the base of the plants, especially Richmond and American Beauties, during cloudy or wet weather may ward off a dose of black spot.

As stated in a previous article, the heating plant should be in readiness at a moment's notice to put into operation. Only a week ago the temperature with us dropped to 50° for two nights. Our boiler was started and sulphur applied to the pipes and no check of any kind has been noticed. Had we been unable to have the steam circulating the houses which had reached a temperature of 100° easily for two weeks would have dropped to 50° in a few hours and in all probability there would have been, to say the least, a slight check resulting from the great change of temperature. This is what we must be prepared for.

The work inside now will vary but if the plants are growing vigorously there will be much tying to do from now on. Do not run one tie around the whole plant and bunch the foliage together but take each growth separately and tie the branches in such a manner that there will be a good circulation of air through the plants as well as between the rows each way. While tying one can cut off a piece of worthless wood here and there or often there are found a few spidery leaves at the base of the young plants carried over from the pots. It is very seldom one can syringe close enough to the pots to keep off all red spiders and these little pests hang on the old foliage which can now be safely removed and destroyed.

Disbudding should now be at its height and it isn't a matter of how much one can do of this kind of work in a day as how much can be done intelligently. Perhaps it may be advisable to state that usually from plants that are carried over and pruned hard in August that in about four weeks or a little longer they will have made a growth and set buds. After the disbudding of the crop the next should appear in about five weeks or a little later. Between October 1 and November 15, about six weeks between crops, or from one cut to another, although we do not advocate cropping on a small range, it is the rule to crop one or two houses on the larger ranges and great care is taken to have good yields at Christmas. The little fellows (to be in the game) must have a few flowers at all times and will fare better by continuous planting, cutting throughout the season, yet trying to have the heaviest cutting at Christmas.

Now is the time to start right by letting a few of the best flowers come in here and there, if the plants are strong enough, and to avoid heavy cutting during the mum season. Don't be afraid to cut back quite hard on the young Richmond plants and to thin out all the weak tinged growths regularly. Keep the Richmond open and make an effort to build up some good stocky wood in all of the young stock. This can only be accomplished by cutting back quite hard when disbudding and cutting back to good firm eyes. At odd times one should prepare a good lot of cow manure and turn it frequently, keeping it as dry as possible until used a little later. The buds will require frequent light top dressing and during the fall and winter months one takes quite a risk in using heavy green manure for mulching. One should have some good soil prepared in the fall and stored away and a supply of manure in good handling condition on hand to be prepared to meet the requirements of the plants at all times without worry and extra labor and expense.

If the soil has been properly composted the plants will require very little feeding through the fall with liquids as long as there are the light dressings to help a little. Overfeeding is as bad as underfeeding, perhaps worse, and at all times avoid the heavy mulch. The ventilating will require special attention from now on and one should not rush the sashes up their full limit the first thing these mornings nor wait until the last minute before quitting at night to pull them down. By all means leave four or five inches of air on at night, a little less on cool nights if there is steam circulating. There is seldom any occasion to close a house down tight (except to fumigate) until late in November.

New York Florists' Club Meeting.

One of the most interesting and enthusiastic meetings of this club took place Monday evening, September 9. There was an attendance of over one hundred. Frank H. Traendly stated that he would make a detailed report of the transportation committee at the next meeting. Philip F. Kessler reported for his committee that the outing had been a grand success and the receipts just paid the expenses, and there would be no deficit to be charged to the club. This committee was discharged with thanks.

I. S. Hendrickson, chairman of the exhibition committee, succeeded in having a very fine display of gladioli, chrysanthemums and roses, and also reported that the October meeting would be dahlia night. John Lange was elected, and George Asmus, Victor Morgan, Clarence Slinn, James Newsham, John Moore and Robert Maenner were proposed for membership.

J. B. Nugent brought up the subject of the steamship companies which refused to give receipts for flowers delivered to passengers on shipboard. He demanded that the club take some action toward remedying this evil. J. B. Nugent, Herman Warendorff and Robert Kohne were appointed a committee for this purpose.

W. R. Pierson gave a detailed report for the committee on publicity, of which he is chairman. The report was received and the committee discharged with thanks. To comply with the resolutions introduced and passed at the Chicago convention of the S. A. F., the following were appointed to the local committee on publicity: I. S. Hendrickson, Herman Warendorff, C. C. Trepel, John Young, Charles Schenck, C. A. Dards, Walter Sheridan, A. L. Miller, Alex. McConnell, Alfred Bunyard, L. W. C. Tuthill, A. T. De La Mare, Leonard Barron, F. R. Pierson, C. H. Totty, W. R. Pierson, M. C. Ebel, H. A. Bunyard, W. E. Marshall and John B. Nugent.

The following committees on resolutions were appointed: On the death of W. R. Smith—P. O'Mara, W. A. Manda, C. B. Weathered. On the death of Mrs. A. S. Burns—P. J. Smith, John Donaldson and Philip Kessler. On the death of Alexander Holt—J. Austin Shaw, R. E. Berry and W. C. Rickards, Jr. A local committee of three will be appointed later to take charge of the subscriptions for the Smith memorial fund. This committee will work in harmony with the committee appointed by the S. A. F. at Chicago.

Secretary John Young of the Society of American Florists gave a detailed report of the trade exhibition held at the time of the convention in Chicago. Mr. Young expressed his appreciation of the kind treatment received and spoke highly of the help given him by the people of Chicago and also of the exhibitors, who had made the work of the trade superintendent so pleasant, stating that he had been especially fortunate in having George Asmus of the advisory committee at his back at all times, getting the benefit of the very best experience that Mr. Asmus had obtained while managing so many flower shows in the Coliseum. It was through the efforts of Mr. Asmus that the Coliseum people permitted the exhibitors to get into the building on Thursday preceding the convention, and giving them until Tuesday following the convention to remove their exhibits. There is no question but that Mr. Asmus is a past master in managing flower shows or exhibitions of any kind.

(30) roses, new seedling, vote of thanks (exhibitor does not wish it scored at this time); 1 vase new hardy aster, lavender color ("Climax"), highly commended.

Exhibited by E. S. Miller, Wading River, N. Y., collection of gladioli, thanks of the club. The sample of No. 88 is far superior to the Augusta exhibited.

TREASURER'S REPORT.

The semi-annual report from January 1 to June 30 of Treasurer William C. Rickards, Jr., showed resources of $5,500.62 and disbursements of $1,062.70, leaving a balance of $4,237.92. The supplementary report from June 30 to Sept. 9 shows a balance of $4,302.92.

DAHLIA SHOW AT TACOMA, WASH., SEPTEMBER 6-7.

President Richard Vincent, Jr., made a most interesting address on convention matters in general and gave an account of the work he had accomplished thus far as president. An ovation greeted John K. M. L. Farquhar when he was introduced to the meeting. In an enthusiastic speech Mr. Farquhar spoke of the coming International Flower Show, promising his support in every way and could already see that the show would be an unparalleled success. The only question that might arise, he said, was the question of sufficient room to house the exhibits, which will be shown in the trade exhibition.

W. A. Manda gave a most interesting account of the International Flower Show held in London last spring. Patrick O'Mara also gave an interesting talk on convention matters and moved a vote of thanks to the Chicago Florists' Club and also the Ladies' Auxiliary Society of Chicago.

Seldom at any meeting of the club has there been so much enthusiasm shown as at this meeting, and there can be no doubt in the mind of any one present about the success of the International Flower Show. It might well be called an International Flower Show meeting.

THE AWARDS.

The committee of awards made the following report:

Exhibited by John Lewis Childs—collection of gladioli (Fire King No. 6), honorable mention.

Exhibited by Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J.—1 vase (12) chrysanthemums ("Smith's Advance"), honorable mention; collection of hardy outdoor grown early flowering chrysanthemums, honorable mention; 1 vase Tacoma Dahlia Show.

The second annual Dahlia Show of the Tacoma Dahlia Society was held in that city, September 6-7. The exhibition was a complete success, a great number and variety of flowers being displayed. The building where the show was held was thronged each day and it is expected that in future this exhibition will be quite as popular as the city's famous rose shows. Officers of the society elected for the year are W. H. Reed, president; Mrs. Belle Freeman, first vice-president; Mrs. W. S. Cutler, second vice-president; Miss Marguerite McConiki, secretary; Geo. M. Lee, treasurer.

OBITUARY.

David A. Spanner.

David A. Spanner, a brother of Max Spanner, a well known florist of Toledo, O., met death under distressing circumstances near Toledo, September 15. He was a passenger in an automobile with Fred M. Meir and wife of Indianapolis, Ind., when the machine skidded and turned over in a ditch. Before enough men could reach the scene to right the machine young Spanner and Mrs. Meir, who were pinned down were drowned in one foot of water. Mr. Spanner was a promising young man, having graduated from the Central High school, Cleveland, a year ago and later attended the Case School, working during vacations for his brother Max Spanner. His parents, Herman Spanner and wife, live in Cleveland. He was 22 years old.

TRADE PICKING UP.

Since September trade has been somewhat brisker and the stores are taking on a more business-like appearance. Weddings have been quite numerous lately; many of the florists say they have filled more wedding orders during the last two weeks than they did all through June. There has also been a large amount of funeral work. All stock is in good condition at present, Kaiserins and My Marylands being the favorites in roses. Carnations are very good for this season. Gladioli, asters and dahlias are being cut in large quantities. The aster supply is much better than it was expected it would be earlier in the season.

NOTES.

Out of ten entries made at the state fair at Syracuse by H. P. Neun, nine took first prize. His cash prizes amounted to over $100.

Lars Goronson, formerly of this city, but now with the Boston Cut Flower Co., was in town last week.

Jewish New Year proved to be quite a busy day among the florists.

C. W. JOHNSON,
Secretary Souvenir Committee.

New York State Floral Clubs Federation.

The meeting of this society was held in Commissioner Driscoll's rooms in the Cornell Building, at the fair grounds, Syracuse, Thursday, September 12, at 4 p. m. Those present were: President W. F. Kasting, Buffalo; Vice-President E. R. Fry, Rochester; Secretary John Young, New York; Treasurer W. A. Adams, Buffalo; Frank R. Pierson, E. W. Neubrand, Charles Vick, H. Youell, Felix Albers, George B. Hart, Fred Thomann, Com. C. J. Hewson, Robert Bard, F. W. Banister, Wm. Wind, Julius Thomann, W. Norris, R. C. Scott, W. E. Day, Dr. E. A. Bates, George Arnold, Arthur Cowee, I. Hendrickson.

The secretary's report showed the great interest being taken in the state federation. The membership at present consists of the New York Florists' Club, Buffalo Florists' Club, Rochester Florists' Association, Tarrytown Horticultural Society, Nassau Co. Horticultural Society, Tuxedo Horticultural Society, Syracuse Rose Society, Syracuse Florists' Association, Albany Florists' Club, New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association.

The Treasurer's report showed the payment of the assessments from these societies and that there had been no bill for expenditures up to date. Frank R. Pierson gave a detailed report for the committee on legislation and offered important recommendations as to the proper method of securing the appropriation for greenhouses for experimental work in floriculture at Cornell University. Prof. A. C. Beal addressed the meeting on the subject, after which the report was approved. The New York State Vegetable Growers' Association will be invited to join the society in the endeavor to secure the appropriation of $50,000 for the purpose mentioned. George E. Thorp made an important recommendation as to the proper method to be adopted to bring about a state appropriation for a horticultural building on the fair grounds in Syracuse, and the subject was handled in good style by President Kasting. Dr. Erl A. Bates, George Thorp, Arthur Cowee, Charles Vick and Treasurer Adams.

Edmund Van Alstyne, director of the Farmers Institute, New York Department of Agriculture asked permission to address the meeting, promising the support of the Western New York Horticultural Society and the Western Pomological Association in the endeavor to get this new building. A committee of nine will be appointed (three from each society), from the State Federation of Floral Clubs, the Western New York Horticultural Society and the State Vegetable Growers' Association to take this matter up with the State Fair Commission. Frank R. Pierson, Dr. Erl A. Bates and Charles Vick were appointed by President Kasting to represent the Federation of Floral Clubs. Charles H. Vick, superintendent of the exhibition of plants and flowers at the fair and assistant superintendent Wm. E. Day were accorded a standing vote of thanks for the very successful manner in which all arrangements for the exhibition had been carried out.

Wallace R. Pierson of Cromwell, Conn., gave a stirring address on "Publicity." This subject so ably presented by Mr. Pierson, was received with enthusiasm by all present, everyone realizing that it was an important move in the right direction. Upon Mr. Cowee's motion the secretary was instructed to write the fair commission that it was the sense of this meeting that the children be admitted free to have their competition in plants and flowers on Monday as had been done in previous years. This permission it was understood had been denied them on Monday of this year's fair. The same officers as at present were elected to serve another year and President Kasting appointed the same committee that already were serving. The meeting adjourned to meet "farmers' week" at the Department of Agriculture, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

J. H. PEPPER,

Chairman Publicity Committee.

Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, Ill.

The Poehlmann Bros. Co. needs no introduction to our readers as far as the growing of cut flowers is concerned, for its mammoth greenhouse establishment at Morton Grove, Ill., is recognized as one of the largest establishments of the kind in the world. Few of our readers, however, are aware of the fact that this firm has recently ventured into the plant business and will be surprised to learn that it has 60,000 square feet of glass devoted to the growing of decorative stock of all kinds. The plant houses are located in Plant A and are in charge of C. G. Anderson, who was formerly with the Geo. Wittbold Co., of Chicago, and J. F. Wilcox & Sons, of Council Bluffs, Ia. The houses are filled with excellent stock and a large importation of palms, azaleas, rambler roses and hydrangeas is expected to arrive at any moment. Ferns are a specialty, from the small plants which are grown by the tens of thousands for fern dishes to the specimen Cibotium Schiedeii, and an immense quantity of Boston, Whitmani and Roosevelt ferns are in splendid condition. In begonias, Glory of Cincinnati is grown exclusively and 3,000 plants of this variety are very promising. Primulas, poinsettias and cyclamens are also grown extensively and araucarias of fine growth and crotons of many varieties, and are all in the best possible condition. Pandanus Veitchii is to be seen and we noticed that Asparagus Hatcheri is being largely grown. There is a large stock of dracaenas on hand and Phoenix Roebeleni, Kentia Belmoreana and K. Forsteriana will arrive soon. Christmas peppers, ficuses and ivies are included in the list of plants and it is the firm's intention to add bedding stock in the near future.

Percy Jones, Chicago.

The firm of Percy Jones is well known to a great many cut flower buyers and is one of the most progressive wholesale commission houses in Chicago. Percy Jones, the founder of the firm, started in the wholesale commission cut flower business in September, 1903, at 56 East Randolph street, when he rented a small table in the Flower Growers' Market. When he died in September, 1909, he had the largest wholesale business of the seventeen firms then occupying the floor rented by the Chicago Flower Growers' Co. After his death H. Van Gelder, the present manager, assumed charge and one year later rented and used the entire floor space, 5,500 square feet, for the Percy Jones business, that was formerly occupied by the Chicago Flower Growers' Co. The firm prospered under his able management and untiring work and in 1911 a full line of supplies was added. Mr. Van Gelder is also president of the firm and L. M. Jones is secretary and treasurer. The outlook in both the cut flower and supply departments is very encouraging and preparations have been made for a large fall trade.

Uhrichsville, O.

The Denison Floral Co., of which Jesse Denison is manager, has its new range, comprising 45,000 square feet of glass, nearly completed. Carnation planting is now being pushed, the roses having been planted before the glass was on. The most that now remains to be done is to finish piping the carnation houses. Mr. Denison, who has himself been active in the work of construction, says he will have everything in good shape and be ready for cold weather. This company has also a smaller range at New Philadelphia, which makes their total glass area over 50,000 square feet.

Mrs. J. G. Crite has a nice retail store here, and gives it her personal attention. She also has greenhouses and a garden adjoining her residence, where a fine display of plants may be seen.

NECESSARY for SUCCESS

"We all have more or less trouble in keeping the greenhouse stock clean during the winter months, and I doubt whether there are two firms who make use of the same methods to do it. But I am sure we all agree that the only right way is to prevent, if at all possible, the appearance of the green or black aphid, and not wait before spraying or fumigating until things are alive all around us. Therefore, if you have made up your mind to keep your carnations, roses and other stock clean this winter, get busy now. Order from your supply house a good stock of the preparation you are in the habit of using, and take it down from the shelf every ten days and fumigate or spray. Bugs or no bugs, for the last two years we have used Nicotine in different strengths, and while this has been most effective, Aphine is just as much so, and the beauty of it is its cheapness. I don't care what you may grow, if you spray your houses every ten days according to directions on the can you are going to have clean stock. Start now. It's your only chance. Keep the houses clean from now on and you have easy sailing all through winter instead of a continuous fight to keep the insects down."

GOOD ROSES SCARCE.

There is a very brisk demand for American Beauty roses and fancy stock sells up very quickly at good prices. Roses in general are not overplentiful for the cool weather of the past week has caused the supply to shorten up considerably and the opening of the week found the market well sold up. The market began to stiffen on September 10 and on the following day there was a general scurrying around to find stock, especially American Beauty roses, to fill orders. Gladioli are having a better call and some very fine Augusta, America and Mrs. Francis King are to be had. Asters are shortening up very fast and what stock is coming in is not up to the standard and the season is nearly over. Dahlias, however, are fine and in great assortment. Show, fancy, decorative, cactus and pompons are all to be had and they brighten up their surroundings wherever placed. Chrysanthemums are beginning to be more plentiful and Golden Glow, Monrovia, Smith's Advance and October Frost are now arriving. The quality of the flowers is fine and the demand is increasing. Cattleya Gigas and C. Gaskelliana are in great demand and very scarce. Dendrobium Formosum are arriving in larger quantities and the supply is equal to the demand. Lily of the valley is scarce and lilies are not overplentiful. Gardenias are fine and sell up quickly. The coarser outside stock is still arriving but the shipments are much smaller and the dealers are patiently awaiting the end. Violets, or what were supposed to be violets, made their appearance this week, but are practically worthless and not fit for sale. Greens of all kinds are plentiful and ferns are unusually fine this season.

NOTES.

Wietor Bros. are still cutting American Beauty roses in large quantities and are also well supplied with choice carnations. The American Beauties are especially fine and are having a good call. The chrysanthemum stock in the greenhouses is in excellent shape and a bumper crop is expected. This firm has certainly had a very good year and had a large cut of roses at all times.

Harry Blewitt and Miss Eva Timme stole a march on their many friends last Saturday, September 14, when they were quietly married at the Timme home in Irving Park. The young couple are well known to the trade and have its best wishes for a pleasant voyage on the sea of matrimony.

W. E. Lynch, with A. L. Vaughan & Co., was called to Northampton, Mass., on September 10 by the death of his sister who died very suddenly. Mr. Lynch visited several of the Rheinbeck violet growers on his return and made arrangements for his firm's fall supply.

The Chicago Florists' Club bowling league will open its season at Bensingers' alleys, with four teams, on Tuesday, September 24. Ernest Farley has already received quite a number of prizes, but the list is not yet ready for publication.

The M. Winandy Co., manufacturers, are installing a new bench and heating system in M. Zimmer's new greenhouse at California and Pratt avenues.

The Chicago Carnation Co. is right in crop with Golden Glow chrysanthemums and some magnificent blooms are now to be had at this store.

John Degnan says that the wholesale trade at Winterson's seed store is opening up fine and that business in general is very satisfactory.

A. L. Randall is having an enjoyable time on his farm in Michigan and is assisting one of his men in grading a part of the land. Holding the scraper evidently agrees with him, for he is in fine health and enjoys three big meals a day. Frank Johnson is supplying the A. L. Randall Co.'s customers with some exceptionally fine red ruscus and a bunch of the bright decorative stock is seen prominently displayed on his desk in the office.

Mrs. Horton, of the Bassett & Washburn force, returned on September 15 from an unpleasant lake trip in the steamer Georgia to Sturgeon Bay, Wis. E. E. Pieser says that he had a good rest while he was in Toronto, Canada, and that was about all for it rained nearly all the time he was there. Mrs. Pieser, who was with him at Toronto, passed through the city on September 16, enroute to Winnipeg.

The Geo. Wittbold Co. is changing its heating system at its Edgebrook greenhouses and the work is now well under way. The rose crops look very promising and some fine Maryland, Killarney and White Killarney are now being consigned to Percy Jones.

The Cook County Florists' Association bowling league opened its season Wednesday, September 18, at Bessinger's West Randolph street alleys. Allie Zech says that in addition to $150 in cash, the following prizes have been received: Individual championship cup, donated by the association; six umbrellas for the six high average men, donated by Zech & Mann; four stick pins, for high average man of each team, donated by John Michelsen; watch fob for high single game, donated by the A. L. Randall Co.; fountain pen for high individual, three game average, donated by the Chicago Carnation Co.

Lubliner & Trinz, the East Randolph street florists, filled a large number of orders for the Johnson funeral which occurred this week. They had Jack Johnson's personal order for a casket cover of solid lily of the valley and Jack Curley's order for a large standing wreath of Mrs. Aaron Ward roses. The negro champion's sparring partners also left orders with this firm for a number of costly sprays and the force had all it could do to get the work out on time.

Fred Hoerber visited Hoerber Bros.' greenhouses at Des Plaines last week and upon his return says that crops were never in better condition and that the outlook is fine for a large supply of stock for fall. Harry Mannheim says that trade at the store is exceptionally brisk and that the stock is sold immediately upon its arrival.

Peter Reinberg is fortunate in having a large crop of American Beauty roses and is experiencing no trouble in disposing of the stock at the store. The cut of other roses is large and some choice Killarney and White Killarney are now arriving.

The Foley Manufacturing Co. is furnishing the material for two iron frame houses, 33.9x108.8 feet, for the Idlewild Greenhouse of Memphis, Tenn. P. J. Foley says that his firm has just received a large order for a private range from Velie, the automobile king, of Moline, Ill.

Vaughan's Seed Store has been displaying a full line of all fall bulbs, both for the wholesale and their retail counters. A good frost would stimulate the local planting demand for this stock.

The Chicago Floral Co., West Randolph street, is building up a good business and is enjoying a brisk retail trade.

SCHOOL OPENINGS HELP.

The first part of the week was very warm, but the latter part cooled off considerably. Asters are decreasing and, carnations are increasing. This week there are many store openings. The opening of educational institutions and the Jewish holidays help out a little. There has been a good steady demand for American Beauty roses. Smilax and all greens are selling well.

NOTES.

Ernest Strehle, superintendent of parks, is a busy man. He has a fine display of lilies at Lafayette Park. He visits the different parks frequently and gives suggestions as to their keeping in order and to produce the best display. He is very proud of the sunken garden at the rear of the Carnegie Library, Fourteenth and Locust streets.

The Florists' Club held its monthly meeting September 12. The feature was the installation of the officers, about thirty-five members present. Walter Weber was elected a member. F. H. Weber, the president. Chas. Young, the vice-president, and Will Osseck, Wm. C. Smith and E. W. Guy, of Belleville, Ill., were the hosts.

Miss L. Doussard has opened up a pretty little flower store in East St. Louis, at 3091-92 Collinsville avenue, with a nice stock of plants and all cut flowers in season. This is Miss Doussard's first venture and she is doing very well. She is seen daily in the St. Louis market.

Alex. Siegel is home, looking fine. He made his rounds of the market looking up bargains. Alex. stated that he was well pleased with the help he had left in charge during his stay in Mackinac. Everything was in fine shape when he returned.

David Geddes, of F. H. Weber's, on learning the amount of freight paid by F. H. Weber from the east, promptly looked up the rates published in the trade papers and secured a rebate of over $6.

Wm. F. Holtz, for many years at C. A. Kuehn's old store, but who has recently held a railroad position, has again entered the florist trade. He is now with Geo. H. Angermueller.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. opened its doors on Monday, September 16, with a fair supply of good stock. The boys were well pleased with their first day's business.

F. H. Weber will have the decorations at the fall opening of Scruggs, Vandewert and Barney's. Several thousand American Beauty roses will be used.

Will Smith, of the Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., also went to Edwardsville today. This is his wife's home.

Chas. Schoenle, Geo. H. Angermueller, Will Osseck and Andrew Meyer, Jr., have gone on a fishing trip.

H. G. Berning filled several large American Beauty rose orders Sunday and Monday.

C. A. Kuehn paid a visit to Edwardsville, Ill., to take in the Centennial.

At Geo. H. Angermueller's a fine lot of Harrisii lilies are seen.

Foster, the Florist, is getting ready to open in a short time.

John Cannon returned last week from his Western trip.

Horticultural Society of Chicago.

There was a meeting of the executive committee of the Horticultural Society of Chicago at the Union restaurant September 13 and plans for the forthcoming spring show, to be held at the Art Institute April 1-5, 1913, were discussed and a committee appointed to arrange the cut flower classes for the premium list. The committee consists of August Poehlmann, Nic Wiator, W. N. Rudd, Fritz Bahr and Chas. W. Deusner. The preliminary premium list, showing prizes in the plant classes, was issued some time ago and copies may be had on application to Secretary Chas. W. Deusner, 1101 Buena avenue. Plans were also discussed for a small chrysanthemum show of specimen plants, blooms and novelties, which will probably be held at the Art Institute in November. Hunt Bros., of Park Ridge, whose fine exhibit of pansies at the last spring show was overlooked by the judges, was awarded a silver medal.

MARKET AGAIN NORMAL.

The market is again at a normal condition. Asters have shortened up considerably and gladioli and dahlias have taken their place, but are being disposed of more rapidly. Roses are arriving in good condition, but not in quantity. Roses are bringing good prices. Carnations are coming in fairly well for new stock and although short stemmed are of a good quality. Lily of the valley is scarce but there are plenty of rubrum lilies. Plenty of greens to fill all orders.

NOTES.

Mrs. L. Nelson has moved from her old stand on Eleventh street and is now nicely settled in new quarters at 913 Third street, where she will keep an up-to-date floral shop. At present she says business is very satisfactory. Gust. Rusch had the misfortune to break his arm last week while trying to crank his partner's machine. The injured member is carefully bandaged and in a sling and with two weeks' of careful nursing it is hoped that the strong right will again do its usual work.

H. W. Koerner had a fine exhibit at the state fair and reports the business in the bulb line so rushing that he has been unable to handle it all. He is also well pleased with his awards at the fair.

The Currie Bros. Co., reports business good, having been busy for the past week at the state fair. This firm says that business is very good in the seed and bulb stock.

Gust. Rusch & Co., report business very satisfactory. They are receiving a fine lot of roses, gladioli and dahlias, which sell readily.

W. C. Zimmermann says that business keeps booming right along and that he has been kept busy with plenty of funeral work.

The C. C. Pollworth Co., is well pleased with the business of the past week and report shipping business fine.

Edlefsen & Leidiger Co., are the possessors of a fine new auto delivery car and expect to use it in a few days.

The Holton & Hunkel Co., is cutting heavily in roses. This firm is receiving some nice new carnations.

Nick Kirscht of Morton Grove, Ill., was the guest of Gust. Rusch & Co., during the fair.

A. Klokner also had a very fine exhibit at the fair, taking fifteen first prizes.

G. R.

Coshocton, O.

Mrs. E. J. Clary and her sons have about 15,000 square feet of glass and the houses are well filled with a variety of stock.

S. M. Hamilton is building a new house which will bring his glass area up to about 25,000 square feet.

Philadelphia.

ROSES VERY SCARCE.

The feature of the past week was the scarcity of roses and the general shortening of other stocks. In roses the late summer growth appears to have flowered out and shipments have been very light the past few days. Much of the stock is also badly mildewed, a condition that seems unavoidable at this season. Some fine stock of American Beauties is offered, very good flowers for the season. White roses have been scarce. There are very few Kaiserins and the White Killarney is poor as yet. The aster is fast disappearing. More care should be given to this flower by growers. Half the quantity well grown would be more profitable for all concerned. Gladioli are still fine, the best varieties selling well. The dahlia will dominate the market for the next three weeks or perhaps four. Cattleyas are more plentiful, but the market can take many more without trouble. Gardenias are selling well. Valley is about normal. There is a good demand for all the bulky outside stock, such as hydrangeas, hardy asters, tritoma, goldenrod, etc., which is much used in store decorations. All the large department stores are having their openings at this time. The prepared oak leaves and imported fern leaves are much used by the store decorators; imitation box trees made of ruscus are substituted for the real thing. If this keeps up, the growers will have quite a job to stay in the race, as plants for store decorating have been quite a factor heretofore. Chrysanthemums are selling fairly well for so early in the season. Growers appear so anxious to get them to market that many are cut too young and bruise very easily. It is a pity to lose out by this bad judgment after all the care to bring them up to this point.

NOTES.

The way in which the dahlia is now handled shows great improvement over the old methods. Orders are taken from the stores the day before, these are telephoned to the dahlia farms, the flowers cut and after soaking a couple of hours in water, each lot is packed carefully in corrugated boxes, which are crated, and are finally delivered to the stores in the original boxes without any further handling. Golden West, Dorothy Peacock, Sylvia McCullough and Lyndhurst are leading varieties.

Ficus Pandurata, long a feature with the R. Craig Co. is seen here in large quantities. Mr. Craig says it has become a staple house plant and large retail stores all over the country include it in all their orders. Their new range at Norwood is almost completed. As fast as a house is glazed, it is filled with plants, the stock having been waiting for the room.

Bayersdorfer & Co., are doing an immense business with magnolia and prepared oak leaves. A new screen that is found to have special decorative value is being largely sold. Their factory is exceptionally busy at this time getting out special work for particular men who want ideas of their own carried out.

The "Willing Helper," the very "classy" catalogue of the House of Rice, contains a most complete list of what they offer in florists' supplies. It is one of the handsomest books of the kind ever sent out. Its numerous illustrations will be a great help to the trade in planning decorations.

The Jos. Heacock Co. opened its city store September 16. The roses, white and pink Killarney, were from the new 600-foot house, the first cutting. Large orders are coming in for palms and ferns, shipments from the Wyncote houses being the largest they have ever made at this season.

Edward Reid and family arrived home from his ranch in North Dakota September 15. Mr. Reid is much benefitted by his trip. While in Chicago, he captured first prize at the shoot in the S. A. F. Sports. So it is to be recorded that there is one first prize to be credited to this city.

Tom Potts, who handles the "Flora-craft" products of Stokes' greenhouses at Morristown, says that every florist should have a motor car. He does the work of two horses with his and in half the time. Valley and Easter lilies every day in the year are his leaders.

Chas. D. Ball is right in it with his kentias and arecas. Although made up plants of kentias are the rule here, they are so put together that they look like one large bushy plant. Many orders are going out daily and the outlook is very promising.

The Niessen Co. are making a specialty of dahlias, handling the entire cut of the Peacock farms at Atco.

Dorothy Peacock, the fine pink, and Golden West are leaders. This firm's system of packing insures safe delivery.

At Edward Reid's, notwithstanding that the proprietor has been absent, the business has gone merrily on. American Beauties are a feature here, some top notch stock coming in the past week.

George Barton when asked about how roses were coming on, said: "We are just waiting for the word and will then ship in quantity."

Edward Upton, late with the Leo Niessen Co., has resigned his position and will remove with his family to Denver, Colo.

Berger Bros. are headquarters for Richmond roses. They handle them by the thousand. Maryland are also a feature.

Westchester Horticulturalists.

The preliminary schedule for the second annual exhibition of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society, to be held November 7-9, in Germania Hall, New Rochelle, N. Y., has just been issued. The program provides for awards in six classes as follows: Chrysanthemum plants, nine first prizes; chrysanthemum flowers, twenty-three first prizes; roses, twelve first prizes; carnations, twelve first prizes; table decoration, two first prizes; miscellaneous, fourteen first prizes; fruit, seven first prizes; vegetables, twelve first prizes. The officers of the society are: James Stuart, president; Robert Williams, vice-president; J. B. McArdle, secretary; Thomas Atchison, treasurer; Oscar Addor, corresponding secretary.

The Manufacturer Says.

Our attention having been called to an inquiry appearing in your issue of September 14 regarding a remedy for thrips on chrysanthemums and cinerarias, we make bold to suggest through your columns the use of Aphine by your inquirer. It can be applied at all times with perfect safety and without fear of injury to foliage or flowers.

Of course, we all know that when thrips once are permitted to lodge in the petals there is nothing that can combat them, but on the foliage they are no great enemy to overcome, if proper precautions are taken by thoroughly spraying the plants.

Buffalo:

CHRYSANTHEMUMS HELD BACK.

The weather the past week has been all that could be desired, only one day of rain which helped things along. Stock and trade have been about what could be expected. Gladioli are fine. Asters are about at an end. Dahlias are coming in. A few good ones have been on sale. Chrysanthemums are on the market, but shipments are not encouraged, which is a wise move on the part of the florist. The latter part of September is early enough for these flowers. The grower that brings mums in too early with only a flower of first-class aster size, will not find a sale any more readily than the one that brings in a large one with no vitality at Christmas.

THE STATE FAIR.

The writer was a visitor at the state fair at Syracuse and from reports the floral exhibit was fifty per cent better than any other year with every indication that next year will be far better yet. The quality of the flowers was good. Gladioli, dahlias and asters were very fine. The asters were not as large as those in Toronto, but the flowers were good. Made up work and cut stock were made more of a feature this year than in the past, consequently, Rochester, Utica and Buffalo were exhibitors. The arrangement of the Horticultural Building was entirely under the supervision of Chas. Vick, Rochester, N. Y., ably assisted by W. E. Day of Syracuse. The placing of exhibitors was the best that the building would allow and what added so much to the whole was the rockery which surrounded the band in the center of the building. The upper part was a beautiful bank of greens and ferns, with a fountain effect entirely around it and the lower part. A rockery of the finest rocks and rare stones, together with ferns and little willow summer houses with their chairs and all that could make it cool and in-

SCHOOL OPENING HELPS.

With the opening of the schools Monday, September 9, and the return to the city of many families from summer homes, business has shown a decided increase and the demand for stock has been exceptionally good. Asters, especially good ones, have been rather hard to get the latter part of the week. Carnations are increasing in supply and the quality is improving rapidly. Roses are a little short of the demand. Lily of the valley is very scarce, and at times cannot be had at any price. Sweet peas are few and of poor quality. Good Swainsonia can be had. Dahlias of all colors are arriving in increased quantity. Easter lilies are scarce. A few small callas are on the market. Gladioli are good stock and are selling better than they were a few weeks since. The Jewish New Year created a good demand for long American Beauties and other high grade flowers.

The Cleveland Florists' Club, at the last meeting, Monday, September 9, nominated practically every one of the last year's officers to hold their positions for another year. The election of officers takes place next meeting night.

CLUB MEETING.

The September meeting of the club was held in the Fort Pitt hotel on the night of September 3, President E. C. Ludwig in the chair. Considering the unseasonably hot weather there was a good attendance. A number of those who attended the Chicago convention were present and spoke in glowing terms of the convention and the open handed hospitality of the Chicago florists. The principal speakers were President Ludwig, John Jones, P. S. Randolph, E. C. Reinemann and P. S. Randolph, Jr. President Ludwig made a fine exhibit of gladioli grown on his own farm. There was an exhibit of hardy hydrangeas and dahlias by Knauff, a private gardener who also spoke in-

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Owing to the large increase in our business we have been compelled to move to larger quarters, where with better facilities we will be able to handle orders with more care and promptness.

SLIGHT INCREASE IN TRADE.

There has been a slight increase in business the past ten days. Prices realized are somewhat better than they have been. Roses are more plentiful, but are of better quality. Yellow roses do not move as well as the other varieties, and the quantity of yellow roses coming into this market has increased very much. Sunburst sells better than other varieties of this color. American Beauties are especially fine for this time of year. There is only a very indifferent demand for the other varieties. Orchids are coming in a little more freely, especially cattleyas, and the prices obtained are still very high. Lilies and valley are doing better. However, there are still large accumulations of outdoor grown flowers, such as asters, tritomas, gladioli, hydrangeas, dahlias that it seems impossible to dispose of at any fair figure. There is a very little call for green stock. Chrysanthemums are getting more plentiful each day.

NOTES.

H. M. Robinson and Co., in addition to a fine supply of the roses Hillingdon, Taft and Aaron Ward, are receiving daily shipments of the new roses Mrs. Charles Russell and Christie Miller. It is reported that this firm will, with Maurice Glass, form a corporation about October 1 and both houses will move to one location where they can get plenty of room. The number is 166 West Twenty-third street, where W. E. Marshall & Co., seedmen, have taken a large store fully equipped for the proper care of their business.

The Flower Auction Co. opened up for business on Tuesday. John P. Cleary, vice-president of the company, is also the auctioneer. While there were not many flowers offered for sale, the plants sold went off quickly. They were of very good quality and brought satisfactory prices. The sales room is light, large and airy, centrally located, and should prove a very good venture for the auction sale of plants. What headway can be made in the sale of cut flowers by auction remains to be seen.

At the meeting of the executive committee of the American Rose Society, held at Traendly & Schenck's office, Tuesday, the final schedule of premiums to be offered at the International Flower Show next April was completed. There were present: A. Farenwald, Benj. Hammond, W. R. Pierson, Eber Holmes, Frank H. Traendly and also President-elect J. K. M. L. Farquhar of the S. A. F.

Frank L. Moore, the originator of the Bridesmaid rose and proprietor of the Sunnywood greenhouses, Chatham, N. J., is a frequent visitor to the salesroom of Moore, Hentz and Nash, of which he is also one of the proprietors. Mr. Moore is a "progressive" in more ways than one. Moore, Hentz and Nash are receiving their first cut of Beauties from the Bedford Flower Co., Bedford, N. Y.

A fire was discovered Tuesday night on the top floor of the building occupied by Horace E. Froment. While there was no damage from the blaze the plate glass in the door was broken and everything was disturbed by the firemen covering up the furniture, etc., from the water. It was discovered in the morning that the contents of the cash drawer were missing.

P. J. Smith, while admitting the summer business has not been as satisfactory as it might have been, looks forward to a banner year in the flower business and has made arrangements for an increased supply of all the leading sellers. Just at present he is receiving large shipments of fine lilies, valley and roses.

There are no better roses in the market than those received by H. E. Froment from L. B. Coddington, of Murray Hill, N. J. The stock is all good color and clean, clear foliage. Mr. Coddington made another large addition last spring to his present very large establishment.

The Pennock-Neehan Co. reports having a very busy summer, and while prices have not been high the quantity of flowers handled has been tremendous. A. N. Pierson, Inc., is sending large shipments of roses to this house, the My Maryland especially being very fine.

The vase of the new sensational pink rose exhibited by Charles H. Totty in the club rooms, Monday night, was on display in the window of Henshaw and Fenrich for two or three days and was a great attraction to the critical buyers who frequent the "Street."

Badgley, Reidel and Meyer received their first shipment of violets from Rhinebeck, N. Y., September 11. They hold the record for the past three years for receiving the first violets of the season.

A. Nason, of Chatham, N. J., has taken part of the store of A. J. Fellouris, 112 West Twenty-eighth street, where he will conduct a wholesale business.

A. Rossi, of San Francisco, has been visiting all the up to date establishments in the city with Dan Mac Rorie acting as his guide.

The Bound Brook Nurseries will open their twenty-eighth street salesroom October 1 for the sale of gardenias and orchids.

Henshaw and Fenrich are receiving some fine "Unaka" chrysanthemums from Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J.

Paul Meconi is now receiving some very fine cattleyas and gardenias from Thomas Young, Jr., Bound Brook, N. J.

Philip F. Kessler is receiving a fine lot of all seasonable flowers, also a fine lot of jasaminoides. Y.

Cincinnati.

REVIVAL OF TRADE.

The local market enjoyed a busy time last week; in fact, everything moved so nicely that the receipts were taken up as fast as they arrived and that at fair prices, too. The most direct cause of the sudden change for the better was the Jewish holidays. This week will be taken care of by some large openings in the city that will see many thousand flowers and considerable decorative greens and other material. The flower supply, too, is shortening as the cooler weather and nights are coming on. All present indications point to continued good business. The aster supply comes now principally from New York state. The growers who have been supplying local needs are about out. The Eastern stock is good and so far consists mostly of white. The quantity is larger than New York shipments have ever been before. Roses of all sizes and kinds are selling nicely. Where a fortnight ago some of them would not move at any price now all are finding a market. American Beauties, although there is a large supply, last week ran short and more might easily have been utilized by the retailers. This week the supply on the opening day was sufficient to take care of the usual good steady call. Carnations are getting better than they were. The blooms are larger and the stems longer, while there is also a greater variety. Their popularity will increase steadily as that of the aster wanes. Lilies are selling well and bringing good prices. Gladioli still arrive and sell nicely. Some early 'mums, Smith's Advance, have made their appearance. The green goods market is good.

NOTES.

Visitors: I. Bayersdorfer, Philadelphia, Pa.; V. H. Thomas, Augusta, Ky., and L. T. Benson, of Indianapolis. The latter was looking for a grower. Geo. Sutter, of Hamilton, O., and Miss Margaret Reininger, bookkeeper at George Tromeys, will be married September 17.

C. E. Critchell is receiving excellent carnations from Robert Buck & Co., Washington, C. H.

Clarence Ahmer and wife and baby will return to West Palm Beach September 27.

P. J. Olinger went to New Castle, Ind., to inspect the greenhouses on Tuesday.

TOO MANY ASTERS.

Trade on the whole is satisfactory for a certain grade of stock, but the population will have to increase or other channels will have to be found for the avalanche of asters that is being raised. A, being expected to quit; B, plants more; C, follows suit and everybody is doing it, so the quantity grows steadily each year. The agony will soon be over and the inside product will cut some figure. Carnations are coming in short stemmed. Both these flowers and roses show the effects of the hot spell passed through. It is too soon to mention anything in the rose line, only that the Lady Hillingdon is filling the promise she made last year. Quite a number were planted and there is no special trick of getting it to grow, and the growth and abundance of flowers is pleasing to look at.

We were interested in the remarks of J. C. Vaughan in last week's issue. The rose grower, with all his other troubles, will have to get a permit to import his rose stocks. The law-makers are saddling the business man with a lot of unnecessary expense, and some day the proverbial last straw will be put on that will cause an eruption. I believe better laws could be made in an insane asylum. Just now we are in the throes of our election struggle in which hot air plays an important part. It's too bad business men couldn't be elected. Give a business administration to promote business rather than the class reaching to kill business or put an anchor on it.

Harry A. Barnard, of London, England, was the guest of honor of the Horticultural Club of Boston at a meeting and dinner at Young's Hotel September 11.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubs, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, and painted green. These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established, and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When in Philadelphia Be Sure to Look Us Up

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your convenience, both going and coming. Then you will see our Palms of all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place), and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to our Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition

SACRAMENTO, CALIF.—A quarantine order issued by State Horticultural Commissioner A. J. Cook and signed by Governor Johnson, bars from the state the importation of alfalfa from several counties in Utah, Idaho and Wyoming. The quarantine is for the purpose of preventing the introduction of the alfalfa weevil into California.

CANADA growers in the vicinity of Simcoe say that the pea crop there has been so risky the last few years that few are grown but some correspondents claim that this year's improvement in the crop will likely encourage the sowing of a larger area. The newer districts of Northern Ontario have excellent reports concerning the yield and general prospects of peas.

Robinson Company Improving Buildings.

The J. C. Robinson Seed Co., of Waterloo, Nebraska, is making some important changes in its cleaning and storage plant. A fire-proof brick and concrete power house is being built and a Meitz-Weise fuel oil engine of one hundred horse power will be installed. Electricity will be used entirely for power. Some twenty odd motors will handle the different pieces of machinery. A plain one story warehouse 80x120 feet is being built. This will be used for storage only. The dry house has been moved to the track and a complete cleaning plant installed. A water pipe boiler, heated by the discharge from the engine, will furnish steam heat for the dryer. The changes, besides making the firm's plant strictly up to date, will give storage to some 20,000 additional sacks.

Michigan Seed Crops.

Jackson, September 11.—Nearly all Michigan crops went into the ground two to four weeks late and in addition have been held back by a very cool and wet summer. In southern Michigan we are now having some very hot weather which is all right for corn, but is scalding and burning tomatoes and vine crops.

Cucumbers, melons and tomatoes promise about a half crop. Peas in Northern Michigan are having a hard time on account of rainy weather. I.

Nebraska and Colorado Seed Crops.

Waterloo, September 14.—Our seed crops here are in fairly good condition. Vine seed will make fair returns, but the setting of fruits is unusually light. The yield per acre will probably not exceed one-half of that of a year ago. Our vine seed crops at Rocky Ford, Colo., are in good condition, very few failures and a good fair crop in nearly all items, but the setting of fruits there is also materially lighter than a year ago. The yield will probably average at least 100 pounds per acre less. The acreage planted at Rocky Ford is not more than fifty per cent of the acreage of last year. The acreage at Waterloo is about the same as a year ago. Sweet corn is very promising in our immediate vicinity, the crop is fairly safe from frost, although we need about ten days more to make it sure. The crop of early sweet corns and Flint corns in the central and northern part of the state will make very light returns. Hot dry weather has hurt it very much. The crop as a whole will be very satisfactory, there being both seed and corn enough in sight to fill orders on most varieties, with no great surplus of anything in seed this season. R.

Connecticut Seed Crops.

Milford, September 7.—Our small seed crops here are now practically all harvested with the exception of some of the carrot, the harvest of which is now being completed. On most items of turnip we have been making full delivery or nearly full, and in spite of the world-wide shortage of beet, we are filling practically all items in full. We have been rather fortunate on these two crops here the past season. On parsnips we have been very unfortunate. As to onion, we harvested a pretty good crop, rather better than the average. We had a pretty fair acreage and good plump heads free from blast and blight of any sort, and although the weather is not very favorable for curing the seed in our drying rooms, we hope to have very good returns on all varieties of onion unless possibly Southport Red Globe, which seems to have done more poorly than the others. We are not going to have large crop of seed corn. We hear from our growers of a good many failures. The mid-summer drought undoubtedly stunted the crop in general to a material extent. Lately it has been too cool for the crop to advance as it should, and it was backward from the outset on account of the late spring. As a result a yield certainly less than normal would be cut down to a very small one by an unfavorable fall or an unusually early frost. With a favorable fall, we can still come out fairly well on seed corn. Beans are a very uncertain item right now. It manages to rain two out of every three days and is cloudy and cold on the third day so that the crop is not proceeding toward maturity, is very, very backward and beans that are on the ground are being ruined. The more sensitive varieties are rusting, so that injury already done makes certain a light yield. If we had written a week ago we should have stated that if the rain would stop immediately we could still make, with a favorable fall, a fair crop of beans, but reports of the past week have removed this hope, so that we are now of the opinion that even with an immediate cessation of these unfavorable conditions, and with a favorable fall, there will be not to exceed from one-half to two-thirds of a crop. We have just commenced to receive some of our peas and in some of our sections we are going to get a fair yield of a very good quality, but about half of our territory has been subjected to continual rains right during the midst of harvesting and late varieties as well as late sown early dwarf varieties have undergone heavy deterioration and a great many crops have been lost entirely. There is going to be a very heavy hand-picking waste and expense on those that have not been lost outright. The situation on pea today is much worse than when we sent out our last crop report to the trade, but the extent of deterioration that the crop has undergone we cannot estimate until we have some receipts from the affected territories. Boddington's "Quality"

Christmas=Flowering Sweet Peas

WE ARE SUPER-HEADQUARTERS

All true stocks of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas will be scarce this season. Some varieties are a total failure owing to the exceptional season in California this Spring. Our advice to intending planters is to order at once.

Mr. William Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., the great sweet pea specialist sows our seed almost exclusively.

Our stocks of Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas have stood the test for years, and we can refer you to the largest growers of this increasingly popular flower, as to the trueness and quality of our seed, earliness of blooming period and strength and habit of plants.

The following varieties are the "best by test" and include Zvolanek's and our own introductions, grown for seed from selected stocks by the leading California grower and specialist in Sweet Peas.

Our output last year was nearly 3,000 lbs. Few kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality, germination and trueness to type.

We Can Make Immediate Delivery of the Following:

BODDINGTON'S EXTRA-EARLY CHRISTMAS WHITE SNOWBIRD. An exceptionally early Sweet Pea for indoor flowering—will bloom six weeks after sowing. Color clear white, upon long stems; habit fairly dwarf and of exceptionally free-flowering qualities. Without doubt the finest early white for indoor planting. We sell one grower in Pennsylvania 35 lbs. of this variety every year; name on application. Oz. 25 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. 75 cts., $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$1.25, lb. \$2.00.

BODDINGTON'S CHRISTMAS PINK. This is the earliest and most profitable and useful Sweet Pea in cultivation, as by sowing the seed under glass in latter part of August, flowers can be cut from Thanksgiving on during the Winter months. Oz. 15 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. 50 cts., $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. 85 cts., lb. \$1.50.

BODDINGTON'S CHRISTMAS WHITE. A companion to our Christmas Pink. Just as free and profuse a bloomer. Oz. 15 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. 50 cts., $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. 85 cts., lb. \$1.50.

ANGELINO. Self pink; new variety. Oz. 50 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. \$1.50, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$2.75, lb. \$4.50.

CANARY. Similar to the above, but flowers of an exceptionally good yellow. Oz. 35 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. \$1.00, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$1.75, lb. \$3.00.

CHRISTMAS METEOR. Scarlet; fine open red flower. Oz. 35 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. \$1.00, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$1.50, lb. \$2.50.

CHRISTMAS STELLA MORSE. Creamy buff standard, wing slightly tinged with pink. Oz. 50 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. \$1.50, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$2.75, lb. \$4.50.

FLAMINGO. Color scarlet; free-flowering and early. Oz. 50 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. \$1.50, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$2.75, lb. \$5.00.

FLORENCE DENZER. Pure white. Oz. 25 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. 75 cts., $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$1.25, lb. \$2.00.

Two Important New Commercial Ferns

Cyrtomium Rochfordianum

(The Crested Holly Fern)

The most valuable Decorative Fern of recent introduction.

A most important addition to our list of Ferns. Its foliage is of a rich, deep, glossy green color, the pinnae or leaflets besides being wavy or undulated are also deeply cut or toothed, giving the plant a graceful light appearance, which makes it valuable not only as a dish Fern but decorative work and for apartment use.

2½-inch pots 75c per dozen, $5.00 per 100, $40.00 per 1000; 4-inch pots $2.00 per dozen, $15.00 per 100. Also a limited lot of flats of about 200 plants each, at $3.00 per flat.

Adiantum Farleyense Gloriosa

(The Glory Fern or Rum Von Mordrecht)

The Fern which will revolutionize the cut frond business.

For the grower of Ferns for cutting this new Maiden Hair will undoubtedly prove a most important addition; it closely resembles Adiantum Farleyense and will make a splendid substitute for that fancy variety, and it can be produced at much less cost, as it will thrive under conditions in which Adiantum Farleyense could not exist.

At our Riverview Nursery we have given it a very fair trial for this purpose during the past winter. A block of these plants were planted on a bench in a house devoted to the ordinary Boston Fern and received the ordinary treatment and temperature given to the Nephrolepis, and under this treatment they developed not only fronds of great beauty on longer, stiffer stems than Farleyense produces, but also many more fronds than would be developed by that variety in the same length of time under the most favorable condition.

Anyone who successfully grows the ordinary varieties of Adiantum, such as Cuneatum, Croweanum, and Hybridum, can grow it under precisely the same conditions given to these sorts.

We have a fine block of about 30,000 young plants, 2½-inch pots, at $2.00 per dozen, $15.00 per 100, $140.00 per 1000.

Lettuce Growing.

Most growers of lettuce have become so used to transplanting lettuce that it looks as if this was the only way. While transplanting has an advantage in saving time in winter, this same point is of little value to the first crop in the fall; besides, when temperatures run high in September and October transplanting is connected with considerable risk—especially the first dibbling of seedlings. Poor plants never produce good crops, and any grower who has had trouble with the first crop should try direct seeding. We have produced some of the finest crops of lettuce we ever saw by direct seeding and believe the method is valuable for early fall use. We mark the beds with an eight-inch marker square to the walks and very shallow—say one-quarter inch. Sow the seed thinly and evenly and water softly and evenly—keeping the surface damp until the plants are up. Grand Rapids lettuce is very impatient of covering, hence it is best not to cover at all. When the seedlings are well up and the character leaf appears, we give the first thinning—simply pulling out little bunches wherever tight. In a month or six weeks, we remove all surplus plants, except one every eight inches. Thus we have produced enormous quantities of plants for resetting or for sale at a nominal cost and at the same time occupying the bed permanently. These seedlings strike deep into the lower soil and although slow at first, they make up for lost time a little later on.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa., President; J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore., Vice-President; John Hall, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y. Thirty-eighth annual convention to be held at Portland, Ore., June, 1913.

EATON RAPIDS, MICH.—A summer orchard meeting was held August 21 by the State Horticultural Society.

SOUTH BEND, IND.—The St. Joseph Horticultural Society met August 31 at the home of C. P. Bradely and discussed the marketing of apples.

ST. JOSEPH, MO.—At a meeting of the Missouri Board of Horticulture, held here August 31, it was announced that a "fruit census" of the state was being taken. A count of the fruit trees and the owners, with a view to putting the grower in touch with the buyer, is being made.

AUGUSTA, GA.—The Southern Nurserymen, representing fourteen states, adjourned August 29, after a splendid meeting in this city. The officers elected for the ensuing year are: O. Joe Howard, Greensburg, N. C., president; R. C. Chase, Huntsville, Ala., vice-president; A. I. Smith, Knoxville, Tenn., secretary-treasurer. The next meeting will be held in 1913 at Mont Eagle, Tenn.

American Apple Growers' Congress.

The American Apple Growers' Congress held their annual convention at the Planters hotel, St. Louis, Mo., August 22, in conjunction with members of the state board of horticulture. Where spraying was practiced big crops are reported. Poorer grades of apples will be used for cider. Senator Dunlap of Illinois expects 40,000 to 45,000 barrels from his orchard and J. Mack Lanner, of Springfield, Ill., expects 50,000. Louis Erb, from the Ozarks, also expects a big yield. All officers of 1911 were re-elected as follows: J. W. Stanton, Richview, Ill., president; Louis Erb, Cedar Gap, Mo., vice-president; T. C. Wilson, Columbia, Mo., secretary; Wesley Greene, Des Moines, Ia., treasurer. Resolutions for improved packing methods, etc., were adopted. The 1913 convention will be held at St. Louis.

Origin of the Naval Orange.

The naval orange is a bud sport that originated from the common seeded orange. It seems best explained upon the supposition that after the fruit had partly formed, a new growth impulse carried the center of the normal fruit further on. Such phenomena are examples of poliferation. Other illustrations are often found in flowers, where a new blossom may appear from the center of an older one. Examples are not rare in which the young seeds or even the ovules while still enclosed in the ovary have grown out into new plants. In the majority of flowers, the different parts spring from the tip of the stem and are not separated from one another by distinct intermodes. There is no reason, however, why the intermodes should be suppressed, and in several, such as the spider flower (Cleome), they are not. In the naval orange something similar takes place. —The American Botanist.

The Ascent of Sap.

How the sap ascends to the tops of tall trees in sufficient amount to supply the evaporation from the leaves as well as to form a necessary part of the plant food, has always been a puzzle to botanists. Various theories have been put forth, however, to account for it. Root pressure, capillarity, a sort of pumping action in the cells of the stem, evaporation and many others have in turn been tried and found wanting, according to the American Botanist. The latest and most satisfactory explanation of the phenomena is by an Irish botanist, Henry H. Dixon, who, after experimenting with water in sealed glass tubes has discovered that water has an unexpected tensile strength and under proper conditions will resist considerable stress tending to pull it apart. It requires, in fact, a tension equal to more than 150 atmospheres to sever the columns of water in the ducts of plants. Dixon assumes that the evaporation of water from the leaves sets up a pull of sufficient strength to hold the water suspended in the conducting tracts of even the tallest trees. In elaborating his theory he shows how perfectly adapted to this function the tracheids and other vessels are. Even the partitions across the ducts, which in connection with any theory concerning root pressure and capillarity would only be in the way, by the new theory are shown to be an excellent contrivance for facilitating the ascent of sap.

Saw It—Then Bought It.

ONE morning this summer, a perfect stranger walked into our office, and told us he had come all the way from Norfolk, Virginia, to see if the Hitchings New Model Sectional boiler was the superior boiler we claimed it to be.

He also wanted to see how we made them, and the kind of iron from which they are made.

Before leaving, he gave us an order for the largest size we make—a big 36.

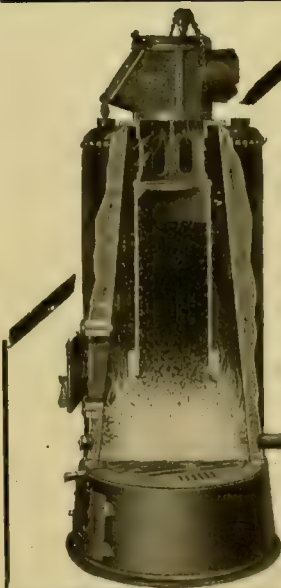

If you are another one who wants to see one of our boilers before buying, and can't take the time to come to our factory, then let us send you the name of the nearest grower who has one.

You can then not only see it, but get his opinion of just how good a greenhouse boiler it really is.

Two layers of glass instead of one

You never cover Sunlight Double Glass Sash

You do away with heavy, expensive mats and boards, and your plants get all the light all the time.

The dry air between the two layers of glass takes the place of mats and boards

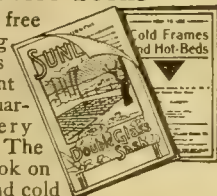

It is $\frac{3}{8}$ inch thick and is a better non-conductor. The glass is held in place without putty—can't slip out—easily replaced.

Crops on the market weeks ahead

Under Sunlight Double Glass Sash your plants are earlier and sturdier and you can have bigger, better crops on the market weeks ahead while the prices are still high. In many cases the extra profit on one crop has paid for the sash themselves.

KING GUTTER

"LEST YOU FORGET"

We want you to know that we make a wood gutter, and a good one, too. It combines all the good points of other wood gutters, "AND THEN SOME."Note that the condensation and drip run down the side and sloping bottom to a drip pan placed under the gutter where it makes no shade.We know it will do that, for we have tried it. This gutter lends itself to an outside wall, as an eave, most admirably.

What the Users say

Kroeschell Boiler Saves 35 Tons Coal

"I bought a No. 7 boiler in 1901. It takes care of 10,500 sq. ft. of glass and could take care of 5000 more. Must state that I am in business for 25 years and have attended to many boilers, but I must say for your Boiler that it has given better satisfaction than any other, being easier to fire up, and it is easier to keep the temperature with your boiler in our houses than it is with any other. I used 35 tons of coal less than I did with boilers I had before. I can keep the temperature to 75 or 80 degrees during the severest weather, if it is necessary to do so."

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Dahlias.

As the cool nights approach it pays to make preparation to cover the best varieties and protect them from the early frosts. Generally the first frosts are followed by two or three weeks of pleasant warm weather, when flowers are more or less scarce, the outside stock being cut down and the greenhouse stock not being yet in full crop, and a supply of dahlias is a great boom at such a time. See that the plants are properly labelled so when it comes to lifting time there will be no mistakes made. A good large label placed beside each root with the correct name is essential in growing this crop. This label can be tied on to the root when the clumps are lifted and all danger of misnaming be obviated. Keep the plants securely tied to the stakes so that the high winds which are prevalent in the fall, cannot break the plants down or the branches off.

Begonia Gloire De Lorraine.

The plants of Begonia Gloire de Lorraine should now be making active growth, the bud shoots starting and the plants taking on shape. The earlier struck cuttings will now be fine plants in five and six-inch pots and will need a center stake to keep them erect. It is yet too early to tie the plants into shape, but if any of the branches are long enough to hang over the edge of the pot, they should receive some support. These branches hanging over the edge of the pot are in the way when watering, and if the leaves get wet, it takes some time for them to dry off and many will become spotted and besides the branches grow crooked and are much harder to tie into place later on when this will have to be done. Keep the plants in a good warm house from this on until the buds begin to show color, when they can be placed in cooler quarters, but do not keep the house too close. Give a little ventilation every day possible. If kept too close and moist some of the foliage will spot and be ruined. Constant light fumigations will be necessary to keep down the green aphids. These plants do not like heavy fumigation but light fumigation carried on frequently will keep the vermin in check and not damage the plants. These insects must be conquered before the plants begin to bloom or they will cover the young blooming shoots completely.

Cinerarias.

The cinerarias grown from seed sown in May and June will now be fine plants in 4-inch pots with good strong foliage. Later sowings will be in smaller pots according to the date at which they were started. If there is a demand for small plants in early spring in four or five-inch pots it is not too late to sow the seed but such plants seldom bring more than 25 or 35 cents each and it hardly pays to carry a plant through the winter and sell it at that price. Give the plants in potting a rich friable soil with a good proportion of fiber for the last potting. Keep the plants in a cool temperature in good sunlight, well spaced apart, that they may be good and stocky. Never let up in fumigating these plants. Some growers buy tobacco stems and cover the bench with them, placing the plants upon the stems, and these are renewed as fast as the strength is spent. If the aphids gets a good foothold on the under side of the rough leaves they are exceedingly difficult to dislodge.

Violets.

The single violets should be planted in the houses now as soon as the beds are ready. In lifting the plants in the field try to get a good ball of earth with the roots and avoid as much as possible the roots becoming dry. These roots are very soft and succulent and if they become too dry new roots will have to form and it will take some time for the plants to become established in their new quarters. The better way is not to try to handle too many plants at a time, but to lift a few and plant them out at once. When the plants are lifted all the runners should be removed and the plants as soon as set should be well watered. They should then be shaded during the warm days, the length of time necessarily depending upon how quickly they will take hold in the new soil. Give the plants all the air possible but avoid draughts if possible until they begin to show growth.

Anemone Japonica.

One of the finest fall perennials is the Anemone Japonica, which is now in bloom, and if it is not included in the grower's stock at present, it should be procured. There is both white and pink but for general use the former is to be preferred. Where the plants are in bloom a framework should be built over them that heavy cloth may be drawn over and protect them from the early frosts, and they will bloom for some two or three weeks yet. If it is desired to increase the stock, a plant can be lifted and the roots cut into several pieces about an inch long and the pieces inserted in the propagating bench and they will root in about four weeks. Pot them up in 2½-inch pots and when the roots have spread into the soil the pots can be placed under a bench and run dry until spring, when they should be potted in 3-inch pots and grown on until all danger of frost is passed and then planted out.

Our Knowledge of Fertilizers.

"The use of fertilizers is still in a most unsatisfactory state," said Dr. Frank G. Cameron, of the United States Agricultural Department's bureau of soils, in an address at the annual convention of the National Fertilizer Association, Atlantic City, N. J., July 16. "The primary question, of course, is, 'what fertilizer should be used for this particular soil?' or 'for this soil and that particular crop.' The net result of all the experimental evidence seems to be that in general a mixed fertilizer is better than a single ingredient, and that a triple mixture is better than a double mixture. But what should these mixtures be, and how are they to be determined? Frankly, we do not know. Analysis of the soil by many different methods has been tried, with unsatisfactory results. Ash analysis of crops, pot and plot experiments by the hundreds or thousands have been made, and are being made, and yet satisfactory answers to the above questions are not forthcoming. As a consequence, there is great dissatisfaction, and in an increasing number of cases, the fundamental hypotheses are being questioned on which the work of the past has been postulated. Theories of fertility are now being advanced almost as rapidly as solvents for 'availability' were a few years back. We are told that fertility depends on 'plant food' or on humus and nitrogen, or on bacteria or on protozoa, on whether the plant food is 'chemically available,' 'physically available' and 'physiologically available,' etc., and while the theorists formulate, the practical man sees only 'confusion worse confounded.' To the mind of the speaker, advancement in this line of enquiry depends on the recognition of three fundamental postulates which were developed in extent so before you last year. These are:

(1) The individuality of the soil, that is, no two soils are just alike or will respond just alike to cultural treatment, including fertilizer applications. (2) The dynamic character of soil phenomena, that is, all the factors in the soil influencing crop production, involve continual movements or changes.

(3) The interdependence of soil factors influencing crop production, that is, no one of these factors, physical, chemical or biological, can be affected or modified without change being induced simultaneously in all the others."

A Hunt Dinner.

Use the huntsman's caps, grouping about four in the center of table. These should be of red satin in which a wire frame of the same shape has been placed. Fill with moss and arrange in them the deep red dahlias. Place them on a mat of foliage or croton leaves. Garland around the table red sweet peas with their foliage, allowing it to fall gracefully from the edge of the table where it can be caught with a stirrup made of sweet peas. For favors use miniature china top boots filled with red sweet peas and tie with green and red ribbons. Horns can be gracefully arranged above the table, making them of red sweet peas and filling the end with maidenhair or autumn foliage. Also small horns will be good for favors made of red sweet peas and filled with bonbons. This can also be arranged with a silver bowl in the center, but the bowl must be of the tall slender variety. Fill it with red carnations in a loose and graceful way, using maidenhair as a green. Have the caps of white satin and filled with red sweet peas. Use as a mat red silk folds, edging it with a garland of red carnations and maidenhair. For favors two riding whips with the handles of red carnations closely arranged to handle and tied with a red satin rosette is effective.

A. E. KLINDER.

Florists' Tags.

In the slack season the wise florist takes account of stock of his supplies—boxes, ribbons, labels and tags. This is the time of year to decide upon any changes in put-up. If the box that you have been using does not conform to your idea of quality, get prices and samples now and be prepared when the autumn season begins.

This is the time also to decide upon the tag question, one which is growing more important year by year. An attractively printed tag is a distinct asset. Your tag is really both a direction label and a business card. It is essentially the part of the put-up which represents your store. It is the first thing looked at when the flowers arrive in the home. It is often saved as a reminder to acknowledge the gift.

A few years ago the florists' tags of to-day, costing $5.00, $10.00 or even $20.00 a thousand, were considered very extravagant. Nowadays the feeling is that they are a pulling advertisement. A few small insertions in a metropolitan daily cost as much as or more than ten thousand tags handsomely printed and embossed. The advertisements in the paper are noticed by several thousand people on their way to work or play when they are not interested in flowers. The ten thousand tags go right with the roses or violets, in many cases into homes where your flowers have never been before. The tags lend an air of distinction to the packages. They present your name in an impressive manner. They please old customers and make new ones.

DESIGN BY MATTHEWS, THE FLORIST, OF DAYTON, O.

Carnations, White Killarney Roses and Sweet Peas, Used to Represent the Wheel of Progress and the Wing of Aviation, at Funeral of Wilbur Wright.

The peculiarities of human nature must also be considered in buying tags. Ninety-cent candy in an embossed box tastes better than the same candy taken home in a paper bag. A diamond ring in a leather case lined with velvet seems to be worth $50.00 more than the same ring in a pasteboard box. In like manner a dozen American Beauties in a flimsy box, poorly wrapped and tagged with a cheap manila affair badly printed, fail to make the impression they would if they came in a handsome container four-square and strong, crowned with a richly printed tag.

For the florist especially is a handsome tag a sterling investment. The Dennison Mfg. Co. makes a specialty of high grade florists' tags.

An Autumn Table Suggestion.

Make tall vases of autumn leaves, covering them completely, and arrange in them yellow dahlias or marigolds and their foliage. In the center arrange a flat basket of rustic effect with autumn foliage, using the acorn twigs or even the green chestnut burrs intermingled. Arrange around this a garland of grape vines with their fruit, the blue and green grapes alternating. Encircle the guest plates with the foliage of the different autumn browns. Or, the center piece can also be arranged in two shades of the yellow garden flowers, but these should only be clustered in the center of the basket, allowing the foliage to predominate. A garland of autumn leaves will look well around the edge of the table, but the very small twigs should be used. A bow of yellow satin at the ends helps the effect. Silver candelabrae will be most artistic with this arrangement and silver bonbon boxes filled with yellow candies finished with a yellow rosette. Or, a buttonhole and corsage placed alternately, made of marigolds arranged with maidenhair ferns, will be effective and will add to the finish of a very inexpensive and attractive table decoration. Should a yachting dinner decoration be desired, place under the center yellow flags emblematic of the occasion. Small canoes filled with marigolds can be used as favors; or a tripod made of small yellow flags from which a small tiny basket may be suspended and filled with either flowers or candies will do.

THE CARNATION.

Stem-Rot and Other Troubles.

The first few weeks after planting in is often a troublesome time to the carnation grower, for it is during that period that stem-rot usually appears, this disease not infrequently being contracted in the field, and developing more rapidly after the plants are housed. The frequent spraying and close atmosphere that is given the newly planted stock is especially favorable to the development and distribution of the disease. Hot and damp weather always favors this trouble, and cool nights and dry air are the best checks for it. The use of Bordeaux mixture as a spray helps to conquer stem-rot, provided other conditions are favorable for the well-being of the plants.

As long as cultivation may be done between the plants without breakage it is well to keep the surface of the soil open by shallow scratching with a weeder; but as the plants get established it will be noticed that many fine roots get close to the surface of the soil, and it is not good practice to disturb these roots, for they are feeders and as such are valuable to the plants. Top dressings, or other applications of special fertilizers are not yet needed, provided the soil had been properly prepared before it was put in the benches. The plants were not in long enough to exhaust the food in the compost, and too much food is liable to give them indigestion—or something very similar to it. Staking and tying having been completed, it soon will become necessary to put up the trellises and longitudinal wires, for once the stems are crooked, it is not easy to get them in shape again, and to avoid this difficulty proper supports are needed before the plants get out of shape.

The careful grower will not allow the weeds to get ahead in the benches; for not only does it make for a slovenly appearance, but it is also a waste of good plant food to raise weeds in the same soil in which one is trying to grow carnations. Topping is still in order to the extent that it is proper to take off all flower stems that are too short to have commercial value, or to top enough to give a well-branched plant. Early planted stock may not need any further topping, but this is a matter that must be adjusted in accordance with the condition of the stock and the demands of the market. Spraying with insecticides is necessary at regular intervals, or as regular as the weather will permit, for this is the time to eradicate thrips, so that the coming growth and bloom may be perfect.

Syringing vigorously to remove red spiders is another detail of culture at this season, for later on either the weather or the condition of the crop may interfere with proper syringing, and while there may be insecticides that will destroy red spiders, yet there are very few of them that are more effective in the removal of this pest than a good pressure of water applied by a man who knows how. Air freely both day and night just as long as the weather will permit, for it is at this period that the foundation of sturdy growth should be laid to give results during the coming winter and spring.

As the nights grow longer it will be noted that the plants do not dry off when syringed late in the day, and with this in view it is well to do all watering and syringing as early as possible. The most convenient and satisfactory time for this operation is just after the regular morning cut of flowers has been taken. This leaves the greater portion of the day for drying off the foliage. Foliage that is hanging with moisture throughout the night is more susceptible to fungoid diseases, such as "spot" and "rust," and so moist an atmosphere does not help the keeping qualities of the flowers that are grown in it.

W. H. TAPLIN.

Heating and Ventilating.

We are getting along to the first part of October, which reminds us that in a very few days fall conditions will be with us, making it necessary to fire up nights according to the state of the weather. The carnation is a lover of cool temperature and at this season, when the building up of the plant is the most important consideration, extra care should be exercised to guard against running up the night temperature higher than is necessary to keep down the dampness. But on the other hand, it is equally detrimental to the plants' well being to allow the houses to remain over night without a little steam heat when the outside temperature is down around 40 degrees. This causes the inside of the houses to be damp and wet, which quickly starts the foliage to spot. It is also the cause of a great deal of the rust and stem rot. By regulating the ventilators, leaving the sashes open a crack, according to the weather, and turning on a little steam to dry up the atmosphere and hold the inside temperature around 46 or 48 degrees nightly for a while until the weather conditions become such that steady firing becomes a necessity, this with plenty of ventilation during the day will make the plants "get a hump" on themselves and build up a strong, sturdy body.

It is very important with this early firing to shut down early enough in the morning to hold the temperature from rising too high, particularly when steam is the means of heating. A cool, clear night is usually followed by a bright day and as the sun comes up the temperature inside will rise rapidly. This together with the hot pipes causes a dry heat which is congenial to the red spider and will quickly cause them to spread. Now that the outdoor flowers are on the wane the plants that are ready may be allowed to come into bloom; but do not be in too much of a hurry in this respect. To start off with, allow the plants every chance for development. Also, as to the stems, they will be shorter than we like for a while, but this cannot be helped. We must be content to let well enough alone.

We might increase the stems a little by rubbing out some side shoots lower down but this is one thing that should not be practiced, because every one of those growth shoots that are taken away now means the loss of a bloom a little later on. It is only a question of a very short while till the stems will have stretched themselves out and become long enough. Disbudding should be followed up closely as the crop begins to come in, also pay close attention to keeping down the insects, which can be got well in hand now that the conditions are getting such that fumigating can be done almost any night.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Scales for Judging.

Regarding the comments on judging chrysanthemums by Elmer D. Smith in THE AMERICAN FLORIST of September 21, page 525, I have in the past frequently heard some criticisms on the judging of certain classes, but have attributed it to disappointment of the losing exhibitors more than to the scale of points by which the judges were guided. Still I think there might be a change in the scale with advantage, which in many cases would give the judges more leeway to work on. Of course there always will be certain points to which some judges will lean, as very clearly pointed out by Mr. Smith.

There is no denying the fact that color ranks first with nearly all who admire the queen of autumn, although the man who grows for exhibition only will lean to size first. Yet he is largely in the minority as regards the general interest in mums. A monster size alone will not sell the flower to the general public. It must have color, form, substance, good foliage and stem to appeal to those who buy.

Take for instance two of the leading yellows which have been on the market for many years, Major Bonnaf-in vases. I would have the scale as follows:

Color	25
Form and fullness.....	25
Size	25

100

This will simplify the matter for judging such classes and gives the judges room for leeway. Of course this is only a suggestion and may not meet the views of the majority of growers and exhibitors, but I hope some clearly defined method may evolve out of a free discussion of this subject.

JOHN N. MAY.

Referring to the article on chrysanthemums in THE AMERICAN FLORIST of Sept. 24, under the heading of "Scales for Judging," by Elmer D. Smith, I heartily agree with Mr. Smith as to the need of a more practical scale for judging the vases of long stem blooms. According to my understanding, the present scales were gotten up for judging seedlings and I doubt very much whether those responsible for them considered them as a means of deciding the vases of blooms in open competition. For the purpose for which they were intended they have worked well, bringing out every necessary qualification of the bloom, stem and foliage, and have built up a high standard for the new variety to reach. I have never been able to see how they could be strictly adhered to in judging a competitive class of say 25 blooms, white variety, which has brought out a strong competition of three or four different forms. The regular incurved form may be perfect of its type and appeal very strongly to one judge while another man may see more in a vase of blooms of the type not so closely incurved and another may fancy the loose form of the regular Japanese type.

The judges of the western exhibitions of the last few years have been men of strong commercial affiliations who have bestowed their approval on varieties fon and Col. Appleton. These when well developed are typical flowers of their class and combine all the good qualities called for in Mr. Smith's scale, but without the leading quality, namely, color, it is doubtful if they would have ever made any favorable impression with the public. Therefore I would suggest to Mr. Smith a slight change in his scale for judging classes of six or more blooms of one variety possessing the greater commercial value by being regular in form, even though not so large as some others in the competition. A glance over the records of the shows held around November 10-12 of late years I think will bring out the fact that in the white and yellow classes either W. H. Chadwick and Yellow Chadwick or Timothy Eaton or Yellow Eaton have been the winners. Sometimes the purity of color has been lacking, but their commercial form and commercial value have pulled them through. This has had the effect of checking the efforts of the private gardener and the smaller grower and left the field to the large grower who has a large number of these varieties to draw from. It has also created very much of a sameness as to the shows. The large, massive blooms seem to attract the public to a greater extent than the commercial type and it appears to me that we must cater to that taste more strongly than

THE VIOLET.

Violets at Rhinebeck.

Members of the Albany Florists' club to the number of 17 journeyed down to Rhinebeck on the afternoon of September 19 to pay a visit to James H. Snyder, secretary of the Violet Growers' Mutual Protective Association. At the village, which is about three miles east of the railroad station, the single violet is grown entirely.

The favorite variety at Rhinebeck is the Marie Louise. At this season the plants are being brought into condition for winter flowering. They are bearing a few blooms which are not held by the growers to be of good quality and only a small number is being shipped to market. Work in the houses consists mainly in pulling off runners and thinning out plants that have a tendency to develop too many leaves. Stock is free from insect pests because the growers have become adept in the use of cyanide gas. The gas is generated with the aid of sulphuric acid and water. The operator must exercise every precaution, as the gas is one of the most deadly things known. A fumigation once in three weeks is sufficient during a large part of the season, although at this time when insects multiply unusually fast some growers use the gas more freely. Rotting of the main tap root gives some trouble in many of the houses. The cause of this is obscure, but modern methods of investigation will undoubtedly solve the problem. Violets do best in rather low temperatures. Mr. Snyder said that toward the middle of the day, with the sun heat, 60 degrees is not too much but the plants will not thrive at any time with the same degree in artificial heat. The growers through a large part of the year keep their glass heavily coated with lime and hence are able at this season to hold the midday temperature down. Houses have been run in winter on extra cold nights as low as 36 degrees with no injury and possibly a benefit to the plants.

Following the visit to the houses Mr. and Mrs. Snyder entertained the members of the club at dinner. Louis H. Schaefer called to mind that the host and hostess on September 14 celebrated their silver wedding anniversary. In behalf of the club he in a neat speech presented Mr. Snyder a fine silk umbrella with silver mounted handle and initials. Mr. Snyder was surprised beyond measure but thanked the members for their gift. Someone started to talk politics and President F. A. Danker suggested the taking of a straw vote. E. P. Tracey and R. Davidson were appointed tellers and in the past few years. These days there is not enough difference between the blooms exhibited at the shows and those displayed in the first-class stores to create enthusiasm among the show visitors.

A few years ago the displays at the exhibitions were far ahead of anything that could be seen in the stores, and it is my opinion that we should work up to that standard now. At the St. Louis show of last year the large, massive blooms of the exhibition varieties entered in the Chrysanthemum Society of America classes were a great attraction and were such that could only be seen at an exhibition. The scale suggested by Mr. Smith for the purpose mentioned meets with my approval, though I should like to see a few points for substance. The points on color seem to me a little strong, because to my notion in a class for 12 or 25, white or yellow, as the case may be, to qualify the variety should be white or yellow. If traced or shaded with pink or bronze the entry should be thrown out. It does not seem justice to me to make a strong point on color for a new variety to gain a certificate under the national society's scale and then be lenient on the same point at the exhibition.

C. W. JOHNSON.

I am pleased to have the opportunity to give my opinion on the scale for chrysanthemums for exhibition, worked out by Elmer D. Smith, and would suggest as follows:

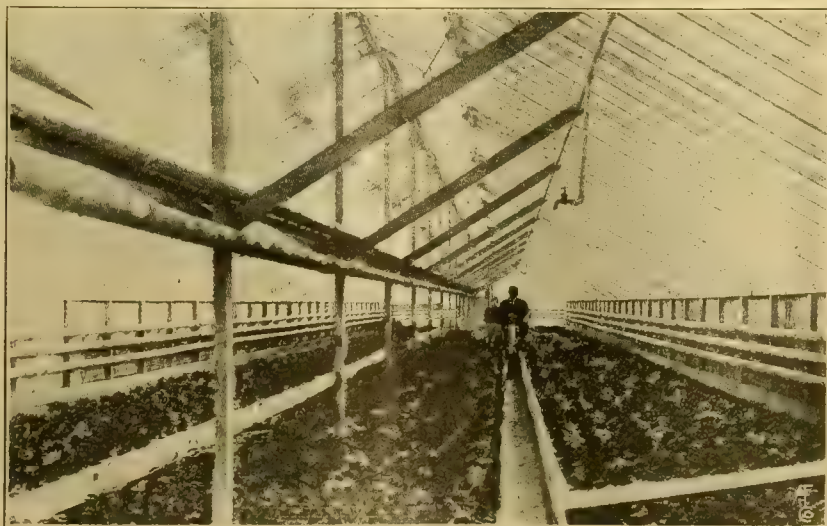

Color	15
Form	10
Fullness	15
Size	30
Foliage and stem.....	30

Total.....100

I agree that chrysanthemums are not grown for foliage, but what is a flower without good foliage and a good stiff stem? In my estimation such a flower is not worth having except for exhibition as a single flower in a collection with a twelve-inch stem.

tion, Rhinecliff, on the New York Central, the Albanians visited a number of violet houses, including the three owned by Mr. Snyder. Violet growing is the principal industry of Rhinebeck. The visitors noticed that in connection with almost every dwelling there were one or more violet houses. Details as to the growing were supplied by Mr. Snyder in his talks during the afternoon. In the violet growing district, which includes Rhinebeck and the country 16 miles south to and including Poughkeepsie, the growers devote their energies almost exclusively to the double English variety. W. C. Cahill of Fottler, Fiske & Rawson, Boston, Mass., who accompanied the visitors, said that in the

J. Vonder Linden's Plant.

The accompanying illustrations are views taken at the large violet growing plant of J. Vonder Linden at Rhinebeck, N. Y. One view shows his new range of four houses which are also devoted to double violets. One shows Mr. Vonder Linden spraying in one of his larger houses; the other view shows how he grinds manure for mulching, using his delivery auto for the power plant to run the spike cylinder. This he finds a speedy way to grind manure, putting it in the best of shape for mulching. About forty tons ground up fine is used for the entire plant. This year he has planted 75,000 double violet plants, which he says are the best he has ever had at this time of the year. Mr. Vonder Linden is very particular of the quality of stock that he sends out, his trade demanding the best that can possibly be grown at all times. He personally grows all the stock sent out from his plant, which assures his customers that they will be well taken care of. He is the largest grower of double violets in the Hudson River valley section, and as far as we know in this country. He has plans drawn for a large additional plant to be built in the near future with all modern improvements. Visitors are welcome at his establishment at all times.

Two Imported Plant Diseases.

The Department of Agriculture has issued a bulletin by Perley Spaulding, pathologist, investigating in forest pathology, and Ethel C. Field, scientific assistant, in which the white-pine blister rust and the wart disease of the potato, both of European origin, are treated. These plant diseases are said to be the cause of the passage of the recent quarantine law.

"Within the past few years," says the bulletin, "two very serious European plant diseases have been brought to North America upon imported plant material. These diseases are of more than ordinary economic importance to us, as one is apparently the worst enemy of the white pine in Europe, while the other is practically certain to become one of the worst enemies of the potato wherever it occurs. They are especially serious because both have stages of development in which they can not be detected by inspection. The white-pine blister rust has been brought to this country in several million young white-pine trees, some of which are known to have been in the country a number of years before the presence of the disease became known. The importations already made have been carefully inspected and the diseased trees removed so far as possible. So far as now known the disease has not yet spread and become established here."

WHITE PINE BLISTER RUST.

The winter spores of the white-pine blister rust are blown from the currant and gooseberry leaves upon which they are produced to the white-pines near by. They stick to the bark or branches of the young trees and germinate, the fungus penetrating the inner bark. There is no external evidence of disease until about a year after infection and the period of incubation may last from one to several years. Then the bark tissues begin to thicken and swell. Early in the spring after the disease becomes noticeable the fruiting bodies are formed, bursting forth from the inner bark tissues and setting the spring spores free. This is the most conspicuous stage of the disease and lasts from the middle of April to the middle of June. It is at this time that inspection should be made. The spring spores are blown about and fall upon the newly developed leaves of the gooseberry and currant bushes. From these there come finally the winter spores ready to infect more young white-pines.

The disease is sure to kill the infected tree. If it survives until it reaches the age of twenty-five or thirty years it is certain to break over in the first high wind. Most trees die the first season the fungus fruits, however. "The great damage," according to the bulletin, "is caused by the dying of young pine trees in nurseries, plantations and parks, and those naturally reproduced in the forests. In Europe the loss has in numerous cases ranged from 15 to 100 per cent of the original stand." Many European nurseries, including especially German and French ones, are known to have or to have had the disease.

The bulletin says that "Neger and Von Tubeuf mention this disease as the most destructive one occurring upon white pine in Germany. Griffon and Maublanc state that it caused much damage in 1908 in the forest of Fontenoy, France, and Pechon also mentions it as destructive in the forests of Ardennes, France. Ritzema Bos states that the disease has become so prevalent in Holland that the culture of white pine has been given up. A few years ago discrimination was shown in Europe against white-pine stock raised in Halstenbek, Germany, because of the blister rust. Ravn has recently stated that this disas it has done in Europe, the loss that will result through the destruction of one of America's most valuable lumber trees can only be described as appalling."

The disease found here has been traced directly to German and French nursery firms. Prompt action has prevented the spread of the fungus, so far as known. Currant and gooseberry bushes have been removed from the vicinity of the infected trees wherever discovered, and the trees themselves have been destroyed.

POTATO WART.

The potato wart was discovered in Germany and Upper Hungary sixteen years ago. So far as known it has never reached the United States, but is known to have become established in Newfoundland. The wart attacks the tubers and causes the formation of wrinkled, warty excrescences, causing the disease to be called variously "wart disease," "black scab," "canker" and "cauliflower disease." The organism causing the trouble gains entrance through the tender tissue of the eye. At first it is difficult to ascertain.

"In more advanced stages the disease is very apparent. One or more nodules, varying in size from that of a wrinkled pea to lumps as large or larger than the tuber itself, may be found. These are green where they project from the ground and white below, turning as they grow old to dark brown or almost black. They have a wrinkled, coral-like appearance, much like the head of a cauliflower. A still more advanced stage occurs when the fungus has utilized every particle of food stored in the tuber and has reduced it to a brownish black soft mass, giving off a very unpleasant, putrefactive odor. Such potatoes can not be harvested whole. The black pulpy mass breaks up, liberating millions of sporangia (spore sacs) which live for case alone is responsible for discontinuing the use of white pine in Denmark as a forest tree, as the tree is otherwise very successful there. Somerville says 'that the outlook in this country [England] for the Weymouth (white) and other five-leaved American pines is almost hopeless. * * * But it is to be feared that the day is not far distant when it [the white-pine blister rust] will gain a footing in North America, and if it spreads there, years in the soil. These sporangia have been known to infect potato crops after an eight-year interval. So far as known, longer intervals have not been tested and it is possible that the fungus may live in the soil even longer than that.

"The organism causing the 'wart disease' forms two kinds of sporangia—the summer sporangia and the winter, or resting, sporangia. The latter, which hibernate in the soil or on the tuber itself, germinate in the spring, freeing thousands of motile spores. These are capable of moving some little distance if moisture is present. If they come in contact with the eye of the potato they work their way into the delicate tissue in probably much the same way as does the organism which causes the clubroot of cabbage."

CONDITIONS IMPROVING.

Business conditions are improving, but stock is not over plentiful. White roses are in demand, with but few on the market. Mums are coming in in greater quantities and merit a ready sale.

NOTES.

Henry Gattenhemy has returned from his vacation and says that the new arrival will be a big help to him in the wholesale department of Gude Bros.

Geo. H. Cooke has on display some of the finest mums seen in Washington this season.

BUSINESS PICKING UP.

With the cool weather business is picking up. There is an abundance of all outdoor flowers on the market. Good roses are not plentiful just now. The rose growers are getting their stock ready for later cutting and consequently there are not many buds to be had. Dahlias are coming in now.

NOTES.

The sixth annual Dahlia Show will be held at Vincent's Dahlia and Canna farm, Cowentown, Md., September 24-27. This is certainly worth while to take in. About 65 acres of dahlias and cannas present to the eye a beautiful sea of color. Thousands of flowers are arranged in the exhibition hall and to a lover of these beautiful autumn flowers the sight is worth while.

The florists are turning their attention now to the heating of their houses. The temperature recently has called for artificial heat at night, especially in the rose houses.

The regular meeting of the Gardeners' Club will be held Monday evening, September 23, at the club rooms. A large attendance is expected.

FLOWER SHOW.

A flower show was held here during fair week, September 16-21. There was a good display of cut flowers, plants and designs. The competition was for professionals only and the judges were—Eubank of Eubank & Nordstrom, and Dr. Hanchette. The prizes were awarded as follows:

Funeral designs—Rocklin & Lehman, first; J. C. Rennison Co., second.

Plants—Rocklin & Lehman, first; J. C. Rennison, second.

Vase of roses—Rocklin & Lehman, first; J. C. Rennison Co., second.

Vase of asters—J. C. Rennison Co., first; Rocklin & Lehman, second.

Vase of carnations—J. C. Rennison Co., first; Rocklin & Lehman, second.

The contest was a close one throughout and the fair association claims it was the best flower show ever held here.

NOTES.

J. H. Chilson, who has been connected with the J. C. Rennison Co. for a number of years, will have charge of the firm of Rocklin & Lehman after October 1. This firm is opening a branch store in the new Martin Hotel in the heart of the city.

The recent cool nights made stock scarce but the demand is better than ever. Outdoor stock is about at an end but the carnations are coming in nicely.

THE STATE FAIR.

At the state fair only three local firms competed for premiums this year, and honors were pretty well divided among them. The horticultural building presented a very pretty appearance, and, owing to the meager fruit display, room for once was plentiful. Fred Dorner acted as judge. The three contesting firms were the Pahud Floral Co., Roepke & Rieman and the Reinken Floral Co. The Pahud Floral Co. was first ten times, second fifteen, and third seven. Roepke & Rieman carried off first honors twelve times and were second five, and third thirteen. The Reinken Floral Co. took nine firsts, eleven seconds and eleven thirds.

THE ANNUAL PICNIC.

The State Florists' Association held its annual picnic at Broad Ripple, August 28, with about 75 members present. The weather was fine and everybody had a good time. Mrs. Ed. Reinken carried off the honors in the clothespin contest.—Elder, of Hartje & Elder, won against a strong field in the ice cream eating contest. Miss Elder, sister of the ice cream champion, was first under the wire in the young ladies' race, and O. E. Steinkamp won in the race for men.

Mr. Arnold has been a resident of Cambridge for twenty-five years holding responsible positions, in other lines of business, but has always been a successful amateur in the growing of flowers and his stock is now looking well. Mr. Oldham, who is now seventy-five years old, does not look it, and is hale and active. He says he does not intend to rust out, although he has retired.

OBITUARY.

Angelo G. Baldocchi.

The sad announcement of the death of Angelo G. Baldocchi, of San Francisco, Calif., which came unexpectedly, was received with much regret by the fraternity. An honored member of the society, upright, courteous and considerate of all, his many admirable qualities rendered him worthy of the high esteem in which he was held by all who knew him. His inborn love of the beautiful was reflected in the floral conceptions that attracted the patronage of many of his city's select and most discerning lovers of flowers. The sympathy of the trade and the members of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society was appropriately expressed in the character and beauty of the many floral offerings sent by them to the chapel in which the funeral services were conducted. The deceased had been engaged in the flower trade in San Francisco for the last 21 years, just one-half of his life. Two brothers are the only near relatives surviving him.

Thomas Fletcher.

Thomas Fletcher, a well-known and respected florist of Warren, Ohio, died at his home in that city August 31, of blood poisoning, after a very brief illness. He was born in Swans Village, Lancashire, England, in 1863, and came to this country when nineteen years old. Before leaving his native land he had learned the trade of a puddler and worked at it for a time in this country. For a number of years he had been engaged in the flower business at Warren, having 15,000 square feet of glass and a store in the heart of the city. He was a member of the Independent Order of Foresters and attended the Methodist church. He is survived by one son, Francis, about 20 years old, who will continue the business, and one daughter, Grace, 18; also a step-daughter, Mrs. Stanley Johnson, and three brothers and one sister, who live elsewhere in this country. His wife died several years ago. A. F. F.

Richard E. Evans.

Richard E. Evans, who conducted a flower store at 36 South Main street, Salt Lake City, Utah, died at his home September 15. He was a victim of paralysis, having suffered a stroke two years ago, since which time he had been unable to attend to his business affairs. For two weeks before his death he had been unconscious the greater part of the time. Mr. Evans was born in Portsmouth, England, in 1850 and was 62 years old at the time of his death. He came to America in early manhood and in 1882 established a flower business in Flint, Mich. He later sold out and had been located in Salt Lake since 1891. He is survived by a widow, one daughter and three grandchildren, and also a brother and sister. He was a member of the Woodmen of the World and the services were under the auspices of that order.

William W. Thompson.

William W. Thompson, a florist and gardener of Milwaukee, Wis., died at his home, September 19, at the age of 80. He leaves three sons, William, Fred and Charles, and a daughter, Hattie, of Lyons, Wis. He was a veteran of the Civil War and the funeral services, which were held Saturday, September 21, were in charge of the G. A. R.

HEAVY shipments of indoor plants should be moved now, before hard frost.

ALTHOUGH it was found necessary to levy an extra assessment recently, officers of the Florists' Hall Association report that their society is growing faster than ever before.

WE have received from Secretary Benjamin Hammond, Fishkill-on-Hudson, N. Y., advance sheets of the premium list of the American Rose Society's spring exhibition, to be held in connection with the National Flower Show at New York, April 5-12.

FLOWER SHOW preparation must be completed without serious delay to insure success at the chrysanthemum exhibitions.

EXAMINING COMMITTEES.

President Chas. H. Totty announces the committees to examine new chrysanthemums for the ensuing year as follows:

Boston—Wm. Nicholson (chairman), James Wheeler, Alex. Montgomery. Ship flowers to Boston Flower Exchange C. Park street, care of chairman.

New York—Eugene Dailedouze (chairman), Wm. H. Duckham, A. Herrington. Ship flowers to New York Cut Flower Co., 55 Twenty-second street, care of chairman.

Philadelphia—A. B. Cartledge (chairman), John Westcott, S. S. Pennock. Ship flowers to A. B. Cartledge, 1514 Chestnut street.

Cincinnati—R. Witterstaetter (chairman), James Allen, Henry Schwarz. Ship flowers to chairman, Jabez Elliott Flower Market, care janitor.

Chicago—J. B. Deamud (chairman), D. A. Robertson, Peter Schilt. Ship flowers to J. B. Deamud, 160 North Wabash avenue, Chicago.

Shipments should be made to arrive by 2 p. m. on examination days to receive attention from the committees. Must be prepaid to destination and an entry fee of $2 should be forwarded to the secretary not later than Tuesday of the week they are to be examined, or it may accompany the blooms.

Seedlings and sports are both eligible to be shown before these committees, provided the raiser has given them two years' trial to determine their true character. Special attention is called to the rule that sports to receive a certificate must pass at least three of the five committees.

The committees will be in session to examine such exhibits as may be submitted on each Saturday during October and November, the dates of which will be October 5, 12, 19, 26 and November 2, 9, 16, 23, 30.

STOCK GETTING SCARCE.

Stock of all kinds has shortened up considerably. Local asters are about done, and shipped stock of medium quality are about the only asters available. Dahlias are coming in larger quantities and the market for good stock is satisfactory. Good red and white dahlias are short of the demand. Carnations are still rather short in the stems, but the flowers are good. Roses are far short of the demand and are generally sold on advance orders before stock arrives. The quality is excellent. Gladioli are shortening up in supply and not nearly enough to fill orders can be had. Asparagus plumosus and sprengeri is plentiful, as are adiantum fern and string smilax. The first shipment of boxwood for the season is expected about the middle of the week. Southern smilax has had a good call and stock this season has been unusually good. Good fancy and local dagger ferns are plentiful. The supply business has been good. Many retailers are stocking up for fall business.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY'S SHOW.

The premium list of the Ohio Horticultural Society for the exhibition to be held November 14-16 at Gray's Armory is out, and every grower or retailer who has not received a copy can have one by addressing John N. Stockwell, secretary, 218 City Hall, Cleveland, Ohio. There are cash prizes, medals, cups and certificates of merit in abundance and the cash prizes are worth trying for, ranging from $2 to $50. Following is a partial list of classes staged: Chrysanthemums, orchids, miscellaneous plants, table decorations, carnations, Brides and corsage bouquets, roses. The entrance fee is only $1. C. F. B.

Cincinnati.

BUSINESS GOOD.

Business as a whole continues good and everything sells. Last week at the opening and close everything was cleaned up. The middle of the week showed a little slacking up in the demand that caused some things to be held over a day and then sold a little lower than the preceding day. This, however, was the exception rather than the rule and applied only to a few roses. Between openings, fall weddings and the like everything worth while is utilized and on some days more might easily be used. The supply of roses is good and includes American Beauties, Pink and White Killarney, Richmond, Bride, Taft, Rhea Reid, Ivory and Sunburst. The improvement in Richmond the past fortnight has been most marked. The buds now have their rich midwinter color and form, and in view of the fact that American Beauties are pretty thoroughly off crop, should prove a first-class seller from now on. Carnations continue to increase in supply and many of them are first-class stock for the time of the year. Giganteum lilies are short of the call. The few that come in are good, but many more might be used. Other offerings are cosmos, dahlias and asters. Business in greens of all kinds is good.

NOTES.

Visitors: E. L. Humphrey of Zanesville, C. P. Brunner and wife, Springfield; Martin Weber, Brookville, Ind.

Peter Weiland was in Cincinnati on Friday. He is cutting an elegant crop of Brides and White Killarney roses.

C. E. Critchell has been finding a steady call for the early chrysanthemums he has been receiving.

Julius Baer's father, Michael Baer, died the early part of this week.

J. A. Peterson and wife went to Dayton on Sunday.

W. R. Miller of Covington, Ky., died on Monday. H.

Boston.

IMPROVEMENT IN BUSINESS.

There is a marked improvement in the business. The cool fall weather we are having just now has given an upward swing. There is no scarcity in any line, but goods move better than for some time, especially the good stock. Chrysanthemums are in. Some are well grown and some go by the name only. There is more satisfaction to the seller in having good stock, no matter what the flower is. It increases the grower's trade in dull times and gives a stimulating effect to business that poor stock kills.

NOTES.

The Natick school children held a flower and vegetable show of some merit. The schools were closed all day Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon of last week and it was a pleasure and surprise to see the interest taken in the work by the children and the teachers. The Commercial Club voted $50 last spring for the purchase of seeds and Robt. Montgomery gave roses to the children to be grown by them and offered a prize for the best blooms. Alex. Montgomery and Jas. Wheeler were the judges in the flower department and Samuel Watts was judge in the vegetable section. The exhibition is worthy of emulation by other towns and cities. It creates an interest in the work, and stimulates the love for flowers, which will afterwards result in more being sold, happier homes and better contented citizens.

There are a few good business omens which ought to portend to a good winter's business. Mercantile building in Boston is good, all trades are busy. The stock of all of the wholesale florists is good, there are bumper crops, according to government forecasts, and a shortage of cars to accommodate the crops promised. We hope all these signs will make good, and that the florists will come in for their share during the coming winter.

The absorbing topic at present is the National Flower Show next spring. John Young was in Boston keeping the pot boiling. They promise a better one than Boston, and that says much.

Welch Bros. filled an order last week for 2,000 specimens of Golden Glow mums for an out-of-town dealer.

Mac.

BARABOO, WIS.—The Peck greenhouse property has not been disposed of as the highest bid, $1,800, made at the administrator's sale was not regarded as high enough.

URBANA, ILL.—Prof. Charles Durst, instructor in horticulture at the University of Illinois, and Miss Bertha Good were married at the home of the bride's parents in this city September 4.

Philadelphia Notes.

The September exhibition of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society held September 17, while not very elaborate, made up for quantity with quality. The H. A. Dreer Co., W. Atlee Burpee and Richard Vincent & Sons each made exhibits of choice stock. The Burpee exhibit was as usual very well displayed, Mr. Geo. W. Kerr, who was in charge, being an expert in this line. The new peony flowered sorts were much admired, as was the Golden West, Burpee's fine yellow seedling. The Dreer collection was enhanced by the addition of a background of ferns, each specimen flower standing out from a fringe of delicate green. Over seventy-five varieties, all named, were in this collection. Herbaceous phlox were also a feature. Vincent's table had some very beautiful sorts, mostly standard varieties. W. F. Bassett of Hammonton sent some very well grown flowers of the best commercial sorts. Among the private gardeners, Joseph Hurley's collection of outdoor flowers was a prominent feature. John Little's table of vegetables was the best. H. Michell & Co.'s prize for dahlias was won by Wm. Fowler. This exhibition was well worth seeing, but the attendance shows that for some reason the public are not interested as they should be considering that there was no charge for admission.

At the Niessen market many new faces were seen on Saturday, it being an opening day for quite a number of smaller retail men who thought it was time to get in the game by making a bid for custom with a more liberal display. Dahlias are a feature here and they are sold by the wagon load. Cattleyas are handled in quantity, while American Beauties are given quite a large section in the cold-storage rooms. Pink and white Ward carnations are seen here with 22-inch stems.

The Robert Craig Co. is shipping quantities of plants daily to men with greenhouses who are stocking up while the weather will permit of the cheaper transportation by freight. Their new addition of 50,000 feet of glass at Norwood is nearing completion. This is now one of the largest places in the country given over almost entirely to the growing of foliage and flowering plants for the retail florist.

Edward Reid is not in love with the dahlia, never was, so don't go to him for this queen of the farm. American Beauties, Kaiserin, valley and orchids are favorites seen here in quantity. Quite a lot of New York state asters are still being handled.

The Philadelphia Cut Flower Co. report Easter lilies, white carnations and white roses in active demand, while dahlias and chrysanthemums are draggy. They look for better conditions next week.

M. Rice & Co. are having a run on their wedding requisites, all the way from the kneeling stool and wedding gates to fancy ribbons and chiffons for the bouquets.

Never had such a run before on wedding accessories is the report from Bayersdorfer's. "We have to work at night to keep up with our orders," they say.

STOCK SCARCE.

A little more life was noticeable throughout the market the past week, especially among the retailers, which caused a large demand on the wholesale houses. The displays by the large department stores at their fall openings is creating quite a demand for large and showy flowers and chrysanthemums and American Beauty roses are being largely used. The shipments of stock from the greenhouses to the wholesale stores have been rather small and there is a shortage in all kinds of flowers. American Beauty roses are sold immediately upon arrival and white roses are bringing extra good prices. Roses especially are of good quality and some magnificent Killarney, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Prince De Bulgarie, Radiance and Lady Hillingdon are now arriving but sell up quickly. Richmond are in better supply and some very fine long stemmed stock is to be seen. Chrysanthemums are now being received in large quantities and are used in all large displays, and decorations. Assters are nearly done, there being but few of the first quality offered, but gladioli are still plentiful and the quality is good for the lateness of the season. Orchids are in much larger supply, there being large receipts of Cattleya labiata, C. Gigas, C. Gaskelliana and some beautiful sprays of Oncidium varicosum Rogersii. Carnations are more plentiful but the supply is about equal to the demand. Lily of the valley and gardenias are scarce and lilies of excellent quality are now being received in good quantities. There are plenty of greens and sprengerii is overplentiful. Autumn foliage is being freely used in the store windows and decorations betokening that the fall trade is opening.

NOTES.

Percy Jones is doing a big business in supplies as well as cut flowers and H. Van Gelder has been obliged to increase his store force to take care of the rapidly growing business. Jack Brenner, formerly with the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, O., is the latest addition in the cut flower department. Red ruscus of the best quality is seen in large quantities at this store and advance orders for Christmas are now being booked.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is enlarging its supply department and Geo. Poehlmann is now busy building another balcony 10x60 feet. Otto W. Frese says that orchids are now a little more plentiful at this establishment and that the shipments now include Cattleya labiata.

Miss K. N. Cooper says that the Auburndale Goldfish Co. is receiving a large number of orders for goldfish from florists in all parts of the country. Her extraordinary offers A and B to encourage early ordering are big bargains and should be looked into.

Chas. W. McKellar's shipments of orchids are large and contain fine Cattleya labiata, Dendrobium Formosum and Oncidium varicosum Rogersii. Frank Ayers is back from a business trip to Paris, Tex., and Frank Schleiden is again in the employ of this firm.

A meeting of the Cook County Florists' Association was held at the Tavern, West Washington street, Thursday, September 19. The trade is cordially invited to attend a supper which will be given at the Tavern on October 10.

Mr. and Mrs. John Prickett, of Des Plaines, are rejoicing over the arrival of an 8 pound boy. The home of T. B. Gray, sales manager for the Geo. M. Garland Co., was also gladdened by the arrival of a bouncing baby boy last week.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association has added Louis Cannon & Co., the fern growers of Uno, Mich., to its list of stockholders and this firm is now making regular shipments to the association's store.

J. A. Budlong is cutting a fine grade of lily of the valley, Golden Glow chrysanthemums and My Maryland roses. The shipping trade is picking up considerably and the call for lily of the valley is exceptionally good.

The J. B. Deamud Co. reports a good demand for gladioli and the large daily shipments of Mrs. Francis King, Augusta and America now arriving at the store are sold at a very early hour.

Louis Wittbold says that the Geo. Wittbold Co. has just finished planting the carnations at its Edgebrook establishment and that the demand for decorative stock is now very good.

Bassett & Washburn are cutting a large quantity of Golden Glow and Smith's Advance chrysanthemums and also a good supply of Mrs. Aaron Ward and Rhea Reid roses.

The next regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club will be held at the Union Restaurant, West Randolph street, Thursday, October 3.

J. P. Sinner is able to be about again and will most likely be discharged from the hospital next week.

Weiland & Risch are finding a ready market for their fancy Mrs. Aaron Ward roses and report an unusually good September.

John Kruchten is disposing of his gardenias as fast as they arrive to his local customers.

Anton Rintz has moved from 1762 North Robey street to 1579 Clybourn avenue.

George Fisher is serving on the jury this week.

Fred H. Rowe leaves for Seattle this week.

L. E. Partridge, of Sharp, Partridge & Co., says that the glass market is still very firm and all the prophecies he made sometime ago were fulfilled. His firm is very fortunate in having a large supply of greenhouse glass in stock and the proprietors think that it is absolutely safe for the growers to place their orders for breakage now.

The Superior Machine & Boiler Works delivered two of their No. 1 hot water boilers to August Priests of Park Ridge, this week. A No. 5½ boiler with a heating capacity of 42,000 square feet of glass, will also be delivered to John P. Karels, North Robey street, in the near future.

Erne & Klingel are making good in the wholesale business and are building up a good city trade. Chas. Erne reports a brisk demand for extra select cut blooms of hardy hydrangeas.

The remodeling of George Perdikas' South Wabash avenue store is well under way and the proprietor will have a fine modern establishment when the alterations are completed.

The John C. Moninger Co. has delivered all of Bassett & Washburn's greenhouse material and it will only be a few weeks more before the new range will be completed.

The Kroeschell Bros. Co. has sold a duplicate of the No. 15 boiler that it exhibited at the last S. A. F. convention to the C. C. Pollworth Co. of Milwaukee, Wis.

George Pieser has been devoting nearly all of his time to wedding decorations at the Hotel La Salle since the closing of the roof garden, September 15.

Al. Fischer is very well pleased with the new Flanders car that he has just added to his delivery service.

O. Johnson says that the Batavia Greenhouse Co. has its new Kewanee boiler installed and that work on the heating system is now completed.

N. J. Wietor says that business is fine at Wietor Bros. store and that their American Beauty roses are selling like hot cakes. The Killarney roses that are now received at this establishment are excellent and have unusually fine color, foliage and stem.

Peter Reinberg's Richmond roses are fine and the supply of the stock that is now arriving at the store is sold quickly at good prices. The long stemmed flowers are particularly good and are nearly equal to winter grown stock.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are filling orders for a fine grade of new boxwood for which they report a good demand. W. E. Lynch is back from his eastern trip and is again on the job.

H. T. Miller, who now has the old Lamborn greenhouses, is doing a good business. He is yet a young man and may be expected to develop further.

FALL SEASON BEGINS.

A change to cooler weather has caused stock to shorten up considerably. Asters are about over. Roses are decidedly scarce and bringing good prices. In American Beauties long stems are seen, but there are few shorts. Smith's Advance and Golden Glow chrysanthemums are coming in. Carnations in poor quality are numerous, but good stock is scarce. This week has been fair, and the season may be said to have started.

NOTES.

We are informed by Mrs. O. C. Simmonds of 1508 Cass avenue that the address of Miss L. Doussard, notice of whose opening was published in our last issue, is 309½ Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis, instead of 3091-92 Collinsville avenue, as at first reported.

F. H. Weber had the decorations at the opening of J. Steinbergh's Hat & Fur Emporium. This store was elaborately decorated with bay trees, palms, chrysanthemums and beauties artistically arranged in baskets and bunches. Dave Geddes did the work.

Foster, the Florist, opened up Saturday. His store is one of the largest in the city, on a very busy and prominent corner, Kings Highway and Delmar avenue. He has an especially fine assortment of plants and well grown ferns.

H. G. Berning, as usual, has a good supply. He could have disposed of considerable more moss. A large quantity of inferior grade of carnations had to be sacrificed, but good stock has a steady demand at good prices.

C. A. Kuehn has a fine assortment of all seasonable flowers and a full line of supplies. Some good medium length American Beauties and fine valley are found here.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. has had a good assortment of stock. Lilies, American Beauties, carnations and roses have had steady demand. The supply department is rapidly filling up.

Mrs. O. C. Simmonds has a nicely fitted up store at 1508 Cass and is a daily visitor to the market with her machine.

Ostertag Bros. had the banquet at the Coliseum at the druggists' convention. The decorations were very elaborate.

Flowers for one of the largest weddings of the season at the Columbian Club were furnished by Grimm & Gorly.

Werner Bros. are shipping to the Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. a fine lot of White Killarney roses.

George Nalbait is making a fine display of all varieties of cut flowers and decorative plants.

F. C. Weber's delivery machine is one of the handsomest in this city.

Grimm & Gorly are out with a fine new delivery wagon.

C. Betscher has a force of men busy on his great crop of gladioli. He has one of the largest flower farms in the state, there being thirty or forty acres in gladioli, cannas, dahlias and peonies. His cannas are particularly noticeable at this time, as he grows the standard varieties.

INCREASE IN TRADE CONTINUES.

The last week business continued to increase and a number of good social events helped to stimulate the general trade. A shortage of roses and carnations was experienced and the supply was not up to the demand. Outside stock is very poor and though we have had no killing frost yet one is expected almost any time and all will be glad to see the outside supply shut off.

STATE SOCIETY MEETING.

The annual election of officers of the Minnesota State Florists' Society took place at the meeting held September 17 at Holm & Olson's store. The officers for the coming year are: Hugo Will, Minneapolis, president; O. J. Olson, St. Paul, vice-president; S. D. Dysinger, St. Paul, secretary; E. P. Holm, St. Paul, treasurer. On the executive committee are Theo. Wirth, Minneapolis; L. L. May, St. Paul; L. R. Cady, St. Paul, and C. N. Reudlinger, Minneapolis. A good representation of florists from both cities was present and a very enthusiastic meeting was held. A fund was started at this meeting to affiliate with the Chrysanthemum Society of America and $20 was raised. The remaining $5 for the membership fee will no doubt be shortly forthcoming. It was decided not to take the money from the treasury, but to raise it of the members by general subscription. After refreshments the meeting adjourned. The next meeting will be held at the Park Board Greenhouses in Minneapolis on the third Tuesday in October. A number of members seem to forget that dues are payable on September 1 and that after that date they are delinquent. The various committees of the Flower Show are constantly working and are progressing rapidly, and as the show is now not far distant all are getting anxious. Donations from firms of wholesalers and manufacturers outside of the Twin Cities reach about $500 in cash and other prizes. These donations will be a good help and are cheerfully received. The preliminary premium list is now out and is being rapidly mailed. The publicity committee is running in the leading papers good articles regarding the coming show.

NOTES.

Holm & Olson furnished the decorations for a banquet given in honor of J. J. Hill's seventy-fourth birthday. The banquet was held at the Auditorium September 16 and places were laid for 1,200 guests. The decorations were exceptionally fine. A great abundance of southern smilax and palms were used. For color there were hydrangeas, heliopsis and euphorbia variegata and the effect was very beautiful. A loving cup was presented to the "Empire Builder" and to have all to harmonize the cup was filled with orchids, eleven varieties being used.

L. P. Lord, of the Lord Box Co., Minneapolis, spent a few days in St. Paul last week booking orders for his "New Idea" box for cut flowers. He experiences no trouble in convincing the florists of the advantages of his invention over the old style cases used for shipping. His order book plainly demonstrated the fact that the local florists agree with him.

The L. L. May Co., which for the last several years has conducted a retail store on East Sixth street, will by October 1 move into a more commodious store. The store on the corner of Fifth and Minnesota streets has been leased by this firm. The location and the store are both good and the move should prove a beneficial one.

O. R. Eckhart of O. R. Eckhart & Co. spent a few days last week visiting the trade in the southern part of the state. He says there is a good outlook for the coming season's business.

A. A. Epperly of the Eckhart Co. was married September 11, and after a honeymoon spent in the northern part of the state, is back at his regular place.

Columbus, O.

As the capital of a great and wealthy state it is to be expected that Columbus will shine in matters pertaining to horticulture, and it is pleasing to note evidence of prosperity on every hand. Not only is the glass area being greatly increased but new and well equipped retail stores are being opened from year to year and progressiveness in the business is the watchword.

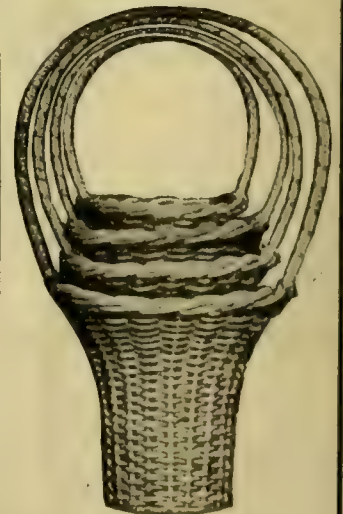

A recent visit to the range of the Columbus Floral Co., a strictly wholesale establishment, showed excellent work in carnation growing. Manager Miller is an experienced grower and a good business man and is ably assisted by his general foreman, L. S. Bibler. There are over 100,000 square feet of glass in this range, a part of which is devoted to vegetable growing. But there is large space for flowering stock, as evidenced by 65,000 carnation plants which are in fine condition and beginning to flower freely.

At the John R. Hellenthal range everybody was cheerful over the outlook. Young Mr. Hellenthal takes pride in a copy of THE AMERICAN FLORIST Directory of 1890, which he owns. Needless to add it is much smaller than the present directory. There are about 120 pages less than the edition of 1912.

The Munk Floral Co. has been making extensive improvements at its range during the past summer. A large and roomy workroom with cold storage space has been erected of brick and stone. The roses are now in fine condition and the store on High street is well stocked with seasonable flowers.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. seems prosperous and both their ranges are well stocked. At the old range they have about 35,000 chrysanthemum Montreal.

BUSINESS GOOD.

The demand for decorative plants has been very keen for the last week, but the growers were well prepared as this has been for the last half dozen years an annual occurrence. Business is good, but flowers are getting scarce, owing to the outdoor stuff being practically ruined by the continuous rains. Roses are coming along nicely and some fine flowers are cut, but small as yet. Carnations are all, with few exceptions, under glass. They stood transplanting well, as the cool, dark weather was in their favor. Chrysanthemums are cut plentifully now. Smith's Advance and Golden Glow and the mid-season varieties are showing color and promise well. There are more mums grown around Montreal this year than ever before. Asters are nearly gone. Dahlias and gladioli are very good yet.

ANNUAL EXHIBITION.

The Montreal Horticultural Society's annual exhibition, held September 11-12, was quite a success. The exhibitors were more numerous and the exhibits of a higher quality than in former years. The attendance, though not as great as hoped for, was ahead of last year. The plant section award was keenly contested for, but W. J. Wilshire, gardener to R. B. Angus, easily carried off the aggregate prize. In the cut bloom section R. Burrows and J. Linck were close rivals, but the former won by one point. The fruit section was not a success as the insects have nearly destroyed the whole crop. The vegetable section furnished the best contest and the exhibits were of the highest quality ever seen here. Ignace Morrow, Notre Dame College, was the winner of the aggregate prize. The show was opened by Mayor LaVallee in the absence of President Wilson Smith. The judges were: Plants—Jos. Bennett and E. J. Hayward. Cut blooms—G. A. Robinson and W. J. Wilshire. Fruit and vegetables—Geo. Trussel and John Eddy. Amateur exhibits—R. Burrows and F. C. Smith. On the evening of the last day of the exhibition the venerable and esteemed president of the Montreal Horticultural Society, Wilson Smith, died at his summer home in St. Agathe. The society not only loses a president of many years, but also an earnest worker for its good and his place will be difficult to fill. L.

Tacoma, Wash.

CONDITIONS IMPROVED.

Business conditions with those in the flower trade are greatly improved since the last trade notes were sent in, and we may look for better prices and better business. The extremely hard rains and cool weather with no sunshine has about ruined the most of our outdoor flowers. Many of them were literally pounded to pieces by the heavy rainfalls. Field plants of carnations have made unusually fine growth and planting them inside is under way successfully. Indications seem to show that fewer plants will go in this season—as last season proved to be rather over-done and prices were too low to pay well.

NOTES.

Some excellent red roses are being received from Oregon and seem to find ready sale at $1.00 a dozen.

STOCK SCARCE AND DEMAND GOOD.

The past week the weather has been fine and members of the fair sex have thronged the streets viewing the elegantly arrayed shop windows decked with a lavish display of the latest creations in wearing apparel, the occasion being the Fashion Show conducted annually by the leading dealers in fine wear. It is a matter of regret that so few natural flowers were used in the decorations, artificial ferns, etc., taking their place. Flowers at this season being plentiful, it would appear that the florists should take steps to encourage their use in next year's shows. This ought to help solve the "what to do with the surplus" question. Counter sales have been excellent; weddings, dinner parties and like functions have been numerous, and with an unusual amount of funeral work have resulted in a busy week for the trade. On the other hand, there is a decline in the demand usual with the Jewish holidays. Flowering plants are very scarce, some small cyclamen being about all that is offered; Boston and elegantissima move well. A fine lot of Adiantum O'Brienii sent in by H. Plath retails readily at $5 each and up. Florists' stock in general is good for the season. American Beauties are looking up and any day may advance 50 cents on the prevailing rate of $1.50 a dozen. Marylands are the best pink, and with the Killarneys and Richmonds coming in three grades, sell from 35 cents to 75 cents a dozen. Carnations are slow, the warm spell retarding the quality. Mums are plentiful at 75 cents a dozen, a few specials like Duckham and Louise Sievers bringing $1.50. There are no orchids and will be none for the next two weeks. Valleys are 50 cents a dozen and very scarce owing to the heavy demand; violets are much improved by the early rain and clean up well daily at 75 cents a dozen bunches. A few gardenias are coming in and many more would be welcome. Frank Pelicano is still sending in some good Francis King gladioli at 50 cents a dozen. To sum up, good stock is scarce and the demand good.

SOCIETY MEETING.

The last meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society was well attended and the members were treated to a show of dahlia blooms of fine quality. Wm. M. Brown, for the MacRorie-McLaren Co., showed three fine plants of Oncidium splendidum, O. varicosum and O. McKayii. For small plants the spikes and blooms were admirable. The judges awarded the display 75 points. William Kettlewell showed some very fine dahlias, including several seedlings, that compared favorably with the best named varieties, one large decoration being particularly good. He was awarded 90 points. Chas. Ehrlich showed a nice collection of dahlias, largely new seedlings, some of which give much promise; 80 points were awarded his exhibit. J. W. Glidell, a local amateur grower, showed a number of European dahlia novelties which were quite praiseworthy despite their apparent lack of cultivation. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered by the society to Members H. Plath, Angelo J. Rossi, D. MacRorie and Julius Epstein and wife for their work in behalf of this city for the S. A. F. convention of 1915. Eric James made the formal announcement of the loss to the society by death of Member Angelo G. Baldocchio. Frank D. Pelicano, the veteran florist, paid a high tribute of respect to his late friend, speaking in glowing terms of the excellent personal qualities and the ability of the deceased member. The secretary was instructed to forward a letter to the bereaved brothers, expressing the sympathy of the society. Applications for membership were received from Frank Webster and Herbert E. Drew, gardeners at the Claremont Club, Oakland. The society has appointed a committee on athletics to form bowling and baseball teams.

NOTES.

H. Plath and wife have returned from an enjoyable trip to Lake Tahoe. Henry Goertzhorn of Redwood reports 40,000 mums in fine condition to cut from. Henry Maier of Burlingame has nearly that many. Frank Roach has an acre or more, and when the numerous Asiatic growers are considered there ought surely be something doing in mums this fall.

The Ferneries, of which H. Plath is proprietor, are making a specialty of the "Irish maidenhair," the popular name applied to A. O'Brienii. This handsome variety, while too somber a green for cutting, is the best adiantum for residence purposes, which fact is fast becoming recognized.

The Grallert Co. is sending all its blooms of Gerbera pameonii to the Francis Floral Depot. As a novelty it retails readily at 50 cents a dozen, and being an excellent keeper, has surely come to stay.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. has an entire house of Phalenopsis amabilis coming in shortly in addition to a house of Cattleya labiata. T.

TRADE BETTER BUT NOT BRISK.

The rose crop is not at all overabundant. Several reasons are given for this. The first flowering period being past and a new growth coming on, houses are held for better trade conditions, and the buds are pinched off to get longer stems with the next growth, which should at maturity find a better market. American Beauties are not so plentiful and clean up well with little stock going to waste. All the newer roses appear to find admirers. The Taft, Lady Hillingdon, Mrs. Ward and the latest entry, Sunrise, will give Killarney a run the coming season and add much needed variety in the rose section. Cattleyas are now to be had by the 1,000 if required. They are of superb quality. Prices are less than one-half of the figures of three weeks ago. Gardenias are much too plentiful. The street men are seen daily on Chestnut street carrying boxes of very good flowers which are offered at extremely low figures. Surely some one is blundering; forcing this flower on a dull market at the opening of the season is no way to build up a trade at good prices for this exclusive flower later on. Easter lilies and valley are about normal in supply. The early weddings are keeping the valley crop moving. Some very good carnations have been seen, but they will not be much of a factor until Jack Frost disposes of their outdoor rivals. The dahlia now dominates the market. Quantities of choice flowers are sent in on orders, and as this is all selected stock the grade of these flowers is gradually being raised. The bargain lots of inferior stock which hardly brought enough to pay the freight, and which were sold on the streets for a song, are now allowed to go to waste on the farm and in this way much better returns are secured. The first violets arrived last week, all singles, small flowers, which do not keep over night, but they are very fragrant and appear to find buyers. Golden Glow and Smith's Advance chrysanthemums are a little too plentiful for the demand. There are still a few asters, the purple finding a good market, as they are popular for funeral work. The business of the past week while a trifle better than the week before has not the desired snap, consisting of a little in the morning and much too little the rest of the day. Saturday was an exception. There was quite a demand and the commission houses cleaned up very well. K.

BUSINESS SLOWS UP.

The encouraging increase in business that was noticed in the early part of the week did not continue, and at present the supply far exceeds the demand and prices on everything have a downward tendency. The market is "swamped" with outdoor grown flowers of all kinds and large quantities of these have to be thrown away daily. Roses are improving in quality and there is a little better demand for some of the very best. Carnations are more in evidence and those that have long stems sell readily. Lilies are doing a little better. With orchids, as was expected now that there are several growers sending in cattleyas, the quotations are about half those of the previous week. The supply of chrysanthemums is increasing daily. There is very little call for the best lily of the valley which is plentiful. The regular supply of gardenias is on hand and there is the usual supply of green stock.

NOTES.

The auction sales, both at Elliott's and MacNiff's were well attended, but the most interest was taken at the sale of the big stock at MacNiff's. There were over one hundred interested buyers there and the prices obtained were as a general rule very satisfactory. Some of the prominent buyers present were George Stumpp, J. H. Troy, C. C. Trepel, Joseph Trepel, Thomas Griffen, H. W. Wippermán, John B. Nugent and A. Eisenburg.

Gomer Waterer, of John Waterer and Sons, England, is a visitor. He has inspected the new Grand Central Palace and is very favorably impressed with the buildings. He will take a large block of space and make an extensive exhibit at the coming International Flower Show.

N. Lecakes has made extensive improvements at his farm in South Norwalk, Conn., where he will grow an extensive line of green goods and nursery stock. Recently a trolley line has been built through his property, which has increased its value to a very great extent.

William Duckham will sail for Europe on the Mauretania October 2 to visit his parents, after which he will make an extended trip to secure foreign exhibits for the International Flower Show at the New Grand Central Palace next April.

At the last meeting of the club, Henri Beaulieu had on exhibition drafts for nearly two hundred dollars, rebates that he had received from the American Express Co. This was for excess charges made on shipments of seed from France.

"Johnny" Weir has returned from his one-day vacation spent with Joseph Fenrich at Bradley Beach, N. J. entirely rejuvenated. He is now prepared for a hard season's battle with the dealers in the "Street."

Dan MacRorie and A. Rossi have been in town all of the week, enlightening the florists on the attractions of California, and urging them to visit San Francisco in 1915.

Walter F. Sheridan, organizing director of the alumni of the New York Florists' Club, will have that society well established before the date of the International Flower Show.

A. Kollmiller, recently with Joseph G. Leikens, has established himself in a very attractive store on Madison avenue, between Forty-fourth and Forty-fifth streets.

Carl Cropp and wife, of Chicago, sailed from Bremen, September 12, on the Koenigen Luise and are due to arrive in New York Saturday, September 21.

An effort is being made to reorganize the bowling club and the two best alleys at Ladue's, Sixth avenue and Twenty-sixth street, have been offered.

Clarence Shinn has started in the wholesale business at 55 West Twenty-sixth street, taking space on the floor controlled by the Alex. J. Guttman Co.

Robert Leach of Jersey City has begun to cut chrysanthemums. These are consigned to M. C. Ford.

Ralph Armstrong, for many years with Madley & Smythe, has opened a retail store at Madison avenue and Forty-seventh street.

Komitsch & Junge are making regular shipments of orchids to Traendly & Schenck.

Visitor: P. R. Quinlan, Syracuse.

Newark, O.

Paul Halbrooks, formerly a well known Chicago grower and later with the Livingston Seed Co., of Columbus, has bought the range and business of A. J. Baldwin, located opposite Cedar Hill Cemetery. His carnations, roses and chrysanthemums are looking fine.

Charles A. Duerr is thoroughly overhauling and renovating his range at Granville, which is one of the most beautiful towns in Ohio. Mr. Duerr's store in the Newark Arcade is well cared for by his daughter.

Warren S. Welant & Son are vegetable growers with 200,000 square feet of glass. They seem to know enough about flowering plants, however, to beautify their grounds with fine bedding work.

The Kent Brothers are two enterprising young men who have been but a few years in business. They have a good range of about 25,000 square feet and two stores.

This Budding Knife Free

The Unrivalled Henkel Knife Shown Above Ivory Handle and Fine English Steel Blade will be mailed absolutely free to anyone sending in Two New Subscriptions to The American Florist, the new subscribers being persons in the trade or trade employees. This knife cannot be bought anywhere for less than $1.25 and most dealers will probably ask more for it, as the price of ivory has been advanced recently.

Send Post Office Money Order or Express Money Order for $2.00 with the names and addresses of two New Subscribers (persons in the trade, as Florists, Seedsmen or Nurserymen, or their Employees) and we will send them the paper for one year after receipt of subscriptions.

With Canadian orders it will be necessary to send $4.00 with two new subscriptions and $5.00 with two new subscriptions from other foreign countries.

The request for the knife must be made when sending in the subscriptions, giving name and address of person to whom the knife is to be sent.

The knife will be mailed absolutely free if the sender of the New Subscriptions complies with the above instructions.

Under the auspices of the Children's Home Garden committee, a creditable exhibition of flowers and vegetables grown by children in the public schools was held in Washington park on Saturday afternoon, September 21. Previous to announcing the awards the officers of the Albany Woman's Club, which is responsible for the movement, made short addresses. A committee of the club visited over 500 of the children's gardens in various parts of the city during the week beginning September 8.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubs, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, and painted green. These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established, and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When in Philadelphia Be Sure to Look Us Up

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your convenience, both going and coming. Then you will see our Palms of all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place), and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to our Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition

Catalogue Postage at Pound Rates.

The same privilege in the method of mailing printed matter, without disturbing present rates, which magazines and newspapers now enjoy, has long been sought for mail order houses and especially for florists, nurserymen and seedsmen who issue catalogues. The importance to catalogue houses of this privilege of mailing in bulk and of paying postage upon the actual weight of the matter mailed rather than upon the present basis of the postage rate for an ounce, though but a small fraction of an ounce may be involved, is readily apparent to all concerned.

In this connection a bill introduced before congress by Representative William Sulzer of New York (H. R. 26357) is of general interest. Section three, which was prepared by the head of the McFarland Publicity Service, Harrisburg, Pa., at the request of Mr. Sulzer, provides that hereafter matter now available as third-class matter, if offered at any postoffice in quantities of not less than five pounds at one time, shall be available at ten cents per pound or fraction thereof.

NEW YORK.—Carl Cropp, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, with Mrs. Cropp, arrived from Europe September 21. Miss E. Heskett, also of this firm's western house, is a visitor this week.

Potato Crop Heavy.

The white potato crop, judging from conditions at September 1, was estimated at 87.2 per cent of a full crop by the September Crop Reporter. This was a big gain over 1911, when the percentage was only 59.8, and also a substantial increase over the ten-year average of 79.6. The report shows that the potato acreage for the United States is 3,689,000. The estimated yield is 108 bushels an acre, which shows the crop to be a bumper one and much above the average. In 1911 the yield was 80.9 bushels and the 1906-1910 average was 96.8. The government estimates the entire crop at 398,000,000 bushels for this year, an increase of more than a hundred million over last season, according to the Reporter. Oregon leads in average yield with 101 per cent of a full crop. Montana is second with 99. The states of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Indiana, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Kentucky, Montana, Wyoming, Arizona, Utah, Nevada, Idaho, Washington and California each has a percentage of 90 or more. The far-western division leads with an average of 92.9 per cent. It was estimated that the price per bushel for the entire United States was 65 cents.

Packet Seeds.

In a bulletin on the "Germination of Packeted Vegetable Seeds" issued by the Bureau of Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture, B. T. Galloway, chief of the bureau, has the following:

"During the past five years a series of tests has been carried on to determine the vitality of packeted vegetable seeds. Germination tests have been made of 18,571 packets, about one-third of them having been purchased from mail-order houses in 1911, and the other two-thirds bought at local stores where box seeds were sold, in 1907, 1908, 1909 and 1910. The germination of the mail-order and box seeds was 77.5 and 60.5 per cent, respectively. The seeds purchased from different mail-order houses were more nearly uniform in quality than the box seeds. The average germination of box seeds put up by one firm for four years was less than one-half that of those put up by another firm. The low vitality of many of the seeds tested is the best evidence that such seeds should be sold with a guaranty as to the percentage of germination."

In the same bulletin under the heading "Germination of Seeds Should Be Guaranteed," we find another interesting paragraph: "The sale of packeted vegetable seeds will not be on a proper basis until each packet is labeled with the percentage of live seed which it contains. This practice would do away with the trade in seeds of low vitality and at the same time give the purchaser the information to which he is entitled and without which he can not use to the best advantage the seeds he buys."

[Prof. Galloway will no doubt explain clearly his use of the word "guarantee." A paid scientist like himself should not use words loosely as a layman might. Is it his idea to guarantee the crop or refund the money paid? Does he know what the word guarantee used in this connection means? How would he like to be a crop-guaranteeing seed dealer?—Ed.]

Lancaster Florists' Club.

At the first meeting there was a fine display of mums from Rudolph Nagle, also some choice carnations from Amos Rohrer. The president, A. M. Herr, gave a short talk on the S. A. F. meeting in which he deplored the fact that he had never seen any notices in the trade papers of bequests being left to this society. He urged the members of this club to support the S. A. F., saying that "it takes money these days to accomplish anything, and this trade will never take its proper place in the world until we have a permanent headquarters, preferably in Washington, with our secretary always there and ready for business, with power to employ legal or other talent whenever it is to the best interests of the trade to do so. This club will want to attend the International Flower Show next spring almost in a body, and then will be a good time to join the S. A. F. Some day the powers that be will wake up to the fact that money in an association of this kind is best invested when spent for the general good and when this awakening comes the more there is to spend the quicker will be the results."

Considerable enthusiasm was created and it is likely there will be a good representation at the show next spring from this club. In a general discussion for the betterment of our own club it was decided to have the monthly notices open to any announcements by would-be purchasers or sellers of stock of any kind in a local way only. A committee was appointed for the purpose of arranging visiting tours among the various growers during the season, and the programme committee gave a programme up to and including the January meeting.

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

Chas. E. Frankenbach & Sons,
SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y.

Wheeling, W. Va.

John Dieckmann, a local grower, had a fine exhibit at the state fair and secured a number of prizes. Mr. Dieckmann has a fine range of about 60,000 square feet of glass near Wheeling Park and his stock, particularly carnations, looks fine. He is yet a young man, but has built up a fine business.

Among the striking public improvements of Wheeling is a splendid new market house of brick and steel now under construction. We judge that many of the florists who do a market business will there find much more commodious quarters.

Wm. F. Zane & Son, who are located on the Island, have just erected a new house. Mrs. Zane is an active participant in the business and her forty-four years of experience in this one location makes her invaluable.

The fine residence section in the vicinity of Mt. Calvary and Wheeling Park is now beautiful with salvias, hydrangeas and other flowering stock. The landscape features of this section are alone worthy of a visit.

Arthur Langhans' retail store is one of the very attractive features of Chapline street. He had a large amount of funeral work on the occasion of the sudden death of Mayor Schmidt of Wheeling.

The Misses Forbes and Donahey continue to do a good business and their store on Market street is always attractive.

Frank C. Seibert, proprietor of the Echo Dell Greenhouses, is just finishing two new houses and is showing good stock.

Two Important New Commercial Ferns

Cyrtomium Rochfordianum

(The Crested Holly Fern)

The most valuable Decorative Fern of recent introduction.

A most important addition to our list of Ferns. Its foliage is of a rich, deep, glossy green color, the pinnae or leaflets besides being wavy or undulated are also deeply cut or toothed, giving the plant a graceful light appearance, which makes it valuable not only as a dish Fern but decorative work and for apartment use.

2 1/4-inch pots 75c per dozen, $5.00 per 100, $40.00 per 1000;
4-inch pots $2.00 per dozen, $15.00 per 100. Also a limited lot of flats of about 200 plants each, at $3.00 per flat.

Adiantum Farleyense Gloriosa

(The Glory Fern or Rum Von Mordrecht)

The Fern which will revolutionize the cut frond business.

For the grower of Ferns for cutting this new Maiden Hair will undoubtedly prove a most important addition; it closely resembles Adiantum Farleyense and will make a splendid substitute for that fancy variety, and it can be produced at much less cost, as it will thrive under conditions in which Adiantum Farleyense could not exist.

At our Riverview Nursery we have given it a very fair trial for this purpose during the past winter. A block of these plants were planted on a bench in a house devoted to the ordinary Boston Fern and received the ordinary treatment and temperature given to the Nephrolepis, and under this treatment they developed not only fronds of great beauty on longer, stiffer stems than Farleyense produces, but also many more fronds than would be developed by that variety in the same length of time under the most favorable condition.

Anyone who successfully grows the ordinary varieties of Adiantum, such as Cuneatum, Croweanum, and Hybridum, can grow it under precisely the same conditions given to these sorts.

We have a fine block of about 30,000 young plants, 2 1/4-inch pots, at $2.00 per dozen, $15.00 per 100, $140.00 per 1000.

A. B. C. Code; 5th Edition

Zanesville, O.

J. D. Imlay has within the past year established another range of 25,000 square feet of glass, at South Zanesville, which with his old range, near the fair grounds, brings his total glass area up to 50,000 square feet or more. The new range comprises two houses, 30 x 300 feet each, with smaller houses. A large concrete boiler house and work rooms have also been erected and all the work is substantial and well adapted to successful growing. He has a good retail store on North Fifth street.

The Zanesville potteries have attracted so much attention in the horticultural world that it is possible the florists have been to some extent overlooked. Again, it may be that the florists have taken so much pride in the great potteries of their city that they have been content to remain in the background, leaving it to others to extol their activities. Having recently visited Zanesville, the writer will give a few facts concerning both the florist and the pottery industries.

Peters & Reed, who are noted for their good red pots, are now busy packing and shipping. They are now bringing out new and very handsome designs in store vases and hanging pots, the latter being fine imitations of baskets. The work is novel and unique and retailers would do well to see them before stocking up.

Although C. L. Humphrey has only been in business about five years he has been very successful. He has now 50,000 square feet of glass and in addition to his local trade in cut flowers and plants has established an extensive plant shipping business. At present he is shipping fine stock of asparagus sprengeri.

J. T. Goodlive has a considerable glass area near Greenwood Cemetery and has a large cemetery trade. He has also a flower and seed store on North Fourth street.

The business formerly known as F. C. McCaslin, on McIntire street, is now McCaslin Brothers; they have good stock coming on.

Canton, O.

J. R. Cowgill has a finely equipped retail store at 306 West Tuscarawas street. In fact, in all its appointments it is superior to many of the metropolitan stores. Mr. Cowgill, like his brother, V. Austin Cowgill, the Salem grower, is a very energetic and wide-awake young man, with twentieth century ideas.

Charles Blaner, who succeeded C. W. Faust at the Georgetown Road Greenhouses, is showing himself a good grower and turns out much stock.

A. T. Pollard, formerly of Worcester, Mass., recently opened a retail store on West Fifth street and has been turning out good design work.

Mushroom Culture.

It is surprising that with all the constant advice in regard to mushroom growing so few are really produced. The fact is, much of the advice given is misleading. The writer has come across claims that ladies can make money at mushroom growing, or that they can be easily grown in a basement, cellar or shed by any one. Such statements are far from the truth and are inclined to hurt rather than increase the popularity of mushroom culture. The fact is, there is much labor necessary and the requirements are exacting. The one who bears this in mind and enters prepared is more likely to succeed than he who looks for a snap. In the first place we must have a building where we can control temperature and moisture. Allowing 50° as a minimum and 60° as a maximum, we must control air currents, for any rapid circulation would carry off the needed moisture, which is not easily replaced. Next, we must have fair facilities for handling earth and manure in and out and last, our place should be such that other and more valuable things are not damaged, as the work is carried on. Light is unnecessary. Drip from overhead is ruinous as well as flooding from below. A good time to begin is as early in the fall as the summer heat breaks down a little. Fresh horse manure is used and it requires some time—about three weeks. We pile it rather flat to prevent violent burning and turn every two days, turning the inside out and vice versa until the rank heat is gone.

Is the New Variety of

TOMATO DAVY'S MILLIONAIRE

This new variety will take its place amongst the earliest sorts. The fruits are enormous, very fleshy, nearly free of seeds, almost smooth, of a deep scarlet color, and borne in clusters of three or four.

The giant size, earliness and the quality of the fruit will render this variety one of the very best introductions of the year.

Forestry as a Profession.

"The Profession of Forestry" is the title of a circular by Henry S. Graves, forester, of the United States Department of Agriculture, that is likely to prove of great interest to the young man taking up this profession or contemplating doing so. The article briefly reviews the history of forestry in this country and goes on to say that to become a competent forester a college education equal to that required for the law and other professions is essential.

"The character of work which the forester is called upon to do varies greatly under different conditions," says Mr. Graves. "Some men spend the greater part of their time in the more strictly technical work of the profession. They study such problems as the determination of the amount of merchantable timber on a given tract, its rate of growth, the best methods of cutting to secure a second crop without recourse to planting, and, in general, all problems which deal with the life history and production of the forest. Other men spend more time on the business end of the profession, in devising methods of protecting the forest from fire, in organizing an efficient system of administration, in determining the cheapest and most effective methods of lumbering, and, in general, in dealing with the problem of the utilization of the forest.

"By far the greater number of foresters, however, have to deal with both the scientific and the business aspects of the profession. They must know how to appraise the value of timber and how to utilize it in the best possible way, as well as how to grow it. They must be able to estimate how much it will cost a thousand feet to log a given tract of timber, at the same time that they predict how soon it will be profitable to cut the same area again. In other words, the average forester must be a good business man, with a thorough technical education. The scientific equipment is simply a matter of thorough schooling; the business equipment must be secured by practical experience in woods work.

"The first requisites for the successful forester are that he have a liking for the sort of life which he will have to lead, and that he possess the health and constitution to stand it. The forester's work is physically exacting. He has to make long, hard trips in the forest, and under present conditions and those which will continue for a long time to come travel is necessarily rough. Sometimes it means a long trip on horseback, sometimes by canoe, and sometimes very hard and rough walking. The forester is not infrequently subject to actual physical hardships, and in any event he must have the constitution to endure such hardships should the occasion arise.

"Foresters are now finding employment with the Federal Government, with various States, with lumbermen and other private owners of timberland, and with educational institutions and those conducting research in forestry. So far the United States Government has been the principal employer of foresters. It is probable that fully 95 per cent of the trained foresters in the country have at one time or another been engaged in government work, and 60 per cent or more are in it today."

What a Standard Pumping Unit Means to You

Because Standard pumping units were originally designed to meet the water supply problem of the greenhouse and year by year have been gradually improved to meet all conditions, until today they stand as the final solution to that once great problem. This is why the Standard pumping units means more to you than any other make, this is the ultimate reason why your equipment is not perfect without a "Standard Direct Pressure Pump."

For years we have unceasingly wrestled with your problems, have tested and perfected one method and then another. Today we hand you the solution. We admit it was a hard theorem, but our solution has proved perfect.

The pumping engine shown here is our perfect product; it is made in a type for every use. It means to you both economy and superior durability, the accessibility of all parts and ease of operation through simplicity of design. Our name is a guarantee of quality and our binding guarantee means to you perfect workmanship, perfect satisfaction, or money refunded.

If you will write us concerning your requirements, we will turn your problem over to experts on water supply systems and have them advise you as to your needs. Our new catalog No. 12 should be in your hands.

Comparative Life of Steel Tubular and Cast Iron Boilers.

ONE of our customers near New York who, six years ago, put in a steel tubular boiler, has never yet had to replace a tube; while another customer near Philadelphia had to re-tube the entire boiler and patch the shell in three years' time.

The life of a tubular boiler all depends on the kind of water in different localities—some destroy the steel slowly—others are so charged with carbonites and acids as to be speedily destructive.

Steel tubular boilers, due to such causes which are entirely beyond the control of their makers, are an uncertainty.

Re-tubing steel boilers is an expensive operation.

Cast iron, because of its intensely hard, compact nature, will greatly outlast several steel boilers, even when the most destructive water is used.

Cast iron boilers are entirely free from re-tubing or shell-patching expense. If your range is so large that a tubular boiler is a necessity, then there is no way to get around it. But if you have 37,000 square feet of glass or less, then our cast iron boilers are unquestionably by far the cheapest boilers to install, operate and keep in repair.

It's a serious mistake to get the wrong boiler.

It would be a good, sound, sensible thing to do, to have a talk with us and get our advice as heating engineer experts, on what boiler you ought to have.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Hydrangeas.

The hydrangea plants in the field should be now potted and made ready for winter quarters. If the plants have still a strong succulent growth they can be left standing out where the wood will be given a chance to ripen off. After potting they should be given a good watering that the soil may be settled around the roots, but after that the plants should be sparingly watered. The main object at this time is to harden the plants off and ripen them up. Never mind if the foliage wilts to some extent, for it is desirable that this should all drop off before storing away for the winter. A few frosts will be of benefit, but as the weather is uncertain they should be placed in a position where they can be conveniently covered and protected from a severe freeze. While it is desirable to harden up the wood and plump up the flowering bud yet too hard a freeze will kill the bud. As soon as well ripened they should be placed in cool quarters, where they will remain dormant until it is time to start them.

Cannas.

As soon as the frost kills the cannas, preparations should be made for the storing of the stock plants for next year. The tops should be cut off about six inches above the ground and removed from the field and not left lying around to attract cut worm millers. The roots should be dug and each variety should be carefully kept separate so that there will be no chance of their being mixed another season. Unless the weather is very severe they can be allowed to dry off a little before being housed, but if there is any chance of the night temperature dropping below the freezing point it is much better to get them under safe covering at once. Under a bench in a cool house is one of the best places to keep them during the winter months, but if the soil under the bench is inclined to be moist, boards better be placed running lengthwise of the bench and the canna roots placed upon these. They must, however, be looked over occasionally to see that they do not run too dry, for there is just as much danger of losing the plants by their drying up as there is by their rotting from an excess of moisture. In placing the clumps under the bench set each variety by itself and leave space enough between it and another variety that it will be impossible, no matter what may happen, for them to get mixed. Mark each variety with a label, written plainly and in full. It takes but a few seconds longer to write the name in full and abbreviations are to be deprecated; we have known cases where the man who always does things in a hurry to abbreviate the names so short that when he tried to read them six months later he could not make out what name he intended to write. This is often a case where "haste makes waste." Attach the labels in such a manner that they will not become misplaced or lost.

Early Firing.

"Economy is wealth." This maxim has been drilled into the young for generations, but false economy is waste. And to put off starting the fires until all the plants have cold feet, and have received a check that is going to take them two or three months from which to recover is false economy. As soon as the temperature in the house drops below the point at which they should be maintained, it well pays to start the fires. Many nights at this time of the year at 8 o'clock the temperature outside will be above 60°, but by morning it has dropped to 40°, and if the houses are closed the glass will be covered with moisture, the house cold and damp. This condition is not at all conducive to good growth, and gives the plant a check from which it often takes it some time to recover. It is far better and a money-making proposition to have the fires going and the proper temperatures maintained. The small expense of a little coal burned and the few weeks' wages of a night foreman that are necessary will be more than made up in the excellence of the crop. At this season of the year there will occur cold, stormy days when a little heat will be necessary to keep up the growing temperature all day. This is the time to look over all the piping and see if the boilers are working right. If steam heat is used see that none of the pipes have dropped from their fastenings and have made pockets in the circulation. If this has happened, fasten them up and straighten out the flows. Turn on the valves and see if they leak, and if they do repack them; in fact, it is good policy to repack all valves every fall, whether they actually need it or not, for they will require it before the winter is over. This early firing will also give the opportunity to spread sulphur and nicotine extracts on the pipes and keep the insects and mildew from getting a foothold. Looking at this question from all sides, early firing is an economical proposition and should not be neglected.

Autumn Thoughts.

Down in the far off hazy west
The autumn sun is sinking low,
And on each tree-top hill and crest
With autumn tints the landscapes glow.
Those colors there which feast the eye
Show signs of winter drawing nigh.

After a summer fierce and grand
To be remembered for its drought,
When on the parched and famished land
Plant life showed signs of giving out.
When mildewed rose and blistered leaf
To many a gardener's heart brought grief.

Sweet peas looked promising in May
And tennis lawns were in their prime,
But July shriveled blooms away
And spoilt the verdure for some time.
Hay crops around were very light
For thermometers stood at 50° all night.

Skyward the lettuce crops soon bolted
And the garden peas fell sick,
Whilst seaside lodging house keepers gloated
For visitors came fast and thick.
But though to them 'twas profit bringing
For rain the gardeners started singing.

July was hot, but August hotter,
Now the fat crop gives out,
Herbaceous plants show signs of totter
And wild eyed cooks began to spout.
For of vegetables there's not half enough
And if not stringy, well, they're tough.

August, the month of flower shows,
For gardeners brought but failure,
For famished plants stood up in rows
And 'twas enough to 'maze yer:
To see the water giving out
With thirsty trees and things about.

On lasts the drouth all through September
And green stuff scarcer grows each day,
The housewife always will remember
What for a cabbage she had to pay,
And when next winter snowstorms are howling
Let us hope she will refrain from growling.

October's in, no rain has hurried
To refresh the dusty soil,
The gardener's face is sad and worried
As he views his dally toil.
His usual crops are all amiss
- And pity fills his mind - "Not bliss."

But when he gazes round on nature
Lo! he's in his paradise,
For each day a changing feature
In the landscape charms his eyes;
Hills and haws big bushes bending
Leaves in color never ending.

Azalea beds with colors glowing
That would crotons put to shame,
Quercus, Ulmus, Fagus blowing
Leaves of color, none the same,
Whilst such crops of berries sure
No one living saw before.

Soon will frost plant growth be ending
And old nature fall to resting,
On gardener's skill each day depending
And his past foresight a testing,
When for garden produce cooks do cry
Let's hope each want you can supply.

Quickly now the nights are closing,
Shorter each day grows the light,
For next year's crops your ground be choosing,
Prepare it well, then stock it right,
Let drouth nor rain your heart dismay
Overcome all! 'tis a gardener's way.

The Cotillion Supper Table.

Arrange a large oval flat basket with white hydrangeas, using generously of maidenhair ferns for the edge around the basket. Use asparagus vines around the edge of the table, caught up at intervals with white satin ribbons. On either side along the table use cut glass bowls filled with maidenhair ferns. In the center place a tall white candle with a white satin shade. Use asparagus vines in and out and around these cut glass bowls. These bowls will also look pretty arranged with red berries, using a mat of maidenhair ferns. Or, white hydrangeas could be advantageously grouped around the bowls, but must not cluster close to them—a space should be left between the garland and bowl. Again, instead of white hydrangeas the pink variety can be prettily used, combining them with pink roses and maidenhair ferns. Instead of the flower garland a satin ribbon garland can be used, clustering a bunch of roses in the centers and ends. Also, the berries used in combination with the white hydrangeas are pretty. This can be offset with autumn foliage.

More Tumbler Baskets.

In our issue of September 21 there appeared an article on "Tumbler Baskets" from one of our contributors which proved to be unusually interesting. In the accompanying illustrations may be seen two more of the baskets which have become extremely popular in the last twelvemonth.

These receptacles are especially desirable to fill with cheap flowers, generally in combination, for sale to the customer whose purse will not stand the strain of a heavy purchase. They may be placed in the window or on the end of the counter and are sure to attract attention. For special sales or for window displays they fill a place of their own. As already stated, they gain their name from the fact that they are made to hold a small cup or tumbler. The tumbler is filled with water and the flowers placed in in a bunch. Oftentimes the glass is first filled with sphagnum moss and the water poured in before the basket is made up. A ribbon on the handle is usually the finishing touch. The flowers, being always in the water, are pretty sure to keep in good condition until disposed of. The baskets themselves are made in many designs and sell usually at from about 88 to twice that amount a hundred.

For a Cotillion Decoration.

Suspend from the ceiling at generous intervals Japanese parasols. Cover them completely with white satin, handles and all. Arrange a pyramid effect of pink roses around the outer center. Do not cover the entire parasol with roses but use garlands of them instead. On the ends put a cluster of small roses. Stretch from each parasol pink satin ribbon streamers, making a bowknot from the center of each. From this bowknot suspend a ring of pink roses. Intersperse between these parasols Moorish hanging lamps. On the walls arrange massive garlands of pink roses and asparagus, making the garland in the middle of a sort of crescent shape and place above this crescent shape white and pink satin flags with the emblems as desired.

Place in the corners the artificially made Colonial rose bushes with a large crown made of pink roses. Group around the tub small potted ferns of different varieties. For favors a sleigh made of pink carnations and drawn by pink satin ribbons in which the different favors can be arranged will be pretty. A suggestion for the favors would be a tiny Dresden flower pot in which a miniature rose bush has been arranged. Flower holders filled with an inexpensive flower are good. So are the canoe favors pretty when arranged with a ribbon so that it can be carried over the arm when dancing. Tiny leghorn hats made of straw and filled with a small flower are excellent. Riding whips on which a cluster of flowers has been arranged with a long loop to throw over the shoulder for the men is good. So are the pipes of the large wood variety, filling the bowl of the pipe with a small flower.

FLORISTS' FERNS.

Two Novelties.

Meritorious novelties among commercial ferns have not appeared in very great numbers in the past few years, apart from the various members of the nephrolepis group, and most of the latter have arisen from one species, namely, N. Exaltata. But the present season witnesses the distribution in quantity of two fern novelties, each of which appears to have various points in its favor from a commercial standpoint. The first of these is the so-called "Glory Fern," otherwise known as Adiantum "Glory of Moordrecht," a somewhat cristate and fertile form of Adiantum tenerum.

It will be recalled by those familiar with ferns that the most beautiful of the maidenheads, Adiantum Farleyense, is also a cristate form of A. tenerum, but that this old favorite is seldom, if ever, fertile, and, in addition to this drawback, the successful grower of A. Farleyense must give it a rather higher temperature and more care in culture than is required for the average commercial fern.

In the Moordrecht fern, however, we find some of the beauties that are characteristic of A. Farleyense, coupled with a much harder constitution, the latter character being so marked that the fern in question is found to make better progress when grown under such conditions as are found satisfactory for Adiantum Croweanum, rather than in the higher temperature and closer atmosphere that is usually found necessary for A. Farleyense. As already noted, Adiantum "Glory of Moordrecht" bears fertile spores, and these germinate freely, the young plants in 2-inch and 3-inch pots being difficult to distinguish from A. Farleyense of similar size. But as the plants grow larger the fronds of the Moordrecht variety are found to be of more irregular outline, the pinnae smaller and the foot stalks longer and more erect than those of the other variety mentioned.

As a prize-winning specimen it is doubtful if the new fern will compare with its older relative, but as a commercial variety, either for mixing among other plants in a basket or hamper, or for use as cut fronds, there would seem to be a larger future for the Moordrecht fern.

The second fern of merit that is being offered more freely this season is Cyrtomium Rochfordianum, an improved form of the old and well-known C. falcatum, a fern that has frequently been called the "holly fern" from its dark green and glossy leaflets. C. Rochfordianum has the same shining foliage as its parent, but the pinnae are irregularly toothed about the edge—perhaps lacinate would be a more descriptive word to use in this connection—and the leaf stems are shorter, thus giving the plant a more compact habit. Equally hardy with C. falcatum, and in all probability no more difficult to propagate than that admirable fern, the newcomer seems destined soon to make a place for itself in the trade.

In growing the Cyrtomiums it is always well to remember that C. falcatum is almost hardy, bearing quite severe frost without injury, after the plants have become established outdoors, and with this in mind the careful grower will not give these ferns too high a temperature or too close an atmosphere, lest the plants become weak and spindly, and also be liable to attacks of thrips and other insects.

Fern variations are frequent in the experience of the large grower, and Cyrtomium falcatum, having made this break under cultivation, it would not be surprising if there should later on appear a really cristate form of this fern. A well-crested Cyrtomium would doubtless find a place among trade ferns, especially if it proved easy to raise from spores.

It will be admitted that all crested ferns are not equally meritorious, and in some cases the plain form may be preferable, but the crested pterises, nephrolepis, aspidiums, scolopendriums and others, are already classed among the useful ferns, and still there is room for improvement, even to the extent of a good crested Cyrtomium. Among the regular stock, the plants of Cibotium Schiedei that are being prepared for this season's market will now be growing freely, and will be less likely to suffer from burning of the young fronds, if they are given an abundance of air and watched over carefully to avoid getting too dry.

During excessively warm weather it is not uncommon to find some young leaves that have suffered on the tips, not only on the Cibotiums but also among the Boston ferns, but free ventilation and plenty of water will help much in avoiding this trouble. When either Cibotiums or Bostons are thoroughly rooted they are benefitted by an occasional feeding with manure water, the latter being used in moderate strength only and at intervals of not less than a week.

W. H. TAPLIN.

Ferns for the House.

Not every species of fern will endure the dry air, extremes of temperature and occasional neglect that is its fate when introduced into cultivation in the house, and yet those who select plants for fern dishes, pot plants and the like, seldom take this fact into consideration. The first fern likely to be selected is some species of maidenhair (adiantum) which is about the least fitted of any to endure house conditions. There are a few species of this genus, says the Fern Bulletin, that might be expected to thrive in such a position, but they are not grown by the florist. His specimens are certain to be those that prefer or demand shade and a moist air. The sword fern (nephrolepis), which dealers with an eye to business call the Boston fern, makes a good house plant because it can endure considerable drouth, having become accustomed to such things from generations of life upon the branches of trees or fallen logs in the tropical forests. The holly fern (cyrtomium falcatum) of the florist is also able to endure house conditions, its thick, glossy leaves being provided with an epidermis that prevents the rapid loss of water. A fern not often seen in the house, though well adapted to life there, is the saw-fern (pteris serrulata). It has long been known as a garden plant and is now spread nearly around the world in the tropics, but is supposed to have come originally from China. It is fond of growing on old walls and finds the dry air of the modern house quite to its liking. It will grow and put forth new fronds throughout the winter. Another fern, common in cultivation, which cannot be named by the writer because he has never seen a fruiting specimen, is apparently a species of asplenium, regarded as being of Japanese origin. It appears to be quite hardy and able to endure any ordinary winter when left to itself out of doors, but in the house it grows strong and green and is not affected by the lowered night temperatures that occasionally prove the undoing of less rugged plants. Nearly fifteen years ago this fern was reported as naturalized in the vicinity of New York, having escaped from some near-by greenhouse, but if its name is known, the fact seems never to have been put on record. Ferreting out the name of this species might prove an interesting task to some student of foreign ferns.

Mixing Fertilizers.

In order to use fertilizers intelligently it is necessary to know the principal commercial sources of nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, writes W. H. Beal, in an article entitled "How the Scientific Farmer Fertilizes His Farm" in the Scientific American. Nitrogen, which is the most costly constituent of fertilizers and the one most subject to loss, is derived mainly from nitrate of soda, which is the most available and, at present prices, one of the cheapest sources of nitrogen now on the market; sulphate of ammonia, also a readily available form of nitrogen, which is obtained as a by-product of gas works and coke ovens, and various organic substances, mainly slaughter house and factory by-products, such as dried blood, tankage, dried fish and cottonseed meal.

Phosphoric acid is derived from bone, mineral phosphate, superphosphate (made by treating mineral phosphates with sulphuric acid) and phosphatic slag. The principal sources of potash are the potash salts—kainit, and muriate and sulphate of potash—obtained from the German potash mines.

These are the standard raw materials from which fertilizers are prepared. The raw materials may be purchased unmixed and applied separately or mixed as desired. The state experiment stations can furnish specific advice as to methods of mixing and formulas for special crops and soils. It is well to bear in mind, however, that the indiscriminate mixing of fertilizing materials is not a safe practice, due mainly to two facts: (1) The mixing may result in the loss of nitrogen, as when lime is mixed with guano or other organic matter or may make a fertilizer less soluble or available as in case of superphosphate to which lime has been added, and (2) certain mixtures, as for example potash salts and Thomas slags, cake and are hard to distribute evenly on the soil. The accompanying diagram indicates what combinations may be safely made of some of the more common fertilizing materials.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Revised Judging Scales.

The remarks of Elmer D. Smith concerning scales for judging are to me very much to the point and in the main I cannot find any cause for criticism. If I understand correctly Mr. Smith's suggestion, this scale is for judging only in exhibitions of vases containing six or more blooms and is to be regarded somewhat as a compromise between the exhibition and commercial scales as used by the judges in scoring a new variety.

If this is his idea, I am entirely in favor of it. The trouble will be, in getting the judges generally to adopt it. The official scales at the present time are the gradual result of experience and exhibitions covering quite a few years and I would not be in favor of changing them to any great extent, but we need something for general application by the judges in an exhibition opened more than once or twice in the western exhibitions last year. Conceding that Bonnaffon is an ideal variety as a commercial flower, it is not fair to judge an exhibition variety in comparison with it and throw the latter down because it happened to be of a reflexing type.

The sum and substance of the whole thing is, as Mr. Smith says: "The judge will exercise his own prerogative and accept whichever appeals to his point of view." All the scales of points ever invented have failed to do away with personal equation and this enters into every phase of judging. Men naturally do not all think alike. If they did we would all be in love with the same girl and there would be only one political party. Any judge, however, who is fair-minded and will take the scale as suggested by Mr. Smith, will not go very far wrong in judging an exhibition and commercial variety together.

Any variety, no matter how fine the flower, if the foliage is poor, is like a jewel without a setting; but on the other hand if the variety has a splendid stem and fine foliage, but an insignificant flower on the top, it is like a setting that never had a jewel.

Good judges are comparatively scarce, very largely owing to the fact that they lack practice. Any man who judges only about once a year cannot be expected to approach things with the open mind that a man will who is doing the same thing very much more frequently, and again very few judges will stick to a scale of points and judge a variety conscientiously according to the scale. We certainly want a scale of points that will fill the bill in a competition where both commercial and exhibition types are competing, and it seems to me Mr. Smith's suggestions come pretty near being right.

C. H. TOTTY.

MIXING FERTILIZERS
(From the Scientific American)

that will fill the bill and still be fair to all varieties.

It seems an utter absurdity to me in an exhibition to see a variety like Bonnaffon score "first" all round the deck, when a variety that has just as good a color, is twice as large but does not conform to the strictly incurving shape, will be disregarded. This hap-

Referring to the article by Elmer D. Smith on "Scales for Judging," published in THE AMERICAN FLORIST of September 21, it seems to me that the scale adopted by the C. S. A. covers any exhibit of chrysanthemums regardless of the manner in which they are staged. Where competition is keen, judging by points is the only fair means of proving superiority, and the fault is not in the scale of points but in the failure of those intrusted with making up schedules to clearly state what exhibits shall be judged according to exhibition or commercial scale. This precaution would save lots of trouble for judges and exhibitors.

Mr. Smith practically suggests the adoption of the C. S. A. commercial scale for exhibition purposes, the number of points being identical with his new scale, seventy points referring to quality of bloom and thirty to stem and foliage. The C. S. A. scale was carefully thought out by a practical committee appointed for that purpose, and was intended to apply to any chrysanthemum wherever exhibited for any purpose, and the need for a separate scale for commercial and exhibition varieties still exists. In cases of close competition, judging a vase of six or twelve boloms or more can only be accomplished by carefully pointing up the individual blooms according to the C. S. A. scale, so that there seems no important reason why the scale should be changed for specific exhibits.

Specimen Plants For Exhibition.

There is a great deal of work on hand at this time in connection with getting these plants in shape for the exhibitions. The tying out and training of the branches should receive attention. They are now stiffening up and setting the buds, which means that a longer delay will cause them to be more difficult to manage in the training, owing to their becoming more brittle as the wood ripens and the buds expand. Also, a reasonable time must be allowed the plants to shape themselves between the time of training out and the time of exhibition in order to give them a finished appearance. The method of training depends greatly on the number of branches and the size of the plants, but it should be borne in mind that a natural appearance is much more to be desired than one that is made rigid and formal by close training. One of the very important points to consider is to make sure that the main stem of the plant is properly supported and that the branches are secure against snapping off with the least jar, especially if they are to travel any distance to the shows.

Give the plants plenty of space so that there is a free circulation of air all around them. Any crowding together must be strictly avoided. They also require full light, plenty of ventilation and a cool temperature. As the buds develop disbudding should be followed up close to allow the blooms to take on their true form and character. A sharp lookout should be kept to keep down the insects. The caterpillars are particularly troublesome and unless the plants are examined every day or so they quickly spoil the foliage. Feeding is another important part of the work. These large plants when in perfect health with their roots moving actively can stand a large amount of fertilizer, but judgment should be exercised in applying it. Cow manure in the liquid form is one of the safest as well as the best to use, changing off occasionally to sheep manure. But allow the plant to work up one application before another is applied, which means that once or twice a week is close enough to feed.

If the roots have worked through the surface of the soil and show bare a mulching of live soil should be put on to give them something to work at. The soil is better than manure at this stage of the plants' growth. A mulching of manure at this time has a tendency to lengthen out the shoots too much and to clog the soil. The smaller pot or market plants that were lifted from the outside a few weeks ago will be by this time thoroughly well established and will also be greatly benefited by occasional weak applications of liquid manure as advised for the larger specimens. The check of lifting these plants will have caused some of the lower foliage to turn brown. These should be removed. After the plants have become well established they require an abundance of water and the conditions of air, ventilation and temperature should be such that they can use up the water freely. These plants, and especially the pompon varieties, are most beautiful when kept in a dwarfed state. To be able to do this plenty of light and a place within a reasonable distance of the glass are required.

Feeding.

Recent complaints indicate apprehension among some as to the outcome of their present crop. It is such misgivings that prompt this contribution on the above subject. All plants are sustained by the constituents of the soil, of which nitrogen, potash and phosphoric acid are the chief elements. What effect each of these factors have upon the construction of the plant and its florescence need not be discussed at this time. When these nutritive ingredients are exhausted, liquid applications, are given to supply their needs, and it is this operation to which the term feeding is applied. The effects of such applications are revealed by the appearance of the plants and the resultant flowers thus produced. From this it is evident that what actually takes place in this construction of plant life is very obscure, hence we must be governed wholly by observance, determining their needs by what is presented to us in their growth.

There are several ways to reach this desired end, viz: First, top dressing with manure, the strength of which is taken to the roots in liquid form by the application of water. Second, by extracting the soluble parts of manure, diluting to the desired degree and applying in solution. Third, the use of liquids made from soluble chemical salts. All three methods are equal as far as producing the desired crop is concerned, provided they are judiciously applied, but there is a marked difference in the cost of material and labor involved. The present price of manure and the labor required to make it accessible to the plant far exceeds the cost of chemicals.

Stable manure contains $1\frac{1}{4}$ per cent plant food (by government analysis) or 25 pounds a ton, while some of the highly concentrated fertilizers now on the market contain 65 per cent actual plant food. It requires two and three-fifths tons of manure to supply the same amount contained in 100 pounds of such chemicals, and when we consider the labor required to handle this quantity of manure when used as a top dressing or reduced to a liquid, even the casual thinker is confronted with the question of why all this unnecessary expense. The experimental stations have taken up these matters in detail, and set forth in their reports that chemicals are equal to natural manures in the production of crops. We use a mixture known as Fertilene, one pound of which is as efficient as 80 pounds of manure.

The former is perfectly soluble and odorless as so much salt, the other dirty and offensive when manipulated in any form. The strength of chemicals are known quantities and constant, while manures are uncertain and variable. In the case of chemical fertilizers, most of the failures are due to too strong applications. A few years ago we were using Fertilene at the rate of 1 ounce to 6 gallons of water, but recent observations indicate it should not be used stronger than 1 to 10, and when the soil contains considerable manure, 1 to 20 or 30 gallons gives far better results, when used before the buds are selected. Some will consider this a very weak solution, but experience has shown that it is sufficient and the old adage "better be safe than sorry" will be appreciated by those who use such concentrated chemicals indiscriminately.

Once a week is as often as it should be applied to most varieties, and never when the plants show signs of dryness. A very good plan is to go over the benches and water all dry spots before applying. It is a great temptation to those who have not used chemical fertilizers to overdo. It must be taken into consideration when feeding solutions of any form that they are taken up through the roots, and the process of assimilation immediately follows. Food applied in this way is more available than any other, and herein lies our great danger; we are applying a solution which is colorless, odorless and tasteless, having every appearance of water.

Liquid manure was in use many years before chemical fertilizers were known and in the hands of the inexperienced is much safer. There are so many ways of formulating liquid manures that it is impossible to give a definite rule with assurance of having the best. Those of experience know by the color when it is safe to use, but such knowledge is difficult to impart to others. The following rules are considered safe: One-half bushel of horse or cow manure to 1 barrel of water. These proportions are practically 1 pint to the gallon, so that those requiring a small quantity can make to suit their needs. Sheep manure is strong and will require $1\frac{1}{2}$ barrels of water for the same quantity. Hen and pigeon manures are excellent, but being very strong, are safest when used in weak solutions, and should not exceed 1 pound to 10 gallons.

In preparing these liquids the manure is generally put in a coarse burlap bag, allowing it to soak for two or three days. A box or barrel may be filled and water applied, leach fashion, but the liquid thus obtained is very strong and will need diluting. An old rule is to dilute to the color of weak coffee, but this is hardly safe,

Where the soil is fairly rich with manure there is little or no need of feeding until after they have been disbudded. If resorted to at all, the applications should be very dilute or the plants will become too gross at this period, which is marked by the thick, crisp or harsh-feeling foliage. When a leaf pressed between the thumb and finger cracks and will not return to its normal position it is evident the treatment has been too generous. Such conditions frequently cause some varieties to become blind, that is, the joints do not elongate but form a compact mass of foliage at the top of the stem and literally refuse to produce buds. In either case it is best to discontinue feeding, so that nature may help to rectify the error.

It is quite probable there are instances where the stock has been so misused that it is past redemption. As previously stated there is only one course to follow at the first indication, and that is let up. A dyspeptic in distress does not or should not take more food with the expectation of relief. Before the buds set we should endeavor to have thick, rubbery, rather than crisp or brittle foliage. The present strong competition, and the desire to produce the best has led many to the excessive use of fertilizers both natural and commercial. While this condition may not be general there are many who not only throw away money for these materials, but also deplete the quality of the product. This is largely due to lack of knowledge, both as to the contents and effect of the fertilizers used and the needs of the crop as presented in its external appearance.

Rochester Centenary.

Monday, September 16, was a red letter day in this city. One hundred years ago the first log cabin was built here on the site of the magnificent Powers Building. This was the beginning of what is today one of the most prosperous cities of America, the "Flower City" of the Empire State.

H. E. WILSON'S FLOAT IN THE ROCHESTER, N. Y., PARADE.

as some of the strong manures give light colored liquids. As we know little regarding the strength of solutions made from material at our disposal, the subject is more or less a matter of guess. Fine blooms may be obtained by their use, and by closely observing growth of the plant and quality of flowers it will soon be apparent how to use for best results.

The parade was headed by mounted police, escorting Governor John A. Dix, Mayor H. H. Edgerton and Thomas B. Dunn, chairman of the committee in charge of the celebration. All the principal events in the city's history were represented by gorgeous floats. Our photograph gives a very good view of the float sent by H. E. Wilson of 88 East Main St. This firm was one of the first florists in Rochester and although years ago work was carried along under difficulties today they have two very fine stores in the main street of the city, as well as a store and a number of greenhouses on Hudson avenue. In the parade two young ladies acted as brides, one of 100 years ago, dressed in cream satin with veil, carrying a conventional bouquet of Killarney roses, and the other a bride of today, dressed in a very becoming gown of white satin with a veil reaching to the end of her train. She carried a handsome shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Both stood in the float which was surrounded by a fence on each side with heart shaped gates and a large heart at the back. Around the bottom of the fence were ferns and lavender asters, while the skirting was of yellow bunting. The fence and posts were decorated with clematis and asparagus. The floor was covered with rugs and palms. In the center stood a large vase of yellow chrysanthemums. H. J. H.

James Vick's Sons' Float.

The accompanying illustration shows the float of James Vick's Sons in the Rochester, N. Y., centennial parade on Monday, September 16. The float was pronounced the most beautiful in the entire parade. It was made up entirely of aster blooms, more than twenty thousand of them being used. A huge bouquet, arranged in a large basket containing over ten thousand blooms, occupied the rear of the float. The bouquet was nine feet in height from the bottom of the basket to the top of the handle and about eight feet in width. Smaller bouquets surrounded the large one and each one of the young ladies and children seated in the center carried a bouquet of asters.

Best Trees for Railway Parks.

Paper read by J. K. Wingert, gardener for the C. V. R. R. Co., at the sixth annual meeting of the Railway Gardening Association, Roanoke, Va., August 13-15.

For park and street planting we have a large list to draw from. I will only name a few of the best for streets and parks. The Norway maple (Acer Plantanoides), is one of the most beautiful trees that we have for street or park planting, being one of our most hardy trees. It is free from fungous or insect enemies, has tough and strong wood, is seldom broken by storms, forms a handsome, wide-branching head and has beautiful dark-green foliage. Another of the species is the sugar maple (A. Saccharium). No better tree can be used for park or street planting; its growth is straight, and forms a symmetrical top. It is well adapted for planting near buildings. Being deep rooted, grass will do well up to its very trunk. It has the most handsome autumn colored foliage, shading from yellow to scarlet, as the season advances, and it will thrive well in almost all conditions except in boggy ground. The purple maple (A. Plantanoides Purpureum) is another. This is a handsome tree with leaves of a bright purplish and crimson color, changing to green as the leaves get older; it is one of the most beautiful and ornamental of the maples during its early growth.

No list would be complete without including the far-famed American elm (Ulmus Americanus), particularly for wide avenue and large parks. This species grows to a large size, with high spreading tops. I do not think there is anything more desirable than the charm and grace of this tree. It will adapt itself to a greater variety of soils than any tree that is known, but it is a gross feeder and it will be found somewhat difficult to make other trees and shrubs do well near it, unless plant food is applied each fall or early spring; then elms and whatever may be planted among their roots will grow satisfactory. The European elm (Ulmus Campestris) while not such a graceful tree as the American species is a valuable tree for streets and parks, as it will do well in nearly any soil. It bears hard usage well, and holds its beautiful green foliage until late in the autumn. It is columnar in growth and suitable for streets of medium width.

The pin oak (Quercus Palustris) has recently gained great popularity. It is a magnificent tree and grows to a very large size, quite pyramidal in its younger stages. It is very upright and the foliage is deeply cut, in autumn turning gold and crimson shades and unsurpassed for fall coloring. I consider this one of the finest trees for planting in large parks or wide avenues. It transplants easily and grows well in wet or dry soils.

The European white birch (Betula Alba) is a very graceful tree and quite erect when young. After several years it assumes an elegant drooping habit. It has silvery bark and slender branches, rendering it very beautiful. I think it is unsurpassed for winter effect. The tulip poplar (Liriodendron Tulipifera) is another tree that is worth mentioning. It is a rapid growing tree with clean smooth trunk and spreading branches. The flowers, which are tulip shaped, are quite large and of a greenish, yellow color, blotched with orange. They appear early in June and have a delicate magnolia fragrance.

The Oriental plant (Plantanus Orientalis) is among our tallest trees, grows rapidly, and is well proportioned and hardy. It is seldom broken by storm or ice and is remarkably free from attack of insects and diseases. It is one of my favorite street or park trees. It does well in almost all soils, and withstands the smoky atmosphere of railway parks. Other good trees are the Escalus Hippocastanum (European horse-chestnut), and the native species, the cucumber tree (M. Acuminata). Then we have the evergreens. These are beautiful for winter effect. I have mentioned merely the most hardy trees, those that will adapt themselves to climatic and soil conditions.

Detroit Club Visits Toledo.

Thirty members of the Detroit Florists' Club visited the florists of Toledo Wednesday, September 25. The florists' club of that city extended the invitation to our club some time ago and a representative party was made up, consisting of J. K. Stock, M. Bloy, Homer Flickinger, A. J. Stahelin, Roy MacDonald, A. J. Stahelin, Sr., Thos. Browne, George E. Browne, Louis Charvat, Wm. Heilscher, Theodore Mitchell, Theodore Mallast, Ferdinand Kalbe, Gus H. Taepke, Theodore Dambrow, Fred Meisel, C. Schaefer, J. F.

McHugh, Frank Walling, A. Giecke, E. A. Fettes, A. O. Rahaley, Walter Taepke, Robt. Watson, E. A. Scribner, A. Pochelon, A. Sylvester, John Galster and J. F. Sullivan.

A special car was chartered, and being favored with beautiful weather a delightful and interesting day was the result. Arriving in the Ohio city at 11 o'clock we were met by the reception committee, which included nearly every member of the Toledo club. Among them were Harry Heintz, George P. Bayer, Thos. Magee, Krueger Bros., Emil A. Kuhnke, Frank Schramm, Herman Phillips, Miss Patten, S. N. Peck, E. H. Cushman and Miller Bros. Automobiles were provided for all and the inspection of the various establishments began and continued throughout the day. Before the return our party was tendered a banquet at the Toledo Commercial Club rooms, after which a review of the observations of the day were happily indulged in. George P. Bayer acted as toastmaster, and though he declared it his first experience in that line he proved to be as able in that capacity as in the growing of Bonnafton chrysanthemums. S. N. Peck voiced a hearty welcome to the visitors, who already had that assurance by the constant cordiality shown throughout the day. J. K. Stock, our newly installed club president, responded in earnest and appreciative terms and gave a pressing invitation to our hosts to visit the city of the straits. E. H. Cushman responded to "the ladies" and proved the subject to be very agreeable to him. M. Bloy on "Publicity" acquitted himself with his usual success and paid a high tribute to the local greenhouse establishments. E. A. Scribner, always primed for an oratorical task, treated his theme, "The Future in Floriculture," optimistically. Robt. Rahaley, on "The Wholesaler," reviewed from many angles the place the middleman fills. J. F. Sullivan spoke on the work of florists' clubs. Thus was spent a most enjoyable day that will long be pleasantly remembered by the Detroiters participating so fully in the unbounded hospitality of brother florists on the Maumee.

The places visited will be found in the following paragraphs. E. H. Cushman's, located about nine miles from Toledo, embraces one hundred and five acres of land especially adapted to the culture of gladioli and dahlias. An open-air luncheon under the trees was a feature greatly relished by the hungry invaders. The large blocks of dahlias in the fullness of bloom was a surprising sight. Fifteen acres of gladioli are grown, Francis King, America and Princess being among the favorites. A few acres are devoted to perennial stock, large blocks of tritomas, peonies, and phlox being conspicuous. Two greenhouses, one 24x80 feet, the other 30x150, are used for dahlia propagation and crops of carnations, chrysanthemums and sweet peas. Though a carnation grower in but a small way, Mr. Cushman captured one of the best prizes at the local show the past spring. Thousands of dahlias and gladioli are shipped successfully to Chicago, Buffalo, Detroit and Cleveland, but the bulbs of both flowers are the chief product of the place.

Harry Heinel's place, though old in history, is really young and vigorous in every way. Twenty-one houses, aggregating 70,000 square feet of glass, are all stocked with evidences of the successful grower that Mr. Heinel is. One house of poinsettias is particularly fine. Over 500 pans in various sizes were one of the prize shows, while those planted for cut blooms elicited many words of commendation. Fifteen thousand chrysanthemums are grown here and 6,000 roses and 13,000 carnations, all looking fine. Mr. Heinel has just completed the rebuilding of three houses, one 31x134 feet, one 25½x135, and one 20x134. A house of ferns is one of the attractions of the place.

Geo. P. Bayer's establishment of four houses, each 775 feet long by 14 feet 9 inches wide, besides some smaller houses, has long been famous for tomatoes and chrysanthemums. Mr. Bayer follows annually a method peculiarly his own with uninterrupted success. He grows tomatoes from early winter till August 1, by which time thousands of chrysanthemums, which are grown outside, are ready for removal to the same space occupied by tomatoes up to that date. The soil is not changed nor is it sterilized, but when the chrysanthemum season is on the flowers found here have few equals. His Bonnafon has a well-earned reputation in the Cincinnati, Chicago, Detroit and local markets. Six thousand chrysanthemums of this one variety is certainly a large stock to dispose of with satisfactory prices, and yet this is an annual feat for Mr. Bayer. About 15,000 other varieties of chrysanthemums and some carnations are also grown.

Krueger Bros. have two establishments, one out in the country and the other inside the city limits. At the latter place a general assortment of plants and flowers are grown in 20 houses of about 50,000 square feet. Here several houses are devoted to roses and some to carnations, chrysanthemums and ferns. One house contains palms in variety and cold storage lilies. Retail trade is conducted here exclusively. The country place has four large houses, two 30x640 feet and the others 30x320. These are planted with carnations and roses, the variety O. P. Bassett being largely grown. There are over 8,000 of these. White Enchantress as well as the pink, and Washington are most conspicuous. Killarney roses were especially fine. Asparagus plumosus is an important item here. Ten thousand geranium cuttings in the sand showed what a factor that plant is in their trade. This firm is preparing to escape the coal shortage period and already has twenty cars of the fuel stored in its spacious coal shed.

Miller Bros. have an immense place, most of which is devoted to vegetable growing, but carnations are a leading crop with them. Eight houses, each 15x260 feet, contain over 30,000 plants of Windsor, Enchantress, Bright Spot, O. P. Bassett and some white varieties. All are grown in solid beds with cement retaining walls and hot water heating. This, following the local custom of most of the big growers, is circulated by pressure pumps. Lettuce is grown by this firm under three acres of glass. This firm's carnations are said to be among the very best grown here, and the present condition of their large stock indicates the truth of the report. Searle Bros.' immense establishment is devoted to vegetables, chiefly lettuce, and commanded considerable notice. About twelve acres are covered with glass, the houses being uniformly 14 feet 9 inches wide by 1,000 feet long. All are heated by hot water. The crops are annually grown in the same soil with yearly sterilization and heavy manuring. The products of this place have a wide and favorable reputation and find the markets of all the large cities of the eastern, middle and western states.

Davis & Magee, proprietors of the Scottwood Greenhouses, have a fine, up-to-date retail establishment situated in the strictly first-class residential portion of the city. They enjoy a splendid patronage. The salesroom is a spacious and most conveniently equipped store. Adjoining this are three houses, each 20x158 feet, which, besides palms and ferns and other popular foliage plants, contain well-grown chrysanthemums, roses and poinsettias. Many of the latter are in pots and pans that will be a grand sight at Christmas.

E. A. Kuhnke has eight houses of about 26,000 square feet devoted to chrysanthemums, carnations, smilax, asparagus and ferns, all in good condition. About 1,000 calla lilies showed that this old-time flower is still popular. Mr. Kuhnke is building a concrete house and barn. He is secretary of the local club and is a live wire.

The stores of Mrs. Freeman, Schramm Bros., Miss Patten, and S. N. Peck were all examples of neatness and enterprise and enjoy a good and increasing patronage. The Detroit visitors extend their congratulations to all of them and wish them continued success. J. S.

CHILDREN OF W. G. MATTHEWS, PROPRIETOR OF THE DAYTON FLORAL CO.

Mobile, Ala.

T. Loding, who has charge of the new range of glass on Houston street owned by himself and his brother, H. P. Loding, has added a new house 100 feet long and a cottage. Of course, we all know it is not well for man to live alone and a romance which had its beginning across the ocean culminated the early part of the month when the lady of his choice came over to take possession of the home.

Don't think we are asleep down south because we are not making a loud noise. We are all still in business, even if trade is rather dull. The flower lovers are organizing a horticultural society in this city and expect to do great things toward beautifying the place.

C. Ravier & Sons have added two houses, 20 x 90 feet, one for chrysanthemums and the other for sweet peas for Christmas. Their place is in good shape and they are all busy planting bulbs.

The Minge Floral Co. is making a good showing of roses and asters for this time of year and the preparations for the coming season's business are about complete. M.

Mrs. John Goodbrad will reopen her stand on Dauphin street as soon as the cool weather brings the summer wanderers home.

Empire Loyalists and settled in Matilda township, found a number of apple trees while clearing a place for a home. One of them produced fruit of such superior color and quality that he named it the McIntosh Red. It soon attracted attention, and his son Allan propagated it and commenced to disseminate the variety. In recent years it has been widely circulated, and now is planted in all parts of the American continent where apples flourish. In 1896 the old tree was partly injured by fire, but continued to bear on one side until 1908, when it failed altogether.

Scented-leaved Pelargoniums.—Three very interesting collections of these pleasing, old-fashioned subjects were exhibited at the recent International show. In the first place, the huge specimens from Gunnersbury, which Veronica Filifolia.—Admirers of rock plants would have observed the charming Veronica filifolia in some of the exhibits of alpines at the great Chelsea show, but it is only those who can see really good plants who know its full beauty. It is a plant familiar to the writer, who once obtained it from the garden of a great continental amateur a good many years ago. His own plant was lost through a combination of unfortunate circumstances, but while it lasted it was a source of great pleasure with its dainty leaves and its still more dainty light blue flowers. There is something almost lace-like in its appearance. The rock garden is the favorite place for this speedwell; but I was greatly struck with its beauty as a wall plant on seeing it at Monreith, Wigtownshire, the other day, where Sir Herbert Maxwell has such a fine collection of alpines growing on a terrace retaining wall. Here Veronica filifolia was remarkably fine. In perfect health, of good size and full of flower, it was the beau-ideal of a wall garden plant. It is hardly likely that it would be nearly so fine without a good body of soil behind it, but with such conditions and fully open to the light it formed a grand sight that could hardly be surpassed.

Memorial to an Apple Tree.—A ceremony unique in the history of fruit-growing took place at Dundela, near Morrisburg, Ontario, a short time since. A monument was unveiled to an apple tree. The farmers of Dundas County by popular subscription have placed a marble stone close to the spot where stood the original McIntosh red apple tree that succumbed only recently after braving the storms and its enemies for over 100 years. About 115 years ago, John McIntosh, who went to Canada with the United have been often exhibited, were shown in good condition, and were much admired. Next, a group of about eighty distinct kinds, many of them true species, and containing a large proportion of scented-leaved forms, was shown by the Hon. Vicary Gibbs, Aldenham House. These were all well grown, bushy specimens, in pots 7 inches or 8 inches in diameter. Grown in this way, the distinctive characters of each could be well seen. A collection, particularly remarkable from the fact that it contained no less than 126 sorts, was contributed by Miss Troyte Bullock, North Coker House, Yeovil. Compared with the specimens in the other two exhibits, the plants were small, but from such a representative collection many charming varieties could be picked out. As these attracted more attention than the gorgeous displays of the Zonal and decorative sections, one could not help thinking that if a nurseryman were to make a specialty of these uncommon Pelargoniums it would very probably prove remunerative. A structure from which frost is just excluded is all that is needed for their successful culture.

AUBURN, N. Y.—Herbert Hills, well known local florist, filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy September 20. He gives his liabilities as $7,700 and his assets as $7,487.

Cleveland Flower Show.

We are in receipt of the premium list for the first exhibition of the Ohio Horticultural Society, to be held at Gray's Armory, Cleveland, November 14-16, inclusive. The prizes are quite liberal and considerable interest is being taken in the event by the local trade. Cleveland is a good center for an exhibition and the outcome of this venture will be watched with interest by the managers of other flower shows. Copies of the premium list may be had on application to John N. Stockwell, 218 City hall, Cleveland, O.

St. Paul Flower Show.

Plans for a flower show were made September 24 at a meeting of members of the St. Paul Flower Show Association at Holm & Olson's. The show will be in the Auditorium from November 8 to 12. It is the second show under the auspices of the association, the first being given two years ago in Minneapolis. Chrysanthemums will be the principal flower. The ceiling of the Auditorium will be decked with 2,500 additional lights and the entire ceiling and walls will be covered with festoons of Southern smilax. President Farquhar of the Society of American Florists has been engaged to give a stereopticon lecture one evening. He will show pictures of flower collections he has made in all parts of the world. In addition to the chrysanthemum display there will be many orchids, one group being valued at $5,000; thousands of American Beauty roses, four or five being new varieties that have never been seen before, and a big exhibit from the state experiment station. Flowers will be sent from every state for the occasion.

Crop Conditions.

According to the general review of crop conditions issued by the Bureau of Statistics of the United States Department of Agriculture, the month of August, like July, was decidedly favorable for crop development in the United States, the composite condition of all crops September 1 being about 16.5 per cent better than on September 1 last year, and 4.1 per cent better than the average on September 1 of recent years.

The average of farm prices of important crops (corn, wheat, oats, barley, rye, flaxseed, potatoes, tobacco, cotton, hay, which represent about three-fourths of the value of all crops) declined 7 per cent from August 1 to September 1, which compares with a decline of 4.4 per cent in same period last year, and an average decline of 3.8 per cent during August of the past four years.

The condition (or production, if harvested) of various crops on September 1 compared with their average condition (not normal) on September 1 of recent years follows: Peaches, 130; apples, 126.2; spring wheat, 118.7; oats, 117.1; pears, 110.8; hemp, 109.9; barley, 109.5; potatoes, 109.5; cabbage, 108.4; flaxseed, 107.5; cloverseed, 106.9; tomatoes, 106.5; onions, 106.4; millet, 106.2; buckwheat, 106.; grapes, 105.4; Kafir corn, 105.2; alfalfa, 105.1; watermelons, 104.7; cantaloupes, 103.9; oranges, 103.8; broom corn, 103.2; hops, 102.4; sorghum, 102; cotton, 101.6; corn, 101.2; sugar beets, 101; rice, 101; Lima beans, 100.6; dry beans, 100.5; tobacco, 99.4; cranberries, 99.1; peanuts, 98.6; sweet potatoes, 98.4; lemons, 97.8; sugar cane, 93.2.

The indications are for a total production of all cereals (133,016,000 tons) of about 20.3 per cent more than last year, 6.1 per cent more than in 1910, and 16.2 per cent more than in 1909. Potato prospects are for about 36 per cent more than last year, 14 per cent more than in 1910, and 2 per cent more than in 1909. The estimated hay yield is about 31 per cent more than last year, and 4 per cent more than in 1910 and 1909. The composite condition of all crops, duly weighted, by states, on the basis of 100 representing average conditions (for most crops the ten-year average), is as follows:

Maine, 106.8; New Hampshire, 111.8; Vermont, 108.5; Massachusetts, 103.5; Rhode Island, 96.3; Connecticut, 99.6; New York, 102.9; New Jersey, 100.5; Pennsylvania, 105.2; Delaware, 108.1; Maryland, 102.8; Virginia, 96.7; West Virginia, 119.7; North Carolina, 95.3; South Carolina, 95.4; Georgia, 92.6; Florida, 99.5; Ohio, 97.5; Indiana, 92; Illinois, 100.3; Michigan, 95.6; Wisconsin, 104.6; Minnesota, 111.4; Iowa, 117.3; Missouri, 105; North Dakota, 125.6; South Dakota, 109.5; Nebraska, 100.7; Kansas, 115.1; Kentucky, 104; Tennessee, 99.5; Alabama, 100.2; Mississippi, 95.4; Louisiana, 99.6; Texas, 110.9; Oklahoma, 104.8; Arkansas, 100.1; Montana, 107.5; Wyoming, 112.5; Colorado, 113.3; New Mexico, 109.7; Arizona, 109.5; Utah, 105.7; Nevada, 101; Idaho, 107.3; Washington, 107.6; Oregon, 113.4; California, 102.1.

Philadelphia Notes.

The October meeting of the club was well attended and great interest was taken in the illustrated lecture of President Vincent of the S. A. F., which was the feature of the evening. Mr. Vincent gave a very interesting description of his visit to the great London show and his trip about England and the continent. The published photographs of the exhibition that have appeared in the trade papers gave an idea of the magnitude of the display, but the pictures, many of them colored, thrown on the screen by Mr. Vincent looked so natural that the observer seemed almost to be walking about and actually seeing the wonderful exhibits with his own eyes. At the conclusion he showed some pictures of the recent dahlia show held at his own nurseries, in which many of the flowerers were staged much after the excellent methods he had seen in London. He received a hearty vote of thanks at the close of the lecture. The annual election resulted in the continuation of the present officers, J. Otto Thilow, president; Thos. W. Logan, vice-president; Geo. Craig, treasurer; David Rust, secretary. The annual report of the secretary showed that there were 289 members on the roll.

While some of the dealers handle dahlias almost under protest, others make the most of the situation and by a system in the taking and delivering of orders have built up a regular trade that is an important feature in their business. The dahlia growers in South Jersey are cutting immense quantities and shipping morning and evening, the express companies being required to provide extra cars and wagons to handle the stock. The Hammonton growers have formed an association and by co-operating have been able to obtain concessions which insure the best handling and quickest delivery by the express companies. Uniform boxes and crates have been adopted, and the flowers are cut and packed with great care. Every box that goes out bears the label of the association, which insures personal inspection and that the flowers are all perfect in their grade. Other large growers are finding a good demand. Peacock Dahlia Farms at Williamstown have sixty acres of dahlias and are sending them in daily by the carload. Others near Alco are kept busy getting out orders, and altogether the dahlia men expect this to be a banner year.

The feature of the week was the flower tag day for the benefit of the Woman's Homeopathic Hospital, which occurred on Saturday. Some four hundred girl volunteers stood on the street corners and in railroad stations, hotel lobbies, etc., and tagged the generous public with dahlias. Over 20,000 flowers were used. They were furnished by Habermehl's. Quite a large sum was obtained by this method. An effort to raise a sum of nearly $4,000 for a playground association was also made on the "main line" of the Pennsylvania road last week. Young ladies with flowers at all stations made their appeal to passengers going to and from the city. This was also quite successful.

The Robert Craig Co. has a large force working all day and often at night, getting out their orders. They report a better business through the mails and from their traveling representatives than they have ever done before. Their stock of ferns is without doubt the largest in the country.

The Jos. Heacock Co. has finished installing the new boilers at Wyncote. Kentias are moving out in quantity, large shipments being made at this time so as to avoid danger from frost.

K.

Cleveland Notes.

A recent visit to the extensive range of the J. M. Gasser Co., Rocky River, showed a great stock in fine condition. There is a large area in carnations and roses and all are good. One section where My Maryland roses are grown from last year's plants, was particularly noticeable. There has been an immense cut from My Maryland throughout the summer and they promise well for the winter. The stems are very long and the buds large and well developed. The carnations are beginning to bloom freely. The Killarney and other rose sections show fine clean stocks and promise well. We have never seen a finer stock of poinsettias, both for cutting and in pots and pans. There is also a large mixed stock of orchids, and various other plants, necessary in the extensive trade of this company. A new house was erected the past summer and a large part of this is now planted to sweet peas. Lilies and bulb stock is also prominent. Foreman Frank A. Friedly is to be congratulated on the excellent work he is doing.

We believe that branches of the Graham Clan may be found in every civilized country, but the Grahams who here in the United States are the most noted in horticulture and bowling, do business in Cleveland. The firm of A. Graham & Sons is very active in the business and whether one visits their greenhouses or store one is sure to see something worth while.

At 3600 West Twenty-third street, opposite Riverside Cemetery, Fred C. Witthuhn has a modest range and store and is doing a good business. Last season he visited Germany and accompanied 150 German florists on a trip through the leading horticultural establishments of France. His reminiscences of what he saw there are interesting and instructive.

Miss Jane Eadie of the James Eadie Co., who has been in poor health for a year, is now in a local hospital. When sufficiently improved it is planned that she shall go to Southern California for the winter. At the range of this company, Foreman A. P. Shirring, who has been with them for over twenty years, has a fine general stock.

Manager Williams of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co. is looking forward to an exceptionally good season and as an experienced man in the business his forecast is valuable. At his large range in the East End there is a great stock coming on, much of the space being devoted to roses and carnations.

The McCallum Co. has just closed its first year of business in this city and Manager Potter is much gratified with the results. In their supply department they are now well stocked with the Christmas requisites and will doubtless have a rushing trade.

The store of the Jones-Russell Co. at the intersection of Huron Road and Euclid avenue, is another of the show places of that part of the city. Admirably located for display purposes, this advantage is improved by artistic window decorations.

The store of Smith & Feters on Euclid avenue continues to show the choicest flowers and to sell them in enormous quantities.

Boston.

MARKET HAS BETTER TONE.

The market still holds firm with a tone somewhat better than last week. White carnations sell well, but the colored sorts go slower. Chrysanthemums are coming in freely, both yellow and white, American Beauties are in good demand. Madame Russell, Taft, double Pink Killarneys and Cardinal are the king pins on the market just now. Asters are on the last lap. Violets are seen in limited quantities, but the quality as yet is inferior. There is a fair demand for gladioli. Lily of the valley is exceptionally fine just now. There is a general feeling that we are entering into a good winter's trade.

NOTES.

With the change of one of the markets to Winthrop Square as was mentioned in a former issue, many see an important step in the making of a flower district. We have leather, wool, iron, banking, seed and plant districts, and if a flower district can be made it will be much better for all concerned. With two wholesalers, N. F. McCarthy and Welch Bros., a start has been made and trade will have a much broader scope. With the addition of all the other interests as we have often advocated, Boston could have a central market instead of the scattered way it is at present.

Boston felt big this week with the meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce at Copley Plaza.

MAC.

Akron, O.

The oft-told tales of the cities that sprang up in a night in the days of the discovery of rich mineral deposits are almost paralleled by the growth of Akron, O. The census of 1910 gave this city a population of 69,067, but now some estimates place it at 100,000, while some enthusiastic citizens claim from 103,000 to 105,000. All this has been brought about by the growth of its great rubber industries. To a stranger the size of some of the plants and the extent of the business is astonishing. Is cheering to note that the florists share in the general prosperity. All of them seem busy and optimistic.

The McFarland Co. does a large retail business at the Wooster avenue greenhouses. Improvements have recently been made at this place which shows evidence of prosperity.

J. R. Norton has put up a concrete building which he will use as a combination residence and store; he has also put on a new automobile for delivery.

The old and established firm of H. Heepe's Sons is among the busiest of all. This firm has a large glass area and a fine store on Main street.

D. L. Hollinger is one of the younger florists who are coming to the front. He is erecting another greenhouse.

Edward Schwerdtfeger is building a nice residence and his business is good.

EASTERN VIOLETS ARRIVE.

The city trade was very quiet the latter part of last week, but the shipping trade was exceedingly brisk and the market was kept pretty well cleaned up at all times. The supply of American Beauty roses is a trifle larger and is now about equal to the demand. Killarney roses are in fair supply, but White Killarney are scarce. Prince De Bulgarie and Mrs. Aaron Ward roses of fine quality are plentiful and so are Richmond, but the latter do not seem to move. Assters are off the market now and gladioli are fast approaching the end. Eastern violets of fair quality are arriving and orchids are more plentiful. Cattleya Gigas and C. Gaskelliana are going off crop, but C. labiata are received in large quantities. Cattleya Bowringiana are seen and Dendrobium are also included in the shipments. Oncidiums and Odontoglossums arrived last week and orchids in general have dropped considerably in price. Chrysanthemums are more abundant and the shipments include Golden Glow, Monrovia, October Frost, Smith's Advance and Unaka. Carnations are advancing in quality each week and the prices are much higher. Lilies are none too plentiful and the supply of lily of the valley is short. The local trade was better on Sunday and also pretty lively on Monday. The shipments of stock are larger and the supply of roses especially is increasing. Good Brides are now arriving and are having a good call. Dahlias are seen everywhere and colored water lilies are prominently displayed in one of the downtown store windows. Gardenias are still short and home-grown single violets made their appearance on the market this week. There are plenty of all kinds of greens and fine smilax is obtainable. The large decorations in the loop stores call for a large quantity of flowers and greens and the State street stores are using chrysanthemums and American Beauty roses quite extensively in their windows. The supply houses are making large displays and each one seems to be featuring ruscus. Carnations are very scarce now and the market is cleaned up at very early hours. Pompons and home grown single violets are now being received.

NOTES.

H. C. Wendland left on September 30 for Chatham, N. B., to join Wallace Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., and to hunt moose in the nearby woods. Mr. Wendland is a bull mooser and he jokingly says that his mission there is chiefly to secure a fine set of antlers to present to Teddy when he is elected next November.

E. E. Pieser, of Kennicott Bros. Co., says that the Chicago Carnation Co. has all his peony plants aboard the cars and that one-half will be sent to his farm at Villa Ridge and the remainder to the new Jurgen-Kennicott farm at Calumet, Mich.

J. F. Kidwell says that Chas. McCauley and the Wellworth Farm Greenhouses are having a close race for first quality in the Killarney rose division at the Chicago Flower Growers' Association store.

Chas. L. Washburn says that Bassett & Washburn are having a very brisk demand for chrysanthemums and that his firm's shipments now include Golden Glow, Monrovia, October Frost and Unaka.

J. Bergstrom, foreman of the H. W. Buckbee greenhouses at Rockford, was in the city this week on business. He says his employer is about to open a branch store in that city.

A. Lange had a special sale on orchids on September 30 when he dis-

Wietor Bros. are laying in their fall and winter supply of coal and another week or so will find the bins pretty well filled. Wietor Bros.' range is the third largest in size in this country and the proprietors state that nearly 9,000 tons of coal are used annually to heat it. White Killarney is now in good crop and according to N. J. Wieton this firm has filled all its orders in full.

Curtis Kindler, with the Raedlein Basket Co., and a party of friends have returned from a most enjoyable camping trip in the wilds of northern Wisconsin. Curtis and one of his companions had a thrilling experience on their outing. They wandered too far from camp one day, got lost in the dense woods and were compelled to spend a night in the open.

Dan MacRorie and A. J. Rossi of San Francisco, Calif., spent September 26 and 27 in this city on their way home from the East. During their stay here they visited Frank Oechslein's greenhouses, Vaughan's greenhouses and nursery at Western Springs, and Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s mammoth plant at Morton Grove.

John Zech says that October opened with a rush and that all hands at Zech & Mann's store are kept busy filling both local and shipping orders. Mr. Zech says his shipments of roses and carnations are large and that he has taken care of his regular customers right along.

Paul Blome & Co. arranged the table decoration for a very elaborate banquet at the Hotel La Salle on September 28 and also the decorations for the physicians' banquet at the Germania Club the following Sunday.

E. C. Amling, the well-known wholesale and commission merchant, will celebrate his forty-fourth birthday on Thursday, October 10. The E. C. Amling Co. had its first shipment of violets from the east on September 25.

Emil Middendorf and Wm. Paffart, formerly employed at the Chicago Carnation Co.'s greenhouse at Joliet, left October 1 for Florida, where they will make their home in the future.

W. P. Kyle says that Kyle & Foerster did not send out a single telegram during the scarcity of stock, but instead filled all shipping orders in full.

Adolph Benesh, with Winterson's Seed Store, is calling on the trade in the nearby cities in the interest of his firm's supply department.

T. V. Brown returned recently from Brooksville, Florida, to resume his position with A. Lange, the East Madison street florist.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. received a large importation of palms at its Morton Grove establishment this week and the shipping season for these and the other decorative stock is now on in earnest. An elevated railroad track is now in course of construction at Plant A and when it is completed an electric motor will haul the loaded cars up the steep incline into the shed, directly over the bins where the bottom of the car will be dropped and the coal dumped in its proper place. This firm uses an enormous quantity of coal and the new system will do away with a lot of unnecessary labor.

Tim Matchen says that shipping trade is fine at the Peter Reinberg store and that the past week has shown a wonderful improvement in the sales. He says he has never known a time at this season of the year when his firm's Richmond roses were so good as they are at present.

The Chicago Rose Co. changed its name on October 1 to Joseph Ziska, and all business is now done under the proprietor's name. New signs will replace the old ones and the new name will appear on the firm's fall catalogue, which is now in the press.

C. Humfeldt and wife, of Clay Center, Kans., visited the Poehlmann greenhouse at Morton Grove this week and were so well pleased with the hustling little village that they did not come back to the city but remained there overnight.

The next meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club will be held at the Union Restaurant, West Randolph street, October 10. Meetings under the new by-laws being held the first Thursday after the first Monday of the month.

Welland & Risch have built a concrete wall around their carnation houses and have just installed a new Krier boiler. Their entire plant is now being repainted.

James Curran reports a remarkable increase in the retail business within the last two weeks. He stands in well with the fire departments in his vicinity and gets nearly all the funeral work from these sources.

At J. A. Budlong's store the report is that the shipping trade is opening up fine and that business is very satisfactory. The call for lily of the valley is brisk and the supply is nearly equal to the demand.

J. B. Deamud says that the J. B. Deamud Co. will have a good supply of gladioli for several weeks yet and that everything is in fine condition at the Des Plaines Violet Co.'s greenhouses.

Fred Meyer, with the Geo. Witthold Co., says that the demand is very brisk for decorative plants and that the shipping trade especially has improved wonderfully.

Jos. Schoos claims that his carnation plants were never in better condition, and the outlook for banner crops with him this year is very encouraging.

C. F. McCormick is expected back from the east this week. Mac says on a postal to Guy French that rings are still cheap. Oh, you wedding bells!

Henry Kruchten, who has been assisting his father at the greenhouses, is again back on his job at John Kruchten's store.

Willie Sgoros has resigned his position with the Madison Floral Co. and intends to leave shortly for Kansas City, Mo.

Vaughan's Seed Store will distribute their azalea importations this coming week. The retail bulb sale they say is good.

Miss Annie Sigmund, formerly with the Chicago Florist, is now in the employ of the Madison Floral Co.

A. Miller, with A. Henderson and Co., is back from a successful trip.

Percy Jones is building a large balcony in his store as an addition to his supply department.

Light frosts about the city have been general the past week.

Visitors: Wm. Rehm, New York; H. A. Barnard, London, Eng.; Hugo Schroeter, Detroit, Mich.; D. MacRorie and A. Rossi of San Francisco, Calif.; George Collins, with Henry Smith, Grand Rapids, Mich.; A. Washington.

The florists have at last got the interest that was lacking for a long time in a bowling team. We hope that there will always be a team at the conventions, as the last convention was the first time in years that Washington was not represented on the alleys. Team nights will be every Monday. All members of the Washington Florists' Club are welcome.

The funeral of Mrs. John R. McLean, one of the leaders of Washington society, which took place September 14, called for some very large and handsome designs.

Fred Miller, who was with Gude Bros. for 18 years, has left Washington to accept a position as manager for W. & W. Scholtz, of Charlotte, N. C.

ALTON, ILL.—Joseph Krug, a veteran florist of this place, was injured in a runaway September 25. Mr. Krug was thrown from his buggy and struck a telephone pole. He was unconscious for an hour.

MARKET VERY POOR.

The market was decidedly poor during the last week. The five wholesale houses had hardly enough stock to fill orders. There are some good carnations and roses, also good long stemmed American Beauties. The outdoor flowers are about over. White Smith's Advance and Golden Glow are the only varieties of chrysanthemums seen.

NOTES.

The Grosvenor Gardens flower shop has closed. Edwin Hay, proprietor, has just returned from the east and is not yet decided as to the future.

The Diemer Floral Co. is doing a nice business. Mrs. Diemer filled several large American Beauty rose orders the past week.

Alex. Siegel has found it a mighty hard proposition finding bargains in roses during the past week.

Miss Marie Richardson, formerly employed in the downtown district, is now with Theodore Miller.

All the wholesale houses since September 15 have kept open till 6 p. m. daily, Sunday excepted.

George Angermueier had some special fancy carnations, also some very choice lilies last week.

The Riessen Floral Co. was very busy last week with decorative and funeral work.

Oscar Hebbermann reports a good trade.

J. A. BUDLONG, 82-86 E. RANDOLPH STREET, CHICAGO.

Wednesday night a light frost occurred in the lowlands. It was probably severe enough to shorten up all outside stock.

W. Pilcher says his violets are looking well. They are handled exclusively by the Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co.

Joe Ent, of the Union Florist store, has a very pretty place. He has erected a fountain with gold fish and ferneries.

A new retail store will shortly open downtown. It will be located on Tenth street.

Adolph Ahner is cutting some very choice White Wonder carnations.

BUSINESS GOOD.

Cold rains and dark skies have created a change which is already noted both in shortage of stock and strengthening of the plants. Business, which has been good, is increasing. The demand is in excess of the supply, owing to the scarcity of outside flowers. Carnations are showing a marked increase in quality. Roses are coming on in fine shape. There has been an increasing demand for orchids, especially for weddings. Chrysanthemums are being placed on the market. The quality as a rule is good. Asters are a thing of the past. Those who have been reaping a harvest on outside stock will soon have to fall back on carnations, roses and pot plants.

NOTES.

O. G. Grice, superintendent of Livingston's True Blue Greenhouses, reports everything in growing condition. They are now cutting early mums and their carnation cut averages 700 a day.

F. C. Viereck, Proprietor of the Fulton Market Flower Shop, has a great many large weddings booked for early in November. The largest of these is in West Virginia.

The force at Wilson's Seed Store say they have a good business with increasing sales on cut flowers. They are holding their fall sale of plants and ferns.

Wm. J. Brust, who opened a cut-flower store on the West Side, reports a good business, especially in design work.

M. A. Leganger, representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago wholesalers, was calling on the florists recently.

Howard & Co., report a good cut flower trade and many funeral designs, wedding bouquets and table decorations.

Underwood Bros. report business very good for the season. Demand for cut-flowers, palms and ferns is heavy.

Business at the John R. Hellenthal place is in full swing. All crops are promising and business is booming.

The Munk Floral Co. reports a good trade for the season. Out of town shipments are increasing.

S. F. Stephens has everything in good shape for business. He is propagating much miscellaneous stock.

A look around E. Metzmeier's establishment shows everything in good shape for winter.

The Art Floral Co., which has had a nice trade all summer, reports receipts heavier.

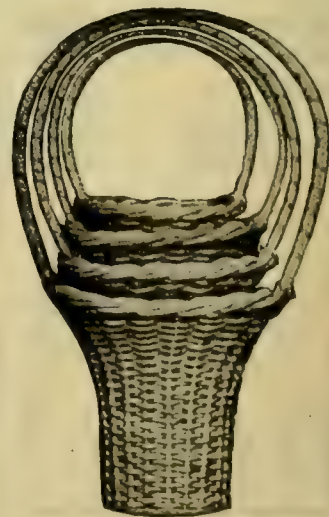

A visit to C. E. Stone's found him very busy getting his houses in shape for winter.

MARKET CLEANED UP DAILY.

The wholesalers clean up each day in easy fashion. On many of the days it seems as though more might have been utilized by the stores. The average price, too, is very good and there is a splendid call from out of town. Roses are in good supply and are selling nicely. Among those offered are Pink and White Killarney, Richmond, Rhea Reid, Brides, Bridesmaid, My Maryland, Taft and Sunburst. The American Beauty supply is still short of actual needs and as a result those that come in are quickly taken up. The request for carnations is good. The bulk of the offering is Enchantment but a good assortment of the other varieties and colors are also to be had. The stock is as a whole in first class condition and many are of such a length and shape that they may easily be utilized for any purpose required of them. Chrysanthemums come in regularly and at the present time are bringing the highest prices. The quantity is not as yet very large but if reports from various growers are true the next fortnight should see a goodly supply. Cosmos and dahlias are proving good sellers. All that come in are sold readily. The supply of giganteums is very short. The same is true of lily of the valley. Both enjoy a very strong call. Business in all kinds of greens is good. Orchids are offered. New boxwood will be added to the list this week.

NOTES.

James Caldwell, a well known grower, living in Cumminsville, was killed in an automobile accident last Sunday. The machine in which he was riding went over an embankment at Venice, Ohio.

The growers of Boston ferns and the like who are supplying the local retailers have been furnishing them with a quality of stock that they have never before equaled at this time of the year.

Chas. Garvey, at the head of Peter Weiland's store, was summoned home to Indianapolis on Saturday. His father is very ill.

E. G. Gillett and wife were members of a large party that made an auto trip to Dayton, Sunday.

Charles Hoffmeister and wife celebrated their silver wedding anniversary on Saturday.

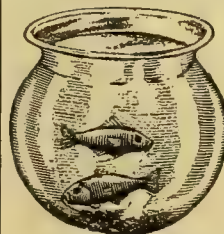

Dan Carmichael of the J. M. McCullough Sons Co. goes east next week on a business trip.

P. J. Olinger and wife had as their guest last week Mrs. M. Weiland of Evanston, Ill.

C. E. Critchell is finding a very good call for the fine valley he is receiving. Miss Elsie Holmes of McCullough's force is to be married this week.

WEEK IS SATISFACTORY.

The last week, like the preceding one, opened up with a hot spell which promised a lot of soft or wilted stock, but again a brisk demand moved it so fast that there was but slight loss and such as there was applied only to cheap or inferior grades. There being no orchids offered, chrysanthemums were the whole show, a brisk demand for White Queen boosting the price up to $2.50 a dozen. Other good varieties arriving during the week were Alice Byron, Hunter, Crocus and some short-stemmed Bonnaillon, the best of these all bringing $1.50 a dozen. These prices may not prevail long, as stock is coming in quite plentifully and a few days of dull business will set them tumbling. For roses prices are stationary, American Beauty leading at $2.00 a dozen for best long-stemmed stock. Marylands, Kaiserin, Richmond, the Killarneys and Ulrich Bruner sold at 35 cents, 50 cents and 75 cents a dozen, according to grade, Marylands leading them all for quality. Carnations are improving daily and move well at 20 cents a dozen for the best, with the exception of a limited stock of a local variety, A. B. Spreckels, which brings 75 cents a dozen. Liliun spec. roseum is about done for. A few short giganteum are still offered but probably not for long. Valleys are good and clean up steadily at 50 cents a dozen. Green goods and all the seasonable outdoor stock are plentiful and sell well. Taken in all the past week has been very satisfactory to both wholesalers and retailers.

NOTES.

The Japanese envoys have selected the site for the Japanese garden which is expected to be an important feature of the fair; it is stated that $1,000,000 will be spent on this garden and at the conclusion of the fair it will be presented to the city to be maintained permanently.

Alfred Serveau is the recipient of many congratulations on the arrival of a pretty little daughter. Emile Serveau, Alfred's father, is wreathed with smiles over the welcome addition to the family.

E. W. McLellan is off to Portland on a business trip. Geo. Theuergarten, foreman at the Ferneries, is out of the hospital and recovering fast from a severe illness.

D. Mac Rorie and Angelo J. Rossi, touring the eastern states and Canada, were expected home the first part of October.

The Lacy Co. of Elmhurst is sending in some fine King gladioli and Ulrich Bruner roses.

South Auburn, Neb.

The cut flower trade for this fall is starting off well, but carnations and roses are very short-stemmed owing to the dry, hot summer. A decided improvement when greenhouse cutting begins is looked for. The demand for blooming potted plants is quite good. Geraniums and ferns sell well. The prospects for a fine season are splendid.

Southampton Horticultural Society.

The regular monthly meeting of the society was held in the Odd Fellows hall September 5, President U. G. Ager in the chair. The secretary of the flower show read a report showing a balance of $400 left over after paying expenses. It will be equally divided between the Fresh Air Home and the Southampton Hospital. A letter was ready from Chas. Totty, asking the society to offer some premiums for the National Flower Show. On motion the letter was laid on the table until next meeting. Two new members were elected. A committee of three was appointed to get full information regarding having the society incorporated and report at the next meeting.

DEALERS INCREASING STOCK.

While the trade is dull and there is not much doing in the stores, all are making a bid for business with an increased stock of flowers and more attention to the windows. This demand, together with a few early weddings and other decorations, has kept the stock from accumulating to any great extent. The dahlia dominates the market. All classes of roses are much improved, although there is considerable mildew still clinging to the tea varieties. American Beauties are in good demand each week, showing quite an improvement in the quality. The newer sorts—Sunburst, Lady Hillingdon and Mrs. Ward—are seen with longer stems. They appear to find favor with the public. Some very good carnations are offered and sell fairly well since the asters are out of the way. Easter lilies have been scarce the past week, the growers seeming to be afraid to force any quantity for the dull market. Hundreds more would have found ready sale. Wistaria is in good supply, and cattleyas are far too plentiful, selling as low as $3 per dozen. Golden Glow chrysanthemums of splendid quality have been in demand, the market cleaning up every day. Monrovia is now in, but the flowers should have been left in a week longer. Smith's Advance is too poor a flower and is not a good seller. Gardenias are plentiful and in fair demand. K.

BUSINESS DISAPPOINTING.

The activity in the market the early part of the week did not continue, and at present the situation is anything but satisfactory. However, this does not apply to everything, as white flowers, especially white roses, were scarce and cleaned up nicely. Carnations are much more in evidence and the quality is very much better, but prices are lower than a week ago. Lily of the valley is moving slowly. There is plenty of it to be had, with only a moderate demand. There are some magnificent gladioli on the market that command very good prices. This is especially true of the variety Mrs. Frances Pendleton, Jr., and some of the other choice flowers. Roses are not so plentiful, but with the exception of the white varieties are moving slowly. American Beauties are of very good quality—no change in quotations. There is an increasing demand for Prince de Bulgarie, and all grades of this rose are selling better. Yellow roses are very plentiful, but there is call for only the top grades of these, as there seems to be no use for short stemmed ones of this color. There is the usual demand for small lots of the other varieties. Violets are arriving daily but are of poor quality. Gardenias move slowly. Orchids are in large supply and the demand for any of the varieties is very disappointing and prices have taken a decided slump. Chrysanthemums are now arriving in very large quantities and of very good quality, but the quotations are only about one-half of what was asked a year ago for the same varieties. There is still an abundance of outdoor grown flowers, such as tritomas, asters, gladioli, celosia, hydrangeas, cornflower and dahlias. The quality of dahlias is of the best—better than ever before probably—but only a few of these bring good prices.

Monday, September 30.—Weather cool and bright. Stock shortened up considerably and as usual on Monday mornings the market is quite active.

NOTES.

Traendly & Schenck are receiving a grand lot of orchids from Komitsch & Junge, Secaucus, N. J., and among those noticed as being especially fine were Cattleya labiata, Cattleya Bowringiana, Cattleya gigas, Oncidium splendendum, Oncidium varicosum, Odonoglossum grande, Dendrobium Phalaenopsis and formosum.

The daily press has been giving elaborate notices of the new roses exhibited at the American Institute Show, "Milady," by A. N. Pierson and the new pink seedling No. 190 exhibited by Charles H. Totty.

Walter F. Sheridan is receiving a good lot of roses, carnations and lilies. George Young, Clifton, N. J., and Dean & Co., Little Silver, N. J., have begun shipping to this establishment roses from the new crop.

The next club meeting will be Monday, October 14, which Chairman I. S. Hendrickson of the exhibition committee announces will be dahlia night. The November meeting will probably be ladies' night.

George Daides, for years a grower and landscape gardener of Litchfield, Conn., and later with Alexander McConnell, has opened a retail store at Amsterdam avenue and One Hundred and Tenth street.

Young & Nugent have been extremely busy with funeral work the last week. Mr. Nugent is quite satisfied with the sales made in their lately established seed and bulb business.

John P. Cleary, vice-president and auctioneer of the Flower Auction Co., is well pleased with the progress made in the sales of plants and supplies.

Herbert Brown and Mrs. Brown, of Richmond, Va., left for home Tuesday, after a week's stay here, the guests of John Donaldson and wife.

There will be an important meeting of the committee on publicity on Wednesday, October 2, at the office of Traendly & Schenck.

The Growers' Cut Flower Co. have many more consignors than last year and manager J. J. Coan anticipates a very busy season.

John Meisem of Elmhurst is cutting two hundred dozen lilies daily. Some of these have reached the 10-cent mark.

William Brennecke is sending in some of the finest chrysanthemums of the season to A. L. Young & Co.

William Duckham has been compelled to postpone the date of his sailing for Europe until October 8.

R. H. James of St. Georges, Bermuda, is a visitor; also H. B. Neum of Rochester.

Gomer Waterer will return to England on the "Mauretania" October 2.

Rochester, N. Y.

SLIGHT INCREASE FOR WEEK.

Business for the week has shown a slight increase. Funeral work has made many of the florists very busy. Stock is becoming more plentiful. There is a good quantity of Easter lilies, but the callas are coming very slowly. Very good shipments of chrysanthemums arrive daily, both cut and potted, and find a ready sale. The demand for palms and ferns has been fairly brisk, many of the local florists supplying a number of the booths at the exposition and also to dealers for the fall openings. Carnations are some what better and not so soft. Red ones are very plentiful. Gladioli are coming daily and sell fairly well. Prices on all flowers stand about the same.

NOTES.

A meeting of the general committee of the Rochester Florists' Association was held at G. B. Hart's commission house rooms last Tuesday, to talk over plans for the forthcoming flower show, which is to take place during the first week in November. — Pitkin, landscape artist, was appointed to draw up a landscape view to make an outline of exhibits and to present them at the next meeting, which is to be held Oct. 1.

Horace J. Head has returned from his trip to Europe and is with H. E. Wilson as before. While away he exhibited a floral design "Rock of Ages" at a large floral and horticultural show, held at Langford, Bedfordshire, England, for which he received a certificate "Exceedingly highly commended," signed by the two judges. This design was not for competition.

The ladies of the Rochester Florists' Association will hold a meeting next Wednesday at the Hotel Seneca to talk over plans for the flower show. They expect to have a tearoom in connection with this affair.

The will of the late Charles L. Yates, treasurer of the American Association of Nurserymen, who died September 4, bequeaths an estate of $25,000, all personal property, to his widow, Ellen B. Yates.

Joseph Werdien has been busy during the second half of the exposition. He is a member of the band which gave afternoon and evening concerts.

Buffalo.

FLOWISTS ALL BUSY.

The last week has been rather busy for all, several weddings and a very large funeral making extra work. The death of one of our city officials, who was also a military and clubman, gave the florists about all they could do to execute the work. Fall flowers are good, especially dahlias, which are in finer variety this year than ever before. Calendulas and gillardias are good and fill a vacancy that at this time nothing else could.

NOTES.

Active preparations are being made by the different stores and growers for the chrysanthemum show which will start the day after election. General chairman W. F. Kasting will announce his committee appointments on Tuesday at the regular meeting and after that the executive committee will meet and outline their fall plan and get everything in good working order.

The opening of the General Electric building last week was another opportunity for the florists to dispose of all their American beauties, gladioli and chrysanthemums.

The American Foundry convention gave several some good decorating jobs and the banquet was taken care of by Jos. Sangster.

F. W. Brown has a live addition to his famous collection of photos. It is a boy.

John Von Fiebelkorn is again catering to the needs of S. A. Anderson's customers.

Robert Scott and wife are now in their new home on Lafayette avenue. BISON.

American Institute Fair.

The eighty-first fair of this society was held as usual in the Berkeley Lyceum, September 24-26. As in the past this exhibition was in charge of William C. Rickards, who succeeded in making a very creditable display and a nice arrangement, though there were not as many exhibits as in former years.

The feature of the show was the exhibit of 25 blooms of that grand new pink rose "190" by Charles H. Totty, and 25 blooms of the new red rose "Milady" shown by A. N. Pierson, Inc. The collection of dahlias shown by George L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I., also attracted much attention. There was a splendid group of orchids shown by Lager & Hurrell, and a fine group of ornamental flowering and foliage plants by the Julius Roehrs Co. Then there were Gladiolus Primulinus and Sulphur King shown by John Lewis Childs, and a vase of Gladiolus fascinator and "No. 88" shown by E. S. Miller, Wading River, Long Island, but the center of attraction was the exhibit of vegetables grown by the children of the International Children's School Farm League. This was a very creditable display of beans, carrots, corn and a general line of vegetables which reflected great credit on the efforts of the little ones. Henry Griscom Parsons was in charge of this exhibit and explained clearly to the visitors the workings of the league. Y.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The regular monthly meeting of this society was held at Pembroke Hall, Glen Cove, L. I., on September 11. President Johnston in the chair. F. W. Grant, Port Washington, and G. Ferguson, Glen Cove, were elected to active membership. J. Holloway offered a cash prize for fruit at the fall show and Gammoek offered a prize for six begonias of the Gloire de Lorraine variety. The judges for the evening's exhibits were Gray, Adler and MacDonald, and the awards were: Honorable mention to James Holloway for collection of outdoor fruit; first prize, to H. Gant for onions; first prize to J. W. Everatt for celery; first prize to H. Boettcher for gladioli. It was voted to offer a silver cup, value $50, for the National Flower Show, to be held in New York next April, the class to be decided on by the management. The next meeting will be held in connection with the dahlia show of October 9.

We have had a strange sort of summer. The wettest and coolest for many years. The days are unusually cool. Phlox is now gorgeous. Hollyhocks are looking their best. Asters are of fine size and perfect form. Carnations, mums, roses, smilax, ferns, etc., are all looking well in the greenhouses. The governor-general paid us a visit recently, which made quite a brisk trade for a few days.

The season has not been an ideal one for cucumbers. They are far below the average, also corn. Beans have produced fairly well, but it will be hard to get them ripe. Potatoes are generally a good crop and free so far from rust, but are getting low in price, $1 to $1.25 a barrel. Seed onions

HEAT HURT OUTSIDE STOCK.

"We are here because we are here" would seem to be the best reason to give for the existence of the florists here during the past few weeks. The prospect for the late fall crop of asters was fine until the last week of August, when two weeks of hot, dry weather finished up with a week of almost record breaking high temperature, accompanied by dry, hot winds. This took the life out of asters, dahlias, etc., in spite of plenty of water supplied to the soil. And the florists are about ready to subscribe to the unpoetical but picturesque declaration that "life is just one darn thing after another." However, the same philosophy says, "Keep a-goin'," so all are busy with the fall work. Carnations are all in and looking well. Chrysanthemums are up to the usual standard for this date, and the prospective supply seems to promise the largest crop ever produced in this locality.

The above is true about all regions. Chas. P. Culp and wife were the Wichita florists at the convention and all spent some time in Chicago and elsewhere, returning home the first week in September.

The drouth was broken Sept. 13 by a general rain, lasting more or less steadily for 48 hours and giving a total precipitation of about 2 1/2 inches.

W. H. C.

FREDERICK, MD.—Frank C. Hargett gave his second annual floral reception at his home, September 12. The reception was held in Mr. Hargett's beautiful flower garden, which he transformed in a short time from an unsightly stable yard.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubs, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, and painted green. These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established, and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When in Philadelphia Be Sure to Look Us Up

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your convenience, both going and coming. Then you will see our Palms of all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place), and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy. With increased glass devoted to our Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition

POTATO reports are generally favorable.

TUBEROSE crop reports to date indicate that the bulbs have made a good growth.

WICHITA, KAN.—The Central Seed & Feed Co. will be sold by the receiver, W. F. Puckett.

THE harvesting of gladiolus bulbs is now general and the prospects are for a good yield of large bulbs.

Now is the time for seedsmen who looked for seed corn last spring to lay in their full supply while selection can be carefully made and seed cured under shelter.

A. LE COQ & Co., the European grass seed specialists, under date of September 15, say, "We have this year to report a favorable yield of most grass seeds."

VISITED CHICAGO: Wm. Rehm, New York; Harry G. Coy, representing Chauncey P. Coy & Son, Waterloo, Neb.; Joseph Schilder and wife, of Schilder Bros., Chillicothe, O.; Miss Margaret Tomlinson, of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., Los Angeles, Calif., returning from the east; H. A. Barnard, representing Stuart, Low & Co., London, Eng.

THE firm of Shugart & Ouren, Council Bluffs, Ia., is the subject of an interesting article in a recent issue of the Council Bluffs Nonpareil. The company was established in 1892, and has grown rapidly, the last year, one of its best, showing an increase of thirty per cent in the business transacted. The officers of the firm are C. G. Ouren, president; F. R. Davis, vice-president; John P. Davis, secretary; A. P. Schofield, treasurer.

Mail Order Versus Box Seeds.

In the recent bulletin of the Department of Agriculture on the "Germination of Packeted Vegetable Seed," we find the following:

"There is doubtless an economic reason for the higher average quality of the seeds sold by mail-order houses as compared with the seeds sent out by many of the houses selling box seeds. It is possible for a new firm or one without reputation to purchase a large quantity of seeds, put them up in showy packets and boxes, and by means of attractive prices dispose of them to local merchants either on commission or by sale outright. Mail-order houses, on the other hand, are dependent for their trade on proportionately few new customers each year, their business being based largely on the satisfactory quality of their seeds which purchasers have used in previous years.

CHICAGO.—Prices on the Board of Trade October 2 for grass seed were noted as follows: Timothy, $3.50 to $4.50 per 100 pounds.—Carl Cropp, of Vaughan's Seed Store, and wife have returned from Europe.

Long Island Cabbage.

The 1912 crop of cabbage seed on Long Island panned out much better than we anticipated early in the season, and while many varieties are more or less short by reason of largely increased acreage there is enough of nearly all leading sorts to meet the demand.—B.

Hardy Alfalfa Tests.

Considerable interest has been aroused through the importation by the United States Department of Agriculture of some new hardy varieties of alfalfa. Little, however, is generally known concerning the characteristics of these new alfalfas or the real purposes of their introduction.

In the search for hardy forms of common alfalfa (Medicago sativa) adapted to severe conditions of drought and cold, the potential value of closely allied species became apparent. A yellow-flowered species (Medicago falcata) found widely distributed throughout Eurasia, forms of which thrive on the cold, dry steppes of Russia and similar regions, seemed to be the most promising. For this reason persistent efforts were made to import many valuable forms of this species.

The Department of Agriculture has met with many difficulties in procuring seed in quantity, as it is not handled commercially and in no place is it produced in abundance. The results of tests of the available forms of Medicago falcata indicate rather definitely that their chief value is for crossing with common alfalfa to produce hardy and drought-resistant hybrid strains. At present the new alfalfas do not appear to be sufficiently productive to make them generally profitable under cultivation.

The experts do not believe that this yellow-flowered alfalfa in its unselected state is a crop for the farmer to test, even though seed were available. The Department of Agriculture is pushing the work of selection by hybridization of the best forms of this species as rapidly as possible, in the hope that valuable drought-resistant and cold-resistant strains may ultimately be established in general use.

British Crop Damage.

From Cornwall to Durham and from Lancashire to Kent there is one universal lament over flooded lowlands, spoiled hay, inundated pastures, sprouted corn, shed peas, podless beans, diseased potatoes, and unwholesome pastures. Wheat, which, on August 1, worked out to be the worst crop since 1904, is now the worst so far as our records extend. Barley has receded in the principal barley-growing counties from 92.6 to 76, or 5 points below the English average. The crop is in a vast number of cases unfit for malting, and the expressions used by the reporters indicate despair, as the crops were still out in the fields in very damaged condition. Oats were never promising. As compared with previous years at the same date they are the worst crop since 1901. All cereals have suffered acutely, and it is difficult to see where sound seed is to be found for the next crop. Beans are not much worse than they were reported to be on August 1, but there are many complaints of badly filled pods. Peas are apparently destroyed where still out in the field. The spread of potato disease has been appalling since July 1. It is reported from every county in Great Britain, and in a very great number of cases it is pronounced to be extremely bad. It is also prevalent in Scotland. Potatoes are also affected with black scab in some places, and in others are said to be "dead" or "rotten." They are also under water and unapproachable, and it is feared that they may not be worth picking.—Daily Consular and Trade Reports.

Market Gardeners

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. F. Hall, Moorestown, N. J., President; C. West, Irondequoit, N. Y., Vice-President; E. A. Dunbar, Ashtabula, O., Secretary; M. L. Ruetenik, Cleveland, O., Treasurer.

SAN BERNARDINO, CALIF.—Geo. J. Fowler, owner of Harlem Springs, will erect a large hothouse to be heated by the natural hot water of the springs. He expects to furnish the market with vegetables at all seasons of the year.

THE annual field day of the Massachusetts Asparagus Growers' Association was held Wednesday, September 18, at the experiment station at Concord. President C. W. Prescott, Prof. J. B. Norton, Dr. H. J. Wheeler and Prof. F. W. Morse were on the programme.

Prohibition on American Potatoes.

The importation of American potatoes into Germany has been forbidden by imperial order since February 26, 1875, on the ground that such importations are liable to lead to the introduction of the potato bug (Colorado beetle) into the country. The only exception to this rule applies to potatoes included in ships' provisions, and they may not be removed from the ship. The director of the plant quarantine station at Hamburg states that American potatoes intended for transshipment via German ports can not be stored in the Free Port pending such transshipment. —Daily Consular and Trade Reports.

Improving Vegetables.

Among the very interesting papers read at the fifth annual convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America, at Rochester, N. Y., September 4-6, was that on "Improving Vegetables by Crossing and Selection," by O. G. Bishop, Pontiac, Mich. Mr. Bishop is known as an authority in this line and he handled his subject in a way that made his points clear to the audience.

Speaking of the desirability of every commercial grower producing his own seed, Mr. Bishop said: "It has been my good fortune to become intimately acquainted with a number of our leading seedsmen and I have only the very best words of commendation for them. They are almost invariably men of high character and thoroughly conscientious in their endeavor to supply their commercial friends with the best seeds they can obtain. They spare no trouble or expense to obtain this end, but in spite of the fact it seems to me to be vastly important for every commercial grower to grow his own seed whenever it is possible. During the last few years it has been my pleasure to visit a large number of commercial growers in all parts of the country and I regret to say that the lack of knowledge on the part of most of them is extremely painful."

Mr. Bishop spoke of the fact that a plant may prove successful in one part of the country and the same variety fail in another and then went on as follows: "It must be borne in mind constantly when making a selection that going through a field and selecting at random an ideal fruit means nothing. The plant from which the fruit was taken may have borne only the one perfect fruit and at the same time several inferior ones; and the plant itself may have been very weak in constitution and not at all to be desired as a parent plant. The entire character of the plant and its fruit must be taken into consideration, selecting always the one bearing the greatest number of plants most nearly perfect."

Bavarian Truck and Fruit Farms.

As a result of the unusually hot summer in 1911 the truck farmers in the neighborhood of Bamberg, Bavaria, suffered a serious pecuniary loss, it being estimated that the 500 truck farmers in that region experienced a decrease of $190,400 in sales. Shipments of vegetables from Bamberg during 1910 amounted to 19,088,722 pounds and in 1911 to only 13,778,890 pounds. The market was therefore poorly supplied with fresh vegetables, and the variety was not large. The canning factories also had great difficulty in obtaining fresh goods, and the potato crop was a failure.

Prices of fresh vegetables were therefore very high; at times, in fact, exorbitant; but in March this year, because of the great scarcity of local vegetables, the Coburg market was literally flooded with large shipments of cauliflower from Italy, and the large heads of the best quality, which usually sell for 8 and 10 cents apiece, could be bought for 2½ cents. Since March, however, seasonable and copious rains with dry, sunshiny weather following, have brought forth an unusually large and excellent local crop of all kinds of vegetables, which now retail at considerably lower prices than usually prevail. The fruit crop is also fairly good this year, although not as large as was expected, and the retail prices remain rather high. In spite of this there is still a good market here for American apples in particular, and other fruits in general. —Daily Consular and Trade Reports.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa., President; J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore., Vice-President; John Hall, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y. Thirty-eighth annual convention to be held at Portland, Ore., June, 1913.

ACCORDING to a decision of the Board of General Appraisers, evergreen seedlings are to be admitted free of duty and not assessed as nursery stock.

THE Agricultural Bureau (of Mexico) has extended for two months the time in which growers can make application for fruit trees which will be imported from the United States, France, and Japan, and sold at half price.—Daily Consular and Trade Reports.

ACTING on the protest of H. Bayersdorfer & Co. of Philadelphia, Pa., the Board of General Appraisers on August 9 held that pieces of branches of trees tied in bundles, assessed as unenumerated manufactured articles under paragraph 480, tariff act of 1909, should be free of duty as vegetable substances, crude or unmanufactured.

DECLARING that the white pine blister rust, articles on which have appeared in recent issues of our paper, exists in Great Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Russia, Germany, Austria, Switzerland and Italy, the Department of Agriculture has, under authority conferred by the recent "Plant Quarantine Act," prohibited the importation of the following species from those countries until further notice: white pine (Pinus strobus L.), western white pine (Pinus monticola Dougl.), sugar pine (Pinus lambertiana Dougl.), and stone or cembrian pine (Pinus cembra L.).

Two Important New Commercial Ferns

Cyrtomium Rochfordianum

(The Crested Holly Fern)

The most valuable Decorative Fern of recent introduction.

A most important addition to our list of Ferns. Its foliage is of a rich, deep, glossy green color, the pinnae or leaflets besides being wavy or undulated are also deeply cut or toothed, giving the plant a graceful light appearance, which makes it valuable not only as a dish Fern but decorative work and for apartment use.

2 1/4-inch pots 75c per dozen, $5.00 per 100, $40.00 per 1000;
4-inch pots $2.00 per dozen, $15.00 per 100. Also a limited lot of flats of about 200 plants each, at $3.00 per flat.

Adiantum Farleyense Gloriosa

(The Glory Fern or Rum Von Mordrecht)

The Fern which will revolutionize the cut frond business.

For the grower of Ferns for cutting this new Maiden Hair will undoubtedly prove a most important addition; it closely resembles Adiantum Farleyense and will make a splendid substitute for that fancy variety, and it can be produced at much less cost, as it will thrive under conditions in which Adiantum Farleyense could not exist.

At our Riverview Nursery we have given it a very fair trial for this purpose during the past winter. A block of these plants were planted on a bench in a house devoted to the ordinary Boston Fern and received the ordinary treatment and temperature given to the Nephrolepis, and under this treatment they developed not only fronds of great beauty on longer, stiffer stems than Farleyense produces, but also many more fronds than would be developed by that variety in the same length of time under the most favorable condition.

Anyone who successfully grows the ordinary varieties of Adiantum, such as Cuneatum, Croweanum, and Hybridum, can grow it under precisely the same conditions given to these sorts.

We have a fine block of about 30,000 young plants, 2 1/4-inch pots, at $2.00 per dozen, $15.00 per 100, $140.00 per 1000.

STATE FAIR HELPS TRADE.

The state fair, which opened here September 24, brought many visitors to the city and the flower stores have felt a decided impetus to the volume of trade. During fair week the general storekeepers have been holding a window display competition. White chrysanthemums and American Beauty roses were both used for this purpose.

NOTES.

There is a fight for the office of superintendent of parks going on here just now. The park commissioners have engaged C. U. Butterfield of Muskogee, Okla., but the city commissioners (we have a commission form of government here) will not ratify the appointment owing to the fact that Mr. Butterfield has not the necessary six months' legal residence in the county, which the law requires.

J. G. Angel, who has about 10,000 feet of greenhouse area at 409 N. Western avenue, is combining the artistic with the utilitarian by growing lettuce and carnations. Since the opening of the market for vegetables he is more than ever convinced that the edible crop is the most profitable of the two. Mr. Angel moved here from Neosho, Mo., some six years ago.

Ferns.

The growing of Nephrolepis for the past five years has been one of our leading specialties. We have three houses, which were rebuilt this summer, especially adapted for the growing of first-class stock. Ferns do not do well in old houses. They need houses with plenty of sun and good, fresh, sweet air. Old dark houses bring fungus and make spindly plants.

Neph Giatrasil. This is a new fern, very graceful, of weeping habit, short and bushy, very much admired by every one who has bought it. 4-5 ½-6 in. pots, 25c, 35c, 40c and 50c.

Hammond's Thrip Juice No. 2

For the Destruction of Sucking Insects and Caterpillars, Slugs, Aphides, Red Spider and Mealy Bug.

In 1883, twenty-nine years ago, we made this preparation for the use of a grape grower, Mr. Floyd Quick, of Fishkill, N. Y.

The Thrip is one of the most bothersome of insect pests, because the moment the plant is touched, off goes the Thrip.

Thrip Juice No. 2 is diluted for general use thirty to forty times with water. The late Isaac Wood, Florist, of Fishkill, N. Y., used it for Mealy Bug and Red Spider. This article was purchased by a druggist in Jacksonville, Florida, the late Dr. James A. Farley, who was Secretary of the Board of Trade. He found it effective against the Orange Scale. Upon trial in Florida we changed the formula, making another grade, which is Thrip Juice No. 1, and is arsenicated. This was tried out in Lake County, Florida, twenty-five years ago, and has been in use there yearly ever since. This Thrip Juice No. 1, by the growers, is used with a very great dilution. It is exported to the West Indies.

No. 2 Thrip Juice has been in use for twenty-nine years. The past two years there has been a steadily increasing demand, as it is becoming better known. If any Florist wishes to test Thrip Juice No. 2, and will pay the expressage, we will send him a sample for trial, because we know there is "No Magic in Killing Bugs," and it is the general average of success that proves the practical lasting value of any article.

Greenhouse and Residence Heated by One Kroeschell Boiler

Had different kinds of cast iron boilers. I am assured that I can save about one-third fuel with your boiler. I started firing Oct. 10th, and the fire never went out up to this time, May 12th, 1907. This boiler heats both my dwelling and greenhouses and gives the best of satisfaction. My dwelling is about 40 feet from the boiler. Can recommend your boiler to anybody. It is the only greenhouse boiler.

Double-Glass Double Profits

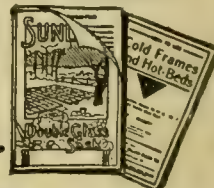

The old single layer hot-bed sash are far better than none; but they must be covered with mats, boards or shutters every evening and uncovered every morning. They are wasteful.

The new SUNLIGHT DOUBLE GLASS SASH, with two layers of glass enclosing an air space, are COMPLETE IN THEMSELVES. They eliminate all extra covers; they wipe out half the labor cost; they admit all the light by day to store warmth in the bed and then save the warmth at night.

They make plants earlier and stronger. They double final profits.

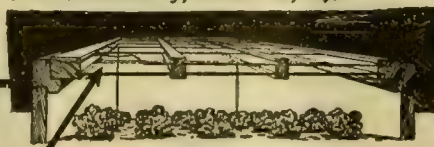

Every practical gardener or florist will see the value of this.

And it is good business for you to get our free catalog for full information. Write your address plainly and send it today; the hot-bed season is not far off. Prof. Massey's booklet on Hot-beds and Cold Frames sent for 4c in stamps.

The Fire Channels Between the Sections Are Shaped Like This To Pocket the Heat.

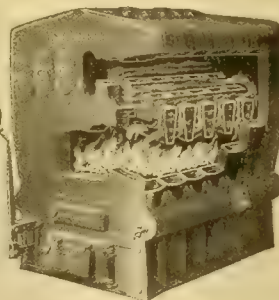

These channels run across the boiler from side to side. They pocket the heat and extract the hottest part. They give to the water returning from the mains the greatest heat in the shortest time, which is one of the important reasons for the surprising force and rapidity of circulation in Burnham heated coils.

Another thing those cross channels do is to lead the hot gases to the side flue openings on both sides of the boiler, which makes an equal distribution of the heat to each section, making every section an equal heater.

The three times fire travel that then begins at the side flue openings, although longer than any fire travel on any boiler we have ever heard of, is so carefully proportioned that the draft is neither too strong nor too sluggish, but just right to insure your getting all the heat you ought to from your coal. It's all told and shown in the Handy Hand Book. Look it up. You can't go wrong on a Burnham—that's sure.

Write—or if in a hurry, wire or phone your order, and we will ship it same day.

Made in 22 sizes, for either hot water or steam. Will heat from 1042 to 11420 lineal feet of 2-inch pipe.

This is the U-Bar, the bar that makes U-Bar Greenhouses the Famous Greenhouses They Are.

At a glance that's apparent. The reason is, the U-Bar. To put it another way; you can put a gold plated harness on a heavy draft horse and hitch him to a swell little runabout—but with all his trappings he ambles along draft horse fashion just the same. So by the same token, putting a curved eave on a greenhouse does not make it a U-Bar curved eave house. It only looks something like it from the outside. A U-Bar house is distinctly different and it's the U-Bar that makes it so. Send for a catalogue and find out just why.

Some Sound Advice.

DON'T be too much influenced by what your right hand neighbor says about steel tubular boilers; or your left hand one says about cast iron ones. Neither one is all right or all wrong. But there is a sure, dependable way to get at the merits of each type of boiler and that is by comparing facts—not opinions—but facts. We have such facts.

They cover costs of each type on installation, operation, repairs, and heat returns.

It's what the office boys call, "getting right down to the brass tacks of the situation."

We have spent years in gathering these facts and so it is not our intention to send them out to every Tom, Dick, and Harry that sends in a postal for them.

The only way to get them is through one of our representatives coming to see you or your calling at our Elizabeth office to see us.
These facts were not collected with the idea of showing that cast iron boilers are better than steel tubular ones; but to prove beyond all argument which type of boiler is the most economical for heating houses or ranges of various sizes. So if you want to be surely sure, before you invest your money, it would certainly be worth your while to have one of us come and bring the proofs along and talk things over with you.

P. S.—One of our 36-10 steam boilers will develop steam to supply 6,260 feet of 1½-in. pipe—enough to heat a range having 18,780 sq.
feet of glass.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Dahlias.

Before the dahlias were through blooming they should have been care-fully named and a label properly in-scribed fastened to each plant that it is desired to save. As soon as the plants are killed by the frost they should be cut down and the tubers dug. Leave about six or eight inches of stem and firmly attach the label to this in such a manner that it cannot become loosened or lost. A good, dry cellar, either with a cement or earthen bottom, will keep them nicely through the winter, but it should be frost proof and not too near a boiler or heater. The tubers can be placed closely to-gether and then covered with soil and they will come through the winter and the tubers be nice and plump in the spring. They should be occasionally examined to see that they are not get-ting too dry or shrivelling. If this hap-pens cover the soil with papers and then sprinkle the paper and the soil will absorb the moisture.

Gladioli.

As soon as the frost has killed down the foliage the gladiolus bulbs should be lifted and dried off. Keeping the varieties separate, the bulbs with the tops attached, should be laid out in layers either on a light, dry shed floor, or on boards in the open air where they can be protected at night during frosty weather. A set of boards or frame shutters spread along on the south side of a building make a very fine place to dry them off and fully ripen the bulbs. Have plenty of cover-ing handy that can be thrown over them on cold nights. When thoroughly ripened the bulbs can be broken from the tops and packed away. Look the bulbs over carefully for any diseased spots and if any having these are found, keep them separate from the sound ones, for it is the prevailing opinion that the disease may be com-municated to a sound bulb by coming in contact with a diseased one. Of the finer varieties and those which it is desired to increase, save all the small corms, and these can be planted to grow on in succeeding years to make flowering bulbs. There are so many new and meritorious varieties now being placed upon the market that the grower who has a market for gladioli should make it a point to use these, for the advance has been very rapid and many of the newer ones are far ahead of the older varieties. This flower has forged rapidly ahead in the last few years as a cut flower, and with the improvement now going on is bound to retain its popularity.

Callas.

The calla bulbs that were planted in pots during August should now have a fine start and should be placed in the benches or pots where they are going to bloom. Make the soil good and rich—it can hardly have too much manure to get the best results, but do not use too fresh manure, have it partly rot-ted. If grown in pots and the bulbs are large give them a good size, nine or ten-inch is none too large, and pot firmly. After potting give the plants a good soaking and then withhold water until the plants have obtained a good foothold in the new soil, when they will require lots of water. Place them in a house where the tempera-ture can be held at 60° at night if flowers during the winter are desired. Keep the plants tied up that the bloom may have straight stems. When cut-ting leaves be careful not to cut too low or the young flower that is en-folded in the leaf stem may be in-jured.

Mignonette.

As the weather grows cooler, the mignonette will begin to throw the long spikes that are so much desired by the best trade. The plants should be carefully kept tied or held erect for if they get bent over the stems will grow crooked and they are worthless. Growers adopt different methods for doing this. Some grow them in wire rings similar to the carnation supports, others cut short brush sticks which they set between the rows of plants and still others run wire the length-wise of the bench and tie strings across, making a square around each plant in which it will stand erect. Other wires and strings are added as the plant grows. Keep the plants growing very cool from now on; a house at about the temperature of a violet house, that is from 36° to 40° at night will produce the finest spikes of flowers. When the flower spikes begin to show keep the plants well disbudded, allowing only the center flower to bloom and all the side shoots should be cut off. This will have to be done very early with the first bloom that sets, for as soon as it forms, three shoots will immediately start to grow at the base of the flower; these should be removed as early as possible that the entire strength of the stalk can go into the terminal flower.

Cleaning Up After Frost.

Every spring, from all sections of the country, come reports of the great amount of damage being done by cut worms in the fields of many growers, and as they are very difficult to combat in the open ground, a great loss is consequently the result. While the cut worms are unsuccessfully fought in the spring, they can be overcome by a little labor spent in the fall. The moths lay their eggs in the fall on any vegetation that is left, either weeds or the refuse of the crops that is allowed to remain on the ground either standing or lying around. It is therefore clearly understood that the best thing to do is to clean up the field of all vegetation and burn it up or cover it with soil and make manure of it, and then plow the ground and turn under any small weeds that might harbor the eggs. Deep fall plowing pays anyway in the crop for the succeeding year, improving the soil, and if this small amount of work will get rid of the cut worms it will amply repay for all the labor and expense. Many use this old rubbish for the covering of tender stock, but leaves and straw are far preferable for this purpose, the vegetation that is left after being killed by the frost is too full of water and will lie too close, and after the fall rains will make too compact a mass upon the plants which it is intended they should protect, and as the freezing weather comes on become a solid mass of ice. It is much better to put all this rubbish in a compost pile and cover it with earth. The fermentation will kill all the insects and their eggs, and it will make fine manure for pot culture, or if this is not done dry it out thoroughly and burn it. The appearance of the ground will be improved, the soil benefited and the worms killed by giving the field a thorough cleaning and ploughing.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—That part of the city on the Kansas side of the state line will probably erect a municipal greenhouse this fall for the plants set out in the parks during the summer. Plans for a building 30x100 feet have been prepared by James Patten, superintendent of parks. It will cost about $1,200.

THE RETAIL TRADE

The New Idea in Retailing.

The greenhouse, once considered the standard at twenty by one hundred feet, has grown longer and broader, until now it is anywhere from three hundred to one thousand feet in length and fifty to seventy-five feet in width. Where at one time the erection of one such house covering an acre of ground as an addition to an establishment caused comment, a five acre group of such houses is now accepted as a matter of course. President Burton, in his address before the Society of American Florists in 1902 was greatly alarmed at the tremendous increase in the glass area during the previous five years. Whole ranges were springing up with mushroomlike rapidity all over the country, but particularly in the west, the growers of Chicago seeming to be in competition with one another as to who should have the largest acreage under glass. The possibilities of the enormous overproduction of cut flowers that would necessarily follow, was to him appalling, and he earnestly hoped that the growers would call a halt until the demand came up closer to the supply. While we believe Mr. Burton felt every word he said and was deeply impressed with the situation as he saw it and also voiced the thoughts of very many conservative men in the business, his words had little effect. There is probably now, only ten years later, at least three times the amount of glass given over to the growing of cut flowers that was to be seen then. Even the warning prophet himself, Mr. Burton, than whom there is no more conservative man in the business, has between himself and two sons, about kept pace with the rest of the country in the enlargement of greenhouse equipment. Even outsiders, men with capital, see millions in it. A gentleman recently invested $50,000 as a starter on a farm at Yardley,

Pa. In speaking of the enterprise he said: "I know nothing about growing flowers. But I am taking the experience of others. I have had the last word in greenhouses erected by one of the best firms in the country. I have an experienced grower who will have ready cash for getting all supplies at rock bottom prices. This combination will insure me the best results, and as to the returns, I am besieged by prominent wholesale dealers who promise to place my flowers before the retail dealers of the large cities where I am confident of a splendid return on my investment."

Now, while there appears to be no let up in the increase of new greenhouse structures, there is a dissatisfaction with returns, and a growing belief, which has turned in some places to a fear, that a great overproductive period will set in that may result in panic prices or perhaps no price at all, which situation will become so severe that it will mean oblivion for those who are now reaching out without looking ahead to see if their footing is secure. The situation in New York, where during the last season there were times of great overproduction, is cited. It is said that if a certain large buyer by the name of Treple had not saved the day by purchases of some $2,000 daily which he sold through three large department stores, the results would have been disastrous. One wholesale house is reported to have sold him as much as $18,000 worth of flowers monthly. As this is all cash business, for Mr. Treple buys only for cash, it certainly did help out considerably. Whether the prices obtained encourage the growers to further enlargement of their places remains to be seen. The general impression among the producers is that although the supply is constantly increasing the demand lags behind and that it is the fault of the retailers who do not push the sales as they should. Several progressive retail merchants make a specialty of handling flowers by giving inducements of large quantities for little money on certain sale or week end days. Others push sales by extensive advertising of a special box for one dollar. A Chicago dealer is said to handle an average of 500 of these boxes daily even in the summer months. This is given on the word of a grower who says he saw it done himself. It is said that a well defined movement is under way by men with capital to establish a chain of stores in greater New York in which flowers are to be sold on the popular price plan, much as they are handled by the department stores in that city.

The belief that flowers are not handled or presented to the public at such prices as to induce large sales, by the average retail merchant, has taken such a hold on some of the Western growers, that E. G. Hill & Co., Fred Lemon, and the Heller Bros. of Indiana, are about to show how they believe it can be done, and will open a chain of stores in Indianapolis, Cincinnati, and one or two other cities, where they hope to be able to sell direct to the consumer at prices which when expenses are taken out will net them much more than is now received via the ordinary commission route. When asked what effect this will have on the smaller retail dealers, they say that they believe the business has grown so fast that the retailers have not kept up and will have to get in step or work for those who are alive to their opportunities. Robert Craig says, "It is an evolution that is surely coming and those who are wise will go with the movement rather than buck against it. There are so many middle class buyers who have a taste for flowers and who would have them on their table if they were to be obtained at a moderate price, but they are unable to enjoy them because the ordinary retailer is afraid to buy in quantity and sell at a quick moving price. Selling four times as many flowers and making twice the money seems to be the new idea and the doubter should look into this. Let him take a day off, and see how Treple does it in the New York department stores. It will open his eyes to the possibilities of the business." Charles Meehan says, "It's coming. It is the right way to sell flowers. Don't keep them a luxury by keeping prices up. Buy in quantity lots at low prices and move them quickly. Invest the profits in a new stock and get down to as near a cash basis as possible, making it an excuse for the bargain price. Nothing like the cash, no loss in bad debts, no bookkeeping. I tell you the man that pays cash is king."

Jos. Heacock wants to see flowers sold at popular prices, but thinks the grower should keep hands off the retail end. He believes that many more flowers should be sold and could be if the retailers would push the business by carrying larger stocks and offer them at moderate prices.

All these ideas of disposing of the stock in a retail way by the growers or their agents, the commission men, are born from large cuts of flowers and full ice boxes. A house is erected and enough sold in one season to pay for it, the surplus is invested in another and these two build two more and so on and on. Nothing is said to the retail dealer as to how he should manage his business when stock is scarce, but when things begin to clog up then the grower and his agent begin to get busy. There are growers and growers, commission men and commission men, retailers and retailers, competent and otherwise. There are men in either field who are born to lead and others who can but follow. The business is changing, but is just like almost every other thing in this respect. Everything is going forward. Millions are added to the population every year. New methods of transportation and communication open up our great country to instant service in every part. The field for every large producer or his agent has grown faster than his imagination thought possible. The bright up-to-date retail dealer, need have no fear about the future of his business. His personality, combined with good business methods, will keep him to the fore against the competition of any of the weak-kneed growers who may cast their last year's panamas into the ring and think they can win out.

McKinley Tomb and Westlawn Cemetery.

As the former home and the last resting place of William McKinley, a well beloved and deeply mourned president of the United States, there is a nation-wide interest in the city of Canton. The resident population of Canton is about 55,000, but the average of visitors to the McKinley tomb is 300 each day, or in round numbers 110,000 a year. We assume that most of our readers are already well informed concerning the plan and erection of the tomb, therefore what is here written will be more in relation to the landscape features of its surroundings.

The selection of the site was a happy one, for nature had already done much, as the land all about is gently undulating and covered by a beautiful growth of oak, maple and other varieties of trees. The site of the tomb is higher than the surrounding territory and overlooks a large part of the city. The view, looking from the tomb toward the city, is beautiful, as landscape art has created a fine effect in a small artificial lake with a considerable expanse of parking on either side. Many shade trees have been planted and are in a flourishing condition.

Westlawn Cemetery adjoins the grounds on which the tomb is located and it was there that the remains of the martyred president were temporarily entombed. Here, too, it would seem that nature had prepared the way, for the grounds are a succession of wooded slopes. The natural beauties have been preserved and greatly enhanced by intelligent and judicious pruning and planting. What strikes the visitor is that there has been no straining for effect, but here and there a touch has been given to an unsightly spot that has transformed it. In going through we were reminded more of a well kept park than a cemetery and we believe that visitors to every cemetery should go away with a similar impression.

J. A. Reed is the capable superintendent of Westlawn and he deserves much credit for its excellent condition.

A Beautiful Estate.

The spacious grounds of the John W. Pepper estate at Jenkintown, Pa., are laid out with ample lawns and gardens both formal and old fashioned. There is none of the carpet bedding, the velvety green of the tree bordered a home. A few privet trees, mostly dwarf sorts, are seen, as are some splendid specimens of ramblers trained to poles. A coral honey suckle grown in this way is a conspicuous feature. It is a veritable paradise for the lover of flowers, as there is a constant supply of blossoms from the time of the spring bulbs until the frost finishes the chrysanthemums in the late fall.

A pergola covered with grape and other vines and bordered with hydrangeas is a lovely feature. This covers the walk from the mansion to the conservatories, where a house of ornamental foliage plants is a beautiful a pretty sight. Tomato vines in pots have grown great crops of fruit the past season. William Robertson, to whom the high order of culture seen here is due, is a modest gentleman, but one of the most successful managers of the many private estates around this city. In his office which adjoins the conservatories the roof and ceiling are papered with the first premium blue ribbon cards won at the various shows of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society; there are hundreds of them. He also treasures many silver cups. Taking it all in all, this is one of the most beautiful spots in this section of the country.

lawns stretching away like a huge carpet without a seam. A few specimens and small groups of trees, remarkable for beauty of form or foliage, are dotted at intervals to give variety, the lawn in the distance being bordered with a wave line of trees and shrubs that form a beautiful background and add "finish" to the picture. The formal garden is a depressed plateau separated from the terrace of the mansion with a stone balustrade; it is directly in front of the mansion. The beds and sections are divided with hedges of privet, the smaller beds and paths being bordered with box. The hedges are trimmed with square and oval tops, the covers and either side of the entrances to the walks having plants trimmed to pyramids. Globes, naterellas and pagodas, vases, fountains and statuary are plentiful and placed wherever they add to the beauty of the scene. Lombardy poplars rise like sentinels in the distance and form an admirable background.

Along the center walk on either side are seen the best of the Hybrid Perpetual Roses, the cross paths being planted with the hybrid teas. The old fashioned perennial gardens are a veritable riot of color. All the paths which, with the exception of the center, wind around in a semi-geometrical shape, are covered with grass kept short, making a dense sod. It is not worth while to describe the varieties of plants seen here, as everything worth growing appears to have found sight. Another is filled with chrysanthemums in pots, single stem plants from which magnificent exhibition blooms will be cut in the fall. A viney loaded with bunches of grapes is Imported Azaleas.

The imported plants of Azalea Indica are now here and the grower will do well to prepare for them by having his pots and compost all ready to give them attention without any delay. The plants do not apparently root deeply in the soil in which they are grown in Europe, the balls being wide rather than deep, and consisting of a mass of fine fibry roots. For this reason special azalea pots are made wider than the ordinary pots of the same depth, and just allowing sufficient room for a little drainage and to take the plants easily. One good crock should be laid concave side down over the drainage hole and a little rough fibry peat shaken out when preparing the compost should be placed over this to prevent the fine sandy particles of the soil being washed away by the continuous watering. The soil should consist largely of fine yet fibry peat, with a little good loam to give it adhesiveness and allow of its being well firmed in the pots and a sprinkling of guano or dried cow manure. As soon as the plants arrive take them out of the packages and examine them carefully to see if any are dry at the roots. Often they have been transhipped several times before reaching the grower and each time renders them more liable to be dry. Have flat tubs if no tank is at hand and place the balls of roots in water deep enough to cover them, leaving them to soak for an hour or two; then take them out and allow the superfluous moisture to drain away before potting the plants. If there is the least suspicion of dryness in the majority of the plants, soak them all, for it can do them no harm, and if potted while the center of the ball is dry, it will be difficult to moisten it afterwards and the drought will likely cause the loss of some leaves. In potting, the old ball should be lightly covered, setting the plant in the pot so that the soil rounds a little to the center and making it very firm. When the plants come with the heads tied up it will be better to untie them before potting, as it is impossible to see the exact shape of the heads while these are tied and this it is necessary to do to pot the plants properly. Pot each so that it looks best according to the shape of the head, and after potting stand the plants level on a shed floor and thoroughly soak every particle of soil with water. The plants must be gone over several times to do this, taking especial care that those on the outside are well moistened. When they have run a little dry, place them in a cool house and spray the heads several times daily. If there is a quite cool house with an earth floor, such as is used in many places for starting newly imported stock, this is the best possible place for the azaleas, and they will recover more quickly from the journey in the cool, moist atmosphere of such a house than anywhere else.

THE ROSE.

Night Firing.

We can now look for frost at any time in many sections of the country, or at least weather cool enough to do light firing and the temperature of the rose houses at this season is a very important matter. We quite often see a heavy fall of foliage in the early fall, and a certain amount of foliage will naturally come off in the early autumn, especially from plants that are grafted, as the manetti grown outside drops its foliage much earlier than other rose stock and is therefore subject to loss of foliage inside when grafted on. So after all there is nothing especially alarming about a rather unusual amount of leaves coming down at this season. Yet this may be caused also by the lack of proper ventilating and carelessness in regard to temperature either day or night, and the loss of foliage may attain dangerous proportions. Under normal conditions the foliage that will be dropped will be the extremely ripe or overripe leaves found at the points of the growths and other foliage found on turgid growths. This will not do any harm. But if the condensation is allowed to collect on the fresh foliage during the night or early morning and for several mornings in succession one can look for a case of black spot and mildew, with a severe loss of good foliage and a decided check in tip growths.

Now we come to the question of how to prevent the above results of carelessness. In the first place we have stated in a previous article that at this season there is a great difference in the temperature at noon and at say, from midnight till sunrise, so great indeed at times that without a little steam circulating through the pipes there will be a severe check. So to be on the safe side the night fireman should at once take hold of things. He may be an old employee that thoroughly understands the heating system and any of its peculiarities so often found in greenhouse heating and he will know at once how to grasp any difficulties that may arise. On the other hand, he may be a new man that lacks experience and even an experienced fireman undertaking a new job will be at a loss for a time to know just what to do. So, by all means, go over the system carefully with the new man, explain everything you can think of, show him the valves in the out of the way places, and for several nights stay with him when turning on the different coils, until every thing is quite familiar to him.

Now as to the temperature. The most practical way to insure uniform results is to tag each thermometer for the night man, punching a card plainly showing what temperature is required and if any change is required talk it over with him and change the tags. We would suggest a temperature at night at this season (with steam or hot water circulating) of from 64° to 66°, allowing an opening of the vent sash about three inches (a little more air will be better on calm nights). This temperature can be gradually decreased as follows: Taking 66° as a maximum temperature and 64° as the minimum, hold these figures for a week or 10 days, then drop from to 62° to 64° for at least two weeks, at the same time

Temperature and Ventilation.

The first week in October found the early varieties making a fine show. Donatello (yellow) was ready to cut October 3, Polly Rose (white) October 7, and Chrysolora (yellow) October 9, opened up is one of the surprises of the season. Some of the former were ready on the first of the month and a number of Chrysolora could be cut October 4, but we allow the blooms to get well developed before cutting. The second early and many of the exhibition varieties are also showing a good deal of color and our principal order of business among the chrysanthemums for the time being is to encourage their fullest development; and our first thought on this is to maintain a cool, dry atmosphere. Dampness will cause the petals to spot and a high, close temperature will bring on red spider and make the petals shrivel.

As the blooms begin to expand the soil should be held a little to the dry side but the plants must not suffer from extreme dryness or the blooms will be undersized and of poor finish. Go over the beds daily and water any dry places. There are always spots in a bench of plants that dry out quicker than others owing to the more vigorous root action of one variety than another or the more exposed position of the bench. The grower who has followed his plants closely is well "posted" as to these conditions. The watering should be done early enough in the day to allow for the drying up of the atmosphere before evening. The best time to attend to this work is between 9 and 11 o'clock in the morning. Another very important question is that of temperature and ventilation. Plenty of fresh air is essential but it must not take the form of a cold draught. A cold current of air working through the plants will bring on mildew and rust as well as cause many imperfect flowers.

The temperature is usually a difficult problem the first two weeks in October, owing to the warm weather that we get at this period, for two or three days at a time the outside day and night temperature being above that desired for the inside. To overcome this a light shading on the glass is a great help. It will keep the house cool and prevent the petals burning. The night temperature can be regulated to a great extent by ventilating, leaving a little air on. Along about November 1 the temperature can be reduced to from 60° to 62° and from then on from 58° to 60°.

These temperatures will be found to suit the most of the commercial varieties of forcing roses in the tea and the hybrid tea classes with the exception of perhaps My Maryland, which we have found requires from 2° to 4° more heat throughout the season than the Killarneys, Richmond or American Beauty and others of more recent date of introduction. Of the 1912 introduction we have yet to get considerable more experience before we can state anything definitely except that they show much promise. This is true of Lady Hillingdon, double white Killarney (Budlong strain), Killarney Queen, and Sunburst. E.

with Gloria (pink) a few days later, closely followed by Pacific Supreme (pink). This is not in accordance with the usual order of maturity of other seasons with these varieties. Polly Rose generally is the first to be ready. Last season we cut this variety October 4, Donatello October 9, and Chrysolora October 12. The way the varieties Donatello and Chrysolora have but do not carry it to such an extreme as to cause a heavy dew to settle on the blooms. A little steam running through with the ventilators open a few inches will help to gauge the temperature properly in the houses. The aim should be to hold the inside temperature around 50 degrees. Sometimes it will be necessary to increase this a little if the buds on some of the exhibition varieties are not opening properly, and a few degrees less will hold a batch of blooms that are coming along too fast; but under either of the conditions the aim should be, as before stated, for a dry, cool atmosphere. C. W. JOHNSON.

Early Selected Buds.

Buds selected in July and early August, either for the production of early blooms or to secure double flowers on some of the exhibition sorts, are more apt to go wrong by turning black and blasting than the later ones. It is often difficult to give the exact cause, but such conditions as becoming dry at the roots, excessive heat, and too generous application of food are all detrimental and should be guarded against when the buds have just been selected, especially so if they are very small at the time. If the plants suffer for want of water many of the blooms will have short petals, while overfeeding gives many tight buds which produce contorted petals that do not expand or elongate freely.

Blasted buds are seldom if ever apparent on bush plants where many shoots are permitted to develop buds.

When restricted to one bud the whole energy is directed to this part, then being constructed, and any maltreatment at this time is most violent in its effect. We know from experience that the concentration of food causes the petals to burn on some kinds during hot spells and possibly the same action takes place in the early stages of bud development, when such unfavorable conditions exist. We all know buds swell more quickly when the weather is cool, and for this reason all possible ventilation and frequent spraying to lower the temperature should be resorted to after the buds have been selected. Many of the blooms reach the market in a semi-developed state, and while these are undersized and are soft each grower must decide the best course to follow. It is often permissible to cut early when other stock is scarce, but the keeping qualities are greatly impaired, as the petals will ripen, becoming firm, if allowed to remain until the center is developed.

We have never been able to see any advantage in going to the extreme in this matter. It is not uncommon to see blooms offered that still need two weeks to bring them to perfection and we doubt if the returns for such quality is greatly in excess of what they would bring when properly finished. We find some satisfaction in the fact that most all the early kinds seen upon the market October 1 originated at Adrian, Mich. We refer to such as Golden Glow, Smith's Advance, October Frost, Unaka, Pacific Supreme and Monrovia, and, while they are early when properly grown under glass, they are of little value for September flowering out of doors and probably this is due to the dry air usually through August and September. They are not raised, nor have we ever recommended them for this purpose. There are a few kinds in favorable seasons which will give quantities of small flowers from August to October outside but most of these are of French or English origin, where the climate is better adapted to this class. ELMER D. SMITH.

Montana Florists and Nurserymen.

A very important meeting of the Florists' and Nurserymen's Association of Montana was held during the past week at the State Nursery Co.'s office at Helena. There was a large and representative gathering of the members from different parts of the state, and various subjects of interest to the organization were thoroughly and intelligently discussed. The following officers were unanimously re-elected: T. E. Mills, president; D. J. Tighe, vice-president; E. A. Calmettes, secretary and treasurer. Committees were appointed to promote the welfare and advancement of the organization during the ensuing year.

General dissatisfaction was expressed at the very inadequate accommodation provided by the state fair commission for housing and exhibiting horticultural products, and as these products combine one of the principal industries of the state, giving employment to thousands of workmen, who by their intelligent and scientific methods of cultivation are placing Montana in the ranks of the great fruit producing states of the country, it was the consensus of opinion that better accommodations should be provided. After thoroughly discussing the matter the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, that it is the sense of this association that the facilities for the exhibition of horticultural products at the state fair are totally inadequate and are a disgrace to the great state of Montana, and that many exhibitors are discouraged from making displays of tender products by the danger of losing them, and,

"Resolved, that as the horticultural industry is increasing from year to year, and as the displays of horticultural products attract thousands of visitors to the fair, therefore, be it

"Resolved, that it is the sense of this association that the thirteenth legislative assembly be petitioned to appropriate money to build a horticultural hall for the display of the horticultural products of Montana in a manner befitting the importance of this great industry in the state."

It is a fact that as the display had to be in a tent that was wholly inadequate to protect the exhibits from the inclemency of the weather and where even a light frost would destroy the exhibits, many of the growers refused to run the risk of losing their stock, and even those who exhibited this year expressed themselves as unwilling to run the risk another year.

Owing to the fact that the blight is affecting some orchards in irrigated districts, and wishing to prevent as much as possible its further spread, the following resolution was also adopted:

"Resolved, that the members of this association discourage the planting of Alexander and transcendent crab apples in irrigated districts owing to the liability of these varieties to blight."

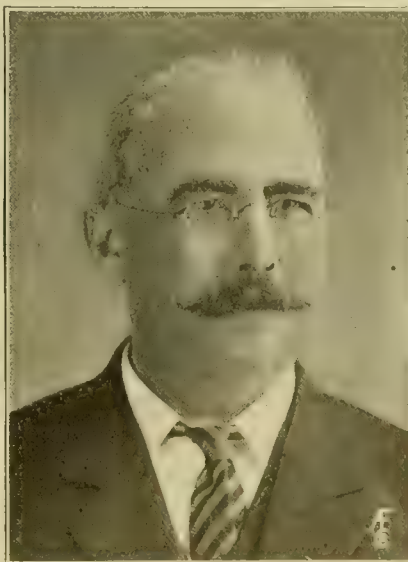

After the meeting the company was entertained at luncheon by T. E. Mills of the State Nursery Co.

Dahlia Show at Vincent Farm.

While the annual dahlia shows of the past five years held by R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., at White Marsh, Md., have been very creditable the one just closed was the most elaborate ever attempted by this firm. The inside exhibition covered a floor space 40 x 100 feet, requiring upwards of 50,000 flowers, along each side, and so arranged as to completely conceal the wall. There was a continuous bank of dahlias 90 feet long and 6 feet high, set up in 10-quart galvanized buckets, which were entirely hid by oak foliage.

Thirty different varieties were staged, viz.: Cuban Giant, Queen Wilhelmina, Lyndhurst, Princess Victoria Louise, Chas. Lanier, Mrs. C. W. Bassett, Black Beauty, Perle de Lyon, Jeanne Charmet, Bonton, Mrs. Geo. Stevenson, Sylvia, Amos Perry, Susan, Souv. de Mme. Moreau, Mad. Lumier, Arabella, Kreimhilde, Fire Rain, Mrs. Hartong, Mrs. J. G. Cassatt, Flora, Mrs. Chas. L. Seybold, Baron Schroeder, C. W. Bruton, Mad. Van den Dael, Wm. Agnew, Lucy Fawcett, A. D. Livoni.

On the opposite side of the center an effort at design work was attempted. A slanting staging was built. This was covered with flats filled with moss, making a solid bank sixty-four feet long and six feet high. Beginning at one end a twelve foot space was covered with Delice as a ground, in which was a cornucopia of Golden West, followed by a photograph of four of the Presidential candidates, each in a frame of dahlias 5 x 6 feet. President Taft was surrounded by Souv. de Gustave Duzon, Wilson by Cuban Giant, Roosevelt by Mrs. Roosevelt, Chafin by Grand Duke Alexis. These were followed by a block the same size of pom-pom dahlias, in which were circular beds each four feet in diameter, featuring special kinds. A twelve by six foot design contained a life size bust photograph of the senior member of the firm.

Boehm Wedding Anniversary.

The members of the Tri-City Florists' Club met at Central Park, Davenport, Ia., and marched in a body to the home of Park Superintendent and Mrs. C. O. E. Boehm, Sunday evening, September 29. The occasion was the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Boehm, who were quietly celebrating the event and were unaware of their friends' intentions until they arrived at the Boehm home. Mr. Boehm was greatly surprised to be greeted by so large a crowd when he opened the door, but quickly recovered and soon had his guests at their ease.

As a token of the esteem in which they are held the park superintendent and his amiable wife were presented with a solid silver tray appropriately engraved. Mr. Boehm thanked the donors on behalf of his wife and himself when he had sufficiently recovered from the emotion caused by this unexpected evidence of his fellow craftsmen's regard. A hot supper and a fine social time came later, and the visitors and their hosts made merry until early morning. It was one of those affairs which make the average florist forget the coal man for an evening at least.

Stiles-Jervey Wedding.

George Leslie Stiles, manager of the Stiles Co., and Mrs. Eugene P. Jervey were married on Monday, September 30, at the home of the bride's sister. The bride is a daughter of Mayor Grant and owing to the recent death of her mother the wedding was a quiet one. Mr. Stiles has lived in Oklahoma since the early days, coming here when quite young. His father was Captain Daniel F. Stiles of the United States army, stationed in Oklahoma at the time of the opening, in command of the troops sent by the government to keep law and order. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Stiles left for Chicago, where they will spend their honeymoon. Upon their return to Oklahoma City they will reside at 610 West Seventeenth street.

Illinois State Fair Awards.

The exhibits of the flower firms at the Illinois state fair, October 4-12, were of great variety and the exhibition was a success in every way. Examination for Rhodes Scholarship.

President Edmund J. James of the University of Illinois, chairman of the Rhodes Scholarship Committee of Illinois, announces that a qualifying examination for all candidates for the Oxford Rhodes scholarship will be held Tuesday, October 15, and Wednesday, October 16, 1912, in the office of President A. W. Harris at the Northwestern University building, corner of Lake and Dearborn streets, Chicago. This examination corresponds to the entrance examinations required by many American colleges. From those candidates who pass this examination a scholar will be selected for Illinois, who will begin work at Oxford in October, 1913. Papers will be set in this examination in Latin, Greek and Mathematics, and only those candidates who pass in at least Latin and Mathematics will be eligible for a scholarship.

A Rhodes scholar is appointed for a period of three years and receives the sum of fifteen hundred dollars each year. A Rhodes scholarship at Oxford is therefore a prize of greater money value than any scholarship or fellowship at any American university. The candidate for a Rhodes scholarship must be an unmarried male citizen of the United States with at least five years' domicile; must by the first of October, 1913, have passed his nineteenth but not his twenty-fifth birthday; and must have completed at least his sophomore year at some recognized degree-granting university or college. In accordance with the wishes of Cecil Rhodes, the committee of selection, in selecting a student for appointment to a scholarship, takes into consideration, (1) his literary and scholastic attainments; (2) his fondness for and success in manly outdoor sports, such as football and the like; (3) his qualities of manhood—truth, courage, devotion to duty, sympathy for and protection of the weak, kindness, unselfishness and fellowship; and (4) his exhibition during school days of moral force of character and instincts to lead and to take an interest in his schoolmates. Candidates are expected to send written application at once to President Edmund J. James, Urbana, Illinois. All candidates will register in person between eight and ten p. m. Monday, October 14, at the place of examination. The examination will begin at ten a. m., Tuesday, October 15.

Shipments should be made to arrive by 2 p. m. on examination days to receive attention from the committees. Must be prepaid to destination and an entry fee of $2 should be forwarded to the secretary not later than Tuesday of the week they are to be examined, or it may accompany the blooms.

Seedlings and sports are both eligible to be shown before these committees, provided the raiser has given them two years' trial to determine their true character. Special attention is called to the rule that sports to receive a certificate must pass at least three of the five committees.

The committees will be in session to examine such exhibits as may be submitted on each Saturday during October and November, the dates of which will be October 12, 19, 26 and November 2, 9, 16, 23, 30.

FLOWERS IMPROVED.

There is an improvement in all lines of flowers. Roses are decidedly better, especially Richmond. The hot weather of the past few days has brought in the crops quicker but the market seems to be able to handle them and at fair prices. Polly Rose and Pacific chrysanthemums have made their appearance. They are somewhat earlier than usual. Carnations are improving.

NOTES.

Coal of all kinds has advanced in price. In one outside town the price is $10 per ton for hard coal.

There are some who would like a ruling as to what constitutes a farmer. If he grows asters in the summer is he a florist? If he grows violets in the winter is he a farmer? If the florist grows vegetables on his land and keeps a horse and cow, is he in the farmer class? The new liability (Massachusetts) law exempts the farmer, and a good many florists would like to know what a farmer is.

We noticed some Sunburst roses in a florist's window. By the looks of them C. H. Totty will have to come to Boston and give a few points on how to do it. Sunbursts exhibited by him at the Massachusetts Spring Show, with the exception of weak necks, were fine.

A rosarian remarked to me the other day that we will soon be in the carnation class. He meant that there were so many new varieties coming out that it was hard to know what to stock up with.

It might be a good thing to know what the fashion in colors was to be a year ahead.

Welch Bros. have set the pace again. They have sold their two horses and wagons and installed an up-to-date delivery wagon, built to stand the wear and tear of Boston streets. Figuring the cost and maintenance of the horses and the limited radius covered by them, the auto has poor Dobbin beaten.

Wax Bros. had a very nice show of named dahlias in their window which attracted considerable attention.

MAC.

Washington.

Geo. D. Cooke, Z. D. Blackstone and W. F. Gude were appointed members of the publicity committee upon the recommendation of the New York Florists' Club. One of the members will be designated to represent the club at the meeting of the general committee.

At the last meeting of the Washington Florists' Club a handsome engraved set of resolutions on the death of William Robertson Smith was received from the Baltimore Florists' Club.

O. A. C. Oehmler, late with Gude Bros. Co., announces the opening of his new store at 1329 G street N. W.

David Bisset, Garrett Park, Md., is sending in some very good single violets for this time of the year.

L. Grainer & Bros. have some of the finest cosmos seen this year and report a ready sale for all.

The club bowling team has entered the District League, which is one of the fastest here.

Wm. McKissick and Geo. H. Cooke are up the river enjoying a few days' fishing.

LOCAL TRADE IMPROVING.

City trade was very good the past week and the out-of-town demand for stock was also very brisk. Stock is none too plentiful and orchids are about the only flowers that one may call plentiful. Cattleyas, oncidiums, dendrobiums, vandas and odontoglossums furnish a great variety, but the market seems to be a little firmer than it was last week and prices are likely to advance. Gardenias are very scarce and gladioli are about over. Violets are improving rapidly and some very good flowers are offered. The outside stock is rapidly getting past, daisies and tritomas being the principal flowers of this class now on sale. American Beauty roses are arriving in fine shape and the supply is about equal to the demand. Killarneys are more plentiful and the same can also be said of White Killarney, but the latter are still very scarce. Brides move quickly and Richmonds are having a better call than last week. Mrs. Aaron Ward and Sunburst are not so plentiful and Prince de Bulgarie is in fine shape. The receipts of chrysanthemums are large, but the demand is so good that the market is cleaned up at an early hour. Carnations have had a large call and prices hold firm. Some fine boxwood is now obtainable and smilax of good quality is seen. All the wholesale men report collections as poor and do not understand why this is, for it is the general opinion that the retail florists have had a good year.

NOTES.

N. J. Wiator says that Wiator Bros.' fall business is running away ahead of last year and that the prospects are very bright for it continuing so. His firm is now cutting a large supply of carnations and roses, particularly choice American Beauties. Mr. Wiator will celebrate his fortieth birthday on October 24.

The Cook County Florists' Association will hold a supper at the Tavern, West Washington street, on October 10, and all members of the trade are cordially invited to attend. Tickets are $1 a plate.

The Woodlawn Floral Shop on East Sixty-third street is featuring a series of interesting window displays and the rustic scene this week is supposed to represent the Sullivan Bros.' home down state.

Miss L. Tonner, formerly with the A. L. Randall Co., and her mother will leave soon for Georgia and Florida on business connected with her pecan grove in the latter state.

Fred Lautenschlager says that Kroeschell Bros. Co. is having an unusually busy October and that telegraph orders for boilers are receiving prompt attention.

The United Fertilizer Co. has moved its factory and warehouses to Morton Grove, where August Poehlmann, president of the company, will assume charge.

"Sprinkleproof Sam," representing Wertheimer Brothers, New York, arrived this week and as usual brought another shower with him.

The next meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club will be held at the Union Restaurant, West Randolph street, October 10.

Adam Zender attended the Vanderbilt cup races at Milwaukee last week and reports having had a most enjoyable time.

The Des Plaines Floral Co. is growing violets this year in addition to carnations, chrysanthemums and greens.

The J. A. Budlong store force, consisting of Manager Schupp, Wm. Homberg, Fred Price and Bert Phillips, rolled for honors at Bensinger's West Randolph street bowling alleys last Friday, October 4. The young men had a good time and some very interesting games were played and high scores made. The next Budlong night at Bensinger's alleys will be Friday, October 11.

Chas. L. Washburn says that the Fehr Construction Co. of this city has finished the work on Bassett & Washburn's concrete chimney at their new range at Gregg's station. The chimney has a double wall and is 142 feet high. The last house is now nearly completed and 102,000 carnation plants have already been planted in their new range.

H. Van Gelder was confined the past week with a light touch of typhoid fever and was also operated upon and an abscess removed from his throat. He was down to the Percy Jones establishment on Monday and when he weighed himself he found that he had lost 25 pounds in the short period that he had been sick.

August Jurgens left on October 6 for Calumet, Mich., to look after the planting of the peony plants on the new Jurgens-Pieser farm in the copper country. E. E. Pieser says that he and Mr. Jurgens will also grow lilacs up there as an experiment and that an order for 2,500 has already been placed.

The S. Wilks Manufacturing Co. is having a very busy season and the proprietors say that the demand for greenhouse boilers has shown a wonderful increase during the past month. This firm always carries a large number of boilers in stock so that it can fill all orders promptly on short notice.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association had its first shipment of home-grown violets on October 5 and its first sweet peas two days later. J. F. Kidwell says that this firm has sold some of its best carnations for as high as 4 cents and that the buyer was glad to get them at this figure.

The J. B. Deamud Co.'s store was repainted this week and now presents a most inviting appearance. A large shipment of Mrs. Francis King and Augusta gladioli arrived at this establishment October 8 and were very good considering the lateness of the season.

John Sinner is still in charge at the Sinner Bros. greenhouses. When seen at the store this week he said that the crops are looking fine and promise large cuts. Miss M. C. Gunterberg is managing the East Randolph street store during his absence.

Erne & Klingel are enjoying a good trade and are making good in the wholesale business. Several new carnation growers have been recently added to their list and they are now showing a full line of miscellaneous stock.

Tim Matchen says that Richmond roses are now moving better at Peter Reinberg's store, and that many of his firm's customers are using them in place of short and medium-stemmed American Beauties.

A. L. Vaughan says that Sunday, October 6, was a big day at the A. L. Vaughan & Co.'s store. Both the local and shipping trade were exceptionally brisk. Boxwood is having a good call at this place.

Miss Olga Tonner who is now conducting the H. V. Tonner store, will change the firm's name to her own in the very near future.

Henry Wittbold had a large job at the stock yards this week when he decorated the pavilion for the street railway convention.

George Manos, the Union Depot Florist, is again on duty after a long vacation in Michigan and some of the eastern states.

BUSINESS ON INCREASE.

An increase in the cut flower business is noticeable in the last few days, due probably to the enormous crowd of people attending the state fair, the irrigation congress and the Mormon conference. The only cut flowers equal to the demand is roses. Enough carnations cannot be secured at present. Great quantities of chrysanthemums are shipped in from California. They are of a good quality and sell well. The weather is ideal and all stock is in fine condition.

NOTES.

O. Lingreen of Bountiful has nearly completed his new addition and his prospects are good for the coming season.

A number of the leading florists of Utah met at Farmington, October 2, and organized a state publicity society.

The Miller Floral Co. has one of the finest stocks of roses ever seen in the state.

WARM WEATHER INCREASES SUPPLY.

The warm weather last week caused a large increase in the supply of every kind of stock that came into the market. As the week neared the close the market eased up more and more every day. There is so far no glut of any flower but there is enough to easily go around. On Sunday the thermometer reached 80°. On Monday the market conditions were very different from the Monday previous. Then everything cleaned up quickly and more might easily have been used. This week, however, the opening day showed as large a demand as seven days previous but a very large supply of stock. As a result at the close of business in the evening there was considerable good stock left in the ice boxes. All varieties of roses are in good supply and of good quality. The cut of Richmond and White Killarney is especially heavy. The supply of American Beauties is again adequate. There is a good call for valley this week for weddings. Along with this is also a good call for the various accessories in the decorative line and also for orchids. Carnations are selling nicely and clean up well each day. Lilies are in better supply than they were a fortnight ago and are adequate for all requests. Cosmos and dahlias are coming in very strong.

NOTES.

The wedding of Miss Florence Windram and Oliver Hitsch was celebrated last week. Upon the return from their honeymoon Mr. Hitsch will take charge of the Lake Shore Ferneries at Leesburg, Florida.

J. A. Peterson spent several days in Louisville, Ky., last week calling on his trade. Mr. Peterson also had as his guest H. A. Barnard at his home in Westwood.

C. E. Critchell has increased his force by the addition of two young men. Mr. Critchell is now getting in new boxwood.

Ed. Schumann and Nick Weber on a recent fishing trip to Bantam, Ohio, took 43 pounds of bass out of the water.

Chas. Gurney, of Peter Weiland's, is again back at work. His father had improved greatly by the end of last week.

G. Brunner's Sons have two large wedding decorations.

DEMAND VERY GOOD.

The demand is keeping up with the supply and in some cases it exceeds, as the outdoor stock is nearly done. Gladioli are getting scarce and shipments are irregular. Dahlias are not over plentiful. Carnations are off crop and orders are cut all around. White carnations and white roses are far short of the demand. Violets are coming in and will soon be a factor. Orchids are plentiful and the demand good. White and yellow chrysanthemums are arriving in increased quantities but clean up daily. Valley is still scarce. Easter lilies are away short of the demand. Greens of all kinds are plentiful. Aaron Ward roses are in good demand and the quality is exceptionally fine. A few Lady Hillingdons are on the market. This flower seems to meet with general approval.

NOTES.

Miss Kathleen O'Connor, who has her retail establishment at 2650 Superior avenue, will complete her first year in business the latter part of this month. She has done remarkably well and now has a good steady trade. She is thinking seriously of opening another store in the near future, which shows she has confidence and ambition, the two main requisites for a successful business man or woman.

The Smith & Fettes Co. is having a good run of funeral work in which orchids by the hundreds are being used. Their show window of orchids and chrysanthemums draw immense crowds.

The Jones-Russell Co. had a church decoration for Saturday that required more than 500 chrysanthemums besides quantities of other flowers.

Gust H. Taepke and R. M. Rahaley of the Michigan Cut Flower Co., both of Detroit, were in Cleveland for a few days last week.

Ogden Gaul, formerly with the Cleveland Cut Flower Co., is now connected with A. M. Albrecht.

Knoble Bros. have been holding a fern sale the past week with good success.

The Cleveland Florists' Exchange has its new catalogue ready for mailing.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS HURT ROSE SALES.

The increased supply of chrysanthemums has somewhat decreased the prices on roses. Carnations are not by any means plentiful and prices on these are firm. Long-stem American Beauty roses are getting more plentiful. Violets are expected in another week. The Veiled Prophet ball on Tuesday, October 8, used up a few flowers. It is expected that by next week the season will have fairly opened up.

NOTES.

Kalisch & Bros. last week made a floral wreath with over 100 orchids and lily of the valley. They have a very handsome new Buffalo machine.

BUSINESS ON THE MEND.

Business is on the mend and the past week was fairly good for this time of year. A light frost has nipped and spoiled most of the outdoor flowers, and in consequence business is now expected to improve right along.
Cool nights are improving carnations and other indoor flowers. Roses are fine for this time of year. Some good chrysanthemums are in and improve the appearance of the downtown stores greatly.

Bulb planting is taking a good bit of time at present, as is also repair work on the roofs; taking cuttings is also keeping everybody on the jump.

OCTOBER BRINGS INCREASED TRADE.

There has been a noted increase in the business since the advent of October. Much of this is due to the florists adding to their stock in the hope of larger sales and also to more elaborate window and store decorations. There have also been quite a number of weddings in which the decorations called for quality stock, the chrysanthemum being in demand for this work. The supply has been ample for all demands. Not a flower on the list could be called scarce, but nothing piled up to a dangerous extent. Dahlias, which have held the center of the stage for the past three weeks, are waning, a few cool days last week cutting down the supply considerably. The first call of Jack Frost is about due and many greenhouse growers are hoping that nothing will hinder his early appearance. The quality of the rose stock is steadily improving, greater length of stem, clearer foliage and more substance and color to the flowers of all varieties being quite noticeable. Among the newer sorts Mrs. Taft finds many admirers, its pretty shade of pink being a relief from the ever bright Killarney. Beauties are stiffening considerably in price, being a dollar a dozen higher for the first grade than they were a week ago. Carnations are meeting with better sale since the departure of the aster. Easter lilies are more plentiful. Gardenias are ahead of the demand, while valley finds a ready sale. The chrysanthemums are offered in quantity and for the next two months will dominate the market. Polly Rose, Glory of the Pacific, October Frost and Monrovia are the latest introductions. Prices are considered very fair

WHOLESALE TRADE BETTER.

General conditions were better in the wholesale market the past week. The supply has shortened up and the demand has been better. Top grades of all the varieties of roses have cleared out nicely. Some top grade "Sunburst" have touched the twenty-cent mark, and there has been a good demand for American Beauties, Bulgarie, Killarney and Mrs. Aaron Ward. White roses are still in short supply and the prices on these are somewhat better. Carnations are increasing in quantity daily and the quality is also improving. The best of these meet with ready sale. Orchids are not moving satisfactorily; the supply far exceeds the demand and when they are purchased in large quantities it is at a much reduced figure. Chrysanthemums, which are now in heavy supply, will soon affect prices on everything all along the line. As noted, last week's prices continue to be much less than they were a year ago. Lilies are more plentiful and while they are sold out daily the prices obtained are somewhat lower than a week ago. Lily of the valley is doing better, as are gardenias. There is a regular supply of violets arriving but as yet there is no active demand for them. There is the usual supply of tritomas, gladioli, hydrangeas, dahlias and asters, and there is more call for good asparagus plumosus.

Monday Noon, October 7.—Weather warm. Stock of all kinds is more plentiful. The quality is very good and there is a very active demand. Shipments of chrysanthemums are much heavier. This has been the busiest day of the season thus far. All the wholesalers are very much encouraged.

NOTES.

Charles Millang has found his side line of selling automobiles a very profitable one, the latest being a Maxwell car to John Meisein, the well-known grower of lilies, and a 1912 model E. M. F. car to "Tony" Sakeles of Twenty-fifth street. Tony is known as the colonial florist and handles more flowers than anyone else in Harlem. His purchases are now so heavy that it has become necessary to buy an automobile delivery car to transport them to his different stores.

Arthur T. Boddington, Harry A. Bunyard, Harry Turner, Charles H. Totty, John Young, James Duckham and wife and Mrs. A. Herrington composed the party that gave William Duckham and wife a great "send off" when they sailed for Europe Saturday on the Carmania.

C. C. Trepel, who has the flower departments at Loeser's, Bloomingdale's and Gimbel Bros., has just returned from an extensive trip among the plant growers. His orders in many places were placed for carload lots.

William Kessler, 113 West Twenty-eighth street, now has his conservatories well stocked up with palms and flowering plants and is handling some especially fine ferns which meet with a quick sale.

Arthur Cockcroft is sending in to Charles Millang a fine lot of Smith's Advance, October Frost and Monrovia chrysanthemums, also a good supply of white and pink Enchantress carnations.

P. J. Smith is receiving from 2,000 to 2,500 lilies daily of the best quality, and even with this large supply at times has not had enough to fill all of his orders.

Henshaw & Fenrich are receiving daily shipments of the Totty brand of chrysanthemums, including all early novelties grown at that establishment.

The father of Robert Jackson, employed by P. J. Smith, died on Sunday rather suddenly and the funeral was held on Thursday.

MILADY

Is Coming Out!

We shall disseminate in March the new red forcing Rose "MILADY." Look for it at the fall shows! We believe this variety means commercial, profitable red roses. It has color, size, substance fragrance and productiveness.

We invite you to visit our place and see it growing.

A. N. PIERSON, Inc., CROMWELL, CONN.

Traendly & Schenck will have a display of their new carnation "Salmon Queen" at the next meeting of the Florists' Club Monday night.

John P. Cleary is well satisfied with the sales of plants at the salesroom of the Plant & Flower Auction Co. on Twenty-eighth street.

A. E. Asmus of West Hoboken, N. J., is a candidate for mayor of that city on the democratic ticket.

Wm. A. Kessler is handling in addition to other plants a fine lot of chrysanthemums in pots.

"Caldy" Moltz has been engaged as the buyer for the H. M. Robinson Co.'s New York store.

Paul Meconi is receiving a grand lot of cattleyas, gardenias and lily of the valley.

Rochester, N. Y.

WEATHER CONDITIONS CHECK TRADE.

Cold nights and mornings, followed by either rain or a very warm day, have not at all improved business this week. Trade is very quiet and is much below the average. The wholesale houses are full up with all kinds of flowers. Violets have come again. Shipments of large yellow and white chrysanthemums arrive daily and are quickly sold. Easter lilies are also coming in good condition and are becoming very plentiful. Roses are in better shape now and sell well, especially the Ward and Mrs. Taft varieties. Lilies of the valley are somewhat scarce. Carnations are becoming more plentiful, but there are not enough yet to meet the demand. The few slight frosts have not been hard enough to hurt the asters nor gladioli. Short stemmed roses, heliotrope and asparagus arranged in baskets to sell at a dollar are popular, owing to the scarcity of blossoming plants.

NOTES.

Felix Alberts, manager and designer for Henry P. Neun, was very successful at the Syracuse Fair which was held recently. Out of nine entries he secured 8 first prizes and one third. His entries included among other things, two standing crosses, one of mixed flowers and the other of ivy leaves, with a spray of roses and Easter lilies at the base.

Arthur Zirkman, representing M. Rice & Co., called on the florists the early part of this week. He says his firm has been working nights to catch up with the heavy pressure of orders.

Edwin C. Armbrust, formerly with J. B. Kellar's Sons, has started in business as a florist at Northampton.

Mass. His Rochester friends wish him the best of success.

A meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association was held on October 4. It was agreed to hold the Flower Show at Convention Hall, November 5-9.

Miss Abbie Yahn and John Volmer of Buena Place were married last Tuesday. Mr. Volmer is in the employ of J. B. Kellar's Sons.

George T. Boucher reports business as very good just now. He has had a number of wedding orders recently.

George Crossman is away on a 10-day trip, visiting Boston, New York and Philadelphia.

H. E. Wilson had numerous pieces for a large funeral last week.

Visitors for the week include Robert Greenlaw of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Morris Cohen of Wertheimer Bros., New York; Snyder of the Edwards Folding Box Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Wm. Baum, Lake Ribbon House, Philadelphia, Pa.; C. G. Ford, with A. Hermann, New York.

H. J. H.

Dennison's New York Store.

That all the world, surging up and down Fifth avenue, New York, may know who makes the attractive tags that people find on their boxes of flowers, potted plants and nearly every other article they receive, the Dennison Manufacturing Co. has rented a large store and basement at the corner of Fifth avenue and Twenty-sixth street, facing Madison Square, and will move their Twenty-seventh street establishment there about the middle of November. A glass door and large window occupy nearly the whole Fifth avenue side, while another entrance and five good-sized windows are on Twenty-sixth street, affording a most elaborate opportunity for display. The interior will be as attractive as the exterior. The very dark oak used in all Dennison stores will be employed for the woodwork, glass cases will hold extensive assortments of all styles of the multiple Dennison manufactures, while an art department in the rear will show what can be accomplished in the crepe paper art.

PASADENA, CALIF.—A floral basket contest for pupils of the public schools will be one of the features of the fall flower show of the Pasadena Horticultural Society October 24.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—The contract for the construction of the greenhouses for the Panama Pacific Exposition has been awarded to Nell A. McLean of this city.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Philadelphia Notes.

Pennock Bros. new Cadillac delivery car is finished. It is a departure in auto cars. In appearance it is like a high class limousine. Save for the copper signs on the sides, not overly conspicuous, it would be taken for a fine family car. In color it is a deep violet with lavender trimmings. It has fore doors, side doors and doors in the rear, is electrically lighted and has all the other appointments of a first class car. The body, which is of aluminum, was made especially to the firm's order. This makes car No. 2 for the company.

The Leo Niessen Co. recently broke its record for the largest quantity of dahlias handled in any one day. This firm has been averaging about 30,000 a day, but on account of several large orders the number rose to sixty thousand. Not many houses have the facilities for handling such a quantity, but although there was lots of business for other flowers everything was put out on time. This firm's first Polly Rose chrysanthemums arrived on Monday.

The Wm. H. Maule Seed Co. has purchased property at Twenty-first and Arch streets. A concrete warehouse and store room, 60x100 feet and nine stories high, is being erected. This will be one of the finest buildings of the kind in the city. The present store stands in the way of the Pennsylvania railroad and they expect to have to sell and vacate by the time the new building is finished.

The dahlia show of the H. Michell Co., held in the rear store room last week, was a great success. There was a fine display of blooms artistically arranged. Prizes were offered for which there was considerable competition. The lectures and exhibitions given by the firm the past year have been greatly appreciated by the public.

M. Rice & Co., the supply and ribbon house, pride themselves on service and tell of a recent case in which a large rush order was received at 4:30 p. m. and at 5:30 p. m. the same day the goods were on the way to their destination.

Jacob Becker, who owns the building, opened the store recently occupied by William Crawford at Fifty-second and Market streets, Friday October 4. Percy Uttermul, recently with M. J. Callahan, has charge.

The H. A. Dreer Co. has just added a three-ton Packard car to its delivery service, making two of this size, and a new autocar of one and a half ton capacity. Things are certainly booming at Riverton.

White and pink Killarney, very good flowers for the season, from their greenhouses at Morton are seen daily at the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co.'s establishment.

Asters are about over, but Edward Reid had a large shipment of choice white ones on last Monday that went lively. Good Kaiserin roses are a leader here.

At Berger Brothers' market, Richmond, Killarney and Maryland roses were the features. Business opened up strong on Monday with prospects good.

Mrs. Olds opened her new store at Ardmore, Pa., last Saturday. It is up to date in all details and no doubt will give a great boost to the business.

Edward P. Meany and E. P. Tracey, proprietors of the Rosery, expect to celebrate the fifth anniversary of their business careers in a new store, 23 Steuben street, on November 1. The two have taken a lease of the premises, are having it fitted up with hot water heat, show windows of attractive design, and other features of an up to date establishment. They will sublet their present store at 76 Maiden Lane which they have conducted since the opening day in 1907. Messrs. Meany & Tracey are progressive young men and in their present location, which is on the direct course to the union station, cannot fail to increase their business.

Byron C. Holmes, Western avenue, has completed a greenhouse, 25 feet by 125 feet, which he has stocked with white and pink Enchantress and the standard Lawson. Mr. Holmes a few months ago opened a store at 327 Central avenue, where he is building up a good business in the growing western section of the city.

Whittle Brothers, 52 North Pearl street, have completed improvements to their new store, including a conservatory by Lord & Burnham, show windows trimmed in copper, a new ice box and a completely renovated interior.

John T. Trivison, 337 South Pearl street, is building a greenhouse, 20 feet by 28 feet, on the lot in the rear of the store for ferns and other stock.

R. D.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—L. W. Hill, son of "Jim" Hill, the railroad magnate, and himself a power in the railroad world, has notified the Minnesota Florists' Association that he will enter 100 different varieties of chrysanthemums in the flower festival to be held in November.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubs, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, and painted green. These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established, and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When in Philadelphia Be Sure to Look Us Up

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your convenience, both going and coming. Then you will see our Palms of all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place), and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to our Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition

LATE PEAS have been badly hit by frost.

WHITE ONION sets are keeping very poorly this season.

EARLY OHIO potatoes in the Red river district are down to 45 cents.

BEAN reports continue poor, the crops having suffered from frost and rain.

MME. PHILIPPE DE VILMORIN has been appointed Chevalier of the Merite Agricole for distinguished service in horticulture.

VISITED CHICAGO: Geo. C. Thompson, representing Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.; Arthur B. Clark, of the Everett B. McGill, of the McGill Seed Growers' Co., San Francisco, Calif.

Maule's Record of Progress.

A new eight-story reinforced concrete building, to be used as a warehouse, will be erected in the near future by William Henry Maule, well known seedsman, at Twenty-first and Arch streets, Philadelphia, Pa. Mr. Maule has had his offices for nearly 27 years at 1711 Filbert street. The ad-pires in July, 1913, however, and as the property has been purchased by the Pennsylvania Railroad, Mr. Maule is forced by this fact and his everpressing need for room to build new and bigger quarters of his own. He will retain his offices at the old place at 1711 Filbert street, as this property was not included in the railroad's purchase, and will use the new building for warehouse purposes only. The need for still more space had been growing rapidly lately and the action of the railroad probably merely hastened somewhat the erection of a building which is expected to prove amply large for years to come.

As is well known to the most of the seedsmen of the United States, Mr. Maule began business in a very small way about thirty-five years ago. His list of customers at that time was a short one and his catalogues were small and few in number. Now nearly a half-million of eager purchasers in all parts of the world scan his offerings, and the postage on the 400,000 178-page catalogues he issues will amount to $24,000 this year. Some idea of the enormous size of this exclusively mail-order seed business may be given perhaps by the statement that entries are made of every post office in the United States when a new set of books are opened and that 57 large ledgers are necessary for this purpose. The catalogue lists more than 2,500 different articles, and varieties and orders range from twenty-five cents to a thousand dollars in size. While planting is being done these orders come so thick and fast that a large force of girls, each an expert at the work, is required merely to open this mail.

Besides the headquarters in Philadelphia, Mr. Maule has two large farms, one at Newfield, N. J., and the other at Villa Nova, Pa., where valuable stocks are grown and where seeds obtained elsewhere are thoroughly tested. Reliability is striven for first of all here, and the fact that his seeds may be depended on has had more to do, perhaps, than any other one thing with Mr. Maule's success. Mr. Maule is today one of the country's largest seedsmen, and his enormous business has been built up by careful attention to details and a recognition of the fact that the customer who sends in an order, whether big or small, is entitled to just what the catalogue represents the seed to be.

Celery Blight.

This season has been the worst in our experience in regard to celery blight. This is probably caused by the constant but light showers ever since July 1. This everlasting rain, together with high temperature and sluggish air movement has been productive of blight and at the same time has rendered spraying difficult and often ineffective. Some seasons Golden Self-Blanching is the only kind affected, but this year all the green kinds are as well and that in spite of weekly sprayings with Bordeaux. As a check we allowed a part of our crop to go entirely unsprayed. These are away behind at this date, convincing us once more that although Bordeaux may not completely control celery blight under all conditions it will at least prevent a heavy loss. The next thing to spraying is liberal feeding. At the approach of cooler weather nitrate of soda should be freely used to induce strong growth to make up for the losses of foliage in hot weather. Celery that is affected by blight is hard to bleach, that is, the blight paves the way for rot and the bleaching had better be delayed for cool weather and the early market avoided. Early celery cannot be held in warm weather, hence any hoarding up must be judiciously done to avoid losses.

Is the New Variety of

TOMATO DAVY'S MILLIONAIRE

This new variety will take its place amongst the earliest sorts. The fruits are enormous, very fleshy, nearly free of seeds, almost smooth, of a deep scarlet color, and borne in clusters of three or four.

The giant size, earliness and the quality of the fruit will render this variety one of the very best introductions of the year.

American Apples in Germany.

American apples find high favor in Frankfurt, the best known being those grown in New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio, and embracing Baldwins, Greenings and Kings. Western apples do not seem to be so well known, although where introduced their reputation is very high. Wholesale dealers prefer to obtain their supplies of American apples from importers in Hamburg and Bremen. Where apples are not carefully packed for through shipment they can be re-sorted at port of arrival and repacked for shipment to inland points, insuring a minimum loss on account of spoiling.—Daily Consular and Trade Reports.

Fruit Growing in Australia.

Inasmuch as Australia grows fruit at a season of the year when practically no other country produces this commodity, it is but natural that this industry, to which the southern states of the commonwealth are so well adapted, should grow rapidly and the exports figure prominently in the country's trade relations with the principal markets of the world. Through the government's aid in securing better shipping facilities and cold-storage arrangements, fruit growing has made rapid progress in recent years, the area in this consular district alone having increased in the past eight years by

Two Important New Commercial Ferns

Cyrtomium Rochfordianum

(The Crested Holly Fern)

The most valuable Decorative Fern of recent introduction.

A most important addition to our list of Ferns. Its foliage is of a rich, deep, glossy green color, the pinnæ or leaflets besides being wavy or undulated are also deeply cut or toothed, giving the plant a graceful light appearance, which makes it valuable not only as a dish Fern but decorative work and for apartment use.

2¼-inch pots 75c per dozen, $5.00 per 100, $40.00 per 1000;
4-inch pots $2.00 per dozen, $15.00 per 100. Also a limited lot of flats of about 200 plants each, at $3.00 per flat.

Adiantum Farleyense Gloriosa

(The Glory Fern or Rum Von Mordrecht)

The Fern which will revolutionize the cut frond business.

For the grower of Ferns for cutting this new Maiden Hair will undoubtedly prove a most important addition; it closely resembles Adiantum Farleyense and will make a splendid substitute for that fancy variety, and it can be produced at much less cost, as it will thrive under conditions in which Adiantum Farleyense could not exist.

At our Riverview Nursery we have given it a very fair trial for this purpose during the past winter. A block of these plants were planted on a bench in a house devoted to the ordinary Boston Fern and received the ordinary treatment and temperature given to the Nephrolepis, and under this treatment they developed not only fronds of great beauty on longer, stiffer stems than Farleyense produces, but also many more fronds than would be developed by that variety in the same length of time under the most favorable condition.

Anyone who successfully grows the ordinary varieties of Adiantum, such as Cuneatum, Croweanum, and Hybridum, can grow it under precisely the same conditions given to these sorts.

We have a fine block of about 30,000 young plants, 2¼-inch pots, at $2.00 per dozen, $15.00 per 100, $140.00 per 1000.

Hammond's Thrip Juice No. 2

For the Destruction of Sucking Insects and Caterpillars, Slugs, Aphides, Red Spider and Mealy Bug.

In 1883, twenty-nine years ago, we made this preparation for the use of a grape grower, Mr. Floyd Quick, of Fishkill, N. Y.

The Thrip is one of the most bothersome of insect pests, because the moment the plant is touched, off goes the Thrip.

Thrip Juice No. 2 is diluted for general use thirty to forty times with water. The late Isaac Wood, Florist, of Fishkill, N. Y., used it for Mealy Bug and Red Spider. This article was purchased by a druggist in Jacksonville, Florida, the late Dr. James A. Farley, who was Secretary of the Board of Trade. He found it effective against the Orange Scale. Upon trial in Florida we changed the formula, making another grade, which is Thrip Juice No. 1, and is arsenicated. This was tried out in Lake County, Florida, twenty-five years ago, and has been in use there yearly ever since. This Thrip Juice No. 1, by the growers, is used with a very great dilution. It is exported to the West Indies.

No. 2 Thrip Juice has been in use for twenty-nine years. The past two years there has been a steadily increasing demand, as it is becoming better known. If any Florist wishes to test Thrip Juice No. 2, and will pay the expressage, we will send him a sample for trial, because we know there is "No Magic in Killing Bugs," and it is the general average of success that proves the practical lasting value of any article.

Answer to How Large a Range Hitchings' Boilers Will Heat.

THESE two Hitchings No. S-36-10 Steam Boilers, connected in battery, will supply 12,520 lineal feet of 1¼-in. pipe, which would heat a range of 37,560 square feet of glass to a temperature of 60 degrees at night with mercury outside at zero.

They can be more economically operated than one large boiler. In medium cold weather, when only half the radiation is required, you fire only one of the boilers.

For ranges larger than mentioned above, Tubular Boilers have a certain advantage.

For ranges of this size or less, Hitchings' Cast Iron Sectional Boilers have a distinct economy, both in the erection and operating costs.

To be sure you are surely right before you buy a boiler, first let's talk about the boiler you think you want, and then we will get right down to rock bottom facts and see whether it's a steel or cast iron boiler you really ought to have. Our sixty years' reputation in greenhouse heating is your guarantee that Hitchings' advice is surely, sure sound advice. Send for our representative at once and talk the situation over.

P. S.—We are now installing at the Peter Henderson Co., Jersey City, N. J., 2 No. S-36-10 Steam Boilers to heat 21 greenhouses, and one S-36-8 Steam Boiler to heat 12 greenhouses.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Roman Hyacinths.

The early Roman hyacinths should be well enough rooted to bring them into the houses. These early bulbs will require a little more heat than those that are forced later, when more time is given them to form good roots. A plan often adopted by growers of early bulbs is to place them under the benches on the heating pipes when first brought into the house. Where hot water circulation is in use the boxes can be placed directly on the pipes, but with steam pipes it will be necessary to place pieces of wood or other material on the pipes, at least two inches thick, to protect the roots from the intense heat radiated by the steam pipes, and the boxes carefully watched to see that they do not dry out at the bottom. Make weekly plantings of Roman hyacinths in order to keep up the supply of flowers. Place some of the bulbs in bulb pans—a few of these will prove very satisfactory for house decoration, and if not used for this purpose the flowers can be cut the same as from boxes. It entails but little more labor to grow them in pots and at times they are very useful as a pot plant.

Poinsettias.

The crucial period in the growth of poinsettias is now at hand, and if the plants are in good condition there should be no difficulty in bringing them through all right. Steady firing can now be depended upon to maintain the proper temperature. Until the bracts are well formed, keep an even temperature and while these are forming avoid all draughts as much as possible. If the house is kept uniform at 60° at night with a rise of 10 degrees during the day there will be but little trouble with the leaves dropping, but a fluctuating temperature will surely result in plants with bare stems. As soon as the bracts form tie the plants to stakes so as to support the flowers and have the plants erect. As many of the plants are used for home decoration a neat green painted stick adds to the attractiveness. The early struck plants and those that are grown in benches for cut bloom will be greatly benefited by watering with liquid manure. Do not make it too strong at first. Begin with a weak liquid once a week and increase the strength, but after the bracts are fully out discontinue the watering with liquid manure or the color may be affected. The small plants should be placed in pans at once, if not already done. They can be easily sized up now to make a fine appearance—a taller one in the center and shorter ones on the outside of the pan makes the best appearance.

Lilies.

The lily bulbs will soon be here and preparations should be made to handle them immediately upon their arrival. There is no time to waste in order to have this crop in the best of shape for Easter, especially with the bulbs that are imported from Japan. Whichever way the bulbs are to grow, whether in 4-inch or 6-inch pots, it is necessary to have pots enough on hand to pot them all up at once, and a pile of good, rich soil all ready, so that there will be no delay. The rapid potting of these bulbs by some growers is done as follows: The 6-inch pots are placed touching each other and then filled about half full of soil, the bulbs are then placed on the soil and the pot filled in nearly to the top and watered. This can be done in this manner very rapidly and there is but very little handling of either the pots or bulbs. After the bulbs are in the pots they should be buried outside until good, strong root growth has taken place, the success or failure of the crop will mainly depend on having the bulb make good roots early. A frame that can be covered during excessive wet weather is the best place for these plants until they are brought into the houses. If the weather becomes very cold and severe the frames should be covered with sash or the beds have straw or some other protection thrown over them. If kept cool the bulbs will make strong roots before the top starts to grow, yet the ground over them should not be allowed to freeze or damage will be done. The giganteums for Christmas should now be growing

Ready Reference Advs.,
Page 779

Help and Situations Wanted, Advertisements,

nicely and the buds should show about November 10. If they do not appear by that time a little extra heat will be necessary to have them in on time.

After Chrysanthemums.

The early chrysanthemums are now through flowering and the space that they have occupied should be made of use by a growing crop. The soil in which they have been grown should be removed. It is very seldom that a good crop of any flower can be grown in the soil that has produced chrysanthemums. While it looks to be all right and often has much manure in it that the chrysanthemums have not taken up, yet our experience has been that the soil will not grow a succeeding crop. It is better to throw it out in a pile where it can be subjected to the sweetening process of nature. The stock plants of the chrysanthemums can be selected and blocked up closely together and the surplus stock sold, and the space made ready for a following crop. Many growers frequently ask what can be grown to follow chrysanthemums. It depends greatly upon what the trade demands. Where the early frosts are not severe, the single violets are left in the field and planted in the beds, but in the northern section of the country the weather is often too severe, the plants being badly frozen and will not recover until mid-winter. Plant growers will require the space for the growing plants and the lilies where planted early can be moved into the benches. Sweet peas make a good crop in these beds for spring blooming. If the seed is planted in pots in October and then transplanted to the beds early they can be bloomed in March. There are a number of annuals that can be profitably grown, such as Bachelor's Buttons, and stocks, or early blooming herbaceous plants like Canterbury Bells, and Coreopsis lanceolata, which will give an attractive assortment of flowers in early spring.

Antirrhinums.

The antirrhinums for winter and spring blooming should be planted out in the bench at once if not already done. To have good long, large spikes the soil should be rich, fully as strong as that used for rose and carnation culture. Set the plants 12 inches apart each way and as soon as the long shoots begin to grow place a strong stake to each plant and keep the plant tied to it as fast as it grows. A night temperature of 50° is the best for the winter culture of this plant; if grown much cooler than this they will not bloom until early spring, and if warmer the spikes and flowers will be of inferior quality. While the white antirrhinum is the most in demand, for it cannot only be used as a decorative flower but also arranges beautifully in sprays or funeral work, yet the pink is also much in favor for both purposes; the yellow also is very popular as a cut flower and in decorations, but the reds and other colors should be grown in small quantities, for they are not popular with many of the customers. With the exception of keeping the plants tied erect they will not require much attention until they begin to bloom.

Horseshoe Corsage Bouquet.

To be used as a corsage the horseshoe must be made very small; use the tiniest of rosebuds and other accessories as required. This may be used to good advantage as a favor for a "hunt club" dinner. In connection herewith a centerpiece representing a hurdle or water jump may be effectively arranged. In the latter instance mirrors can be used where a real water arrangement could not be made for obvious reasons. H. E. K.

The Garden Forget-Me-Nots.

For the center of the table use a large fancy china basket or an ornamental vase, massing in it the forget-me-nots, arranging them in pyramid style with comparatively no green. Place this on a mat of forget-me-nots in which maidenhair ferns or asparagus can best be placed. Take two large white sea shells, fill with moss and arrange with forget-me-nots, but rather flatly. Allow a great deal of the shell to show and do not employ greens for this purpose. Around this entire centerpiece use a garland of maidenhair ferns, allowing a space between the shells and the garland in which to place the swans of china, which should also be arranged with forget-me-nots in a pretty loose effect. The swans should be so placed as to give a pond effect as much as possible. Placing them on a mirror will be most effective. A pale blue ribbon extended from each swan to the guest plate on which the name has been printed with silver is good. A tiny garland of forget-me-nots can be run along the side of the ribbon to give it a better floral effect.

This also offers a fish dinner suggestion by using dwarf palms banked in the center, finishing at the edge with a low bank of maidenhair fern and using a large leaf of the maidenhair for a flat effect on which to place two lobsters—one of the cooked variety and the other natural—in order to lend it color. These can be finished with opened oysters. Use red roses for boutonnieres and corsages. This can be still further offset by garlands of red roses strung from fixtures above the table, from which a large fish made of red roses can be suspended, using tiny electric lights around it. A. E. K.

The Green Table Decoration.

Just at this time a green table decoration is most appropriate made of the garden grasses. Stretch a mat of maidenhair ferns across the table. This must be light and daintily made. At either end place a tall green Venetian vase filled with the garden grasses—banking around the foot a ruche of maidenhair ferns in a full and graceful mass. As favors use cabbage leaf china dishes or those in the shape of a lettuce leaf, which can be secured in nearly all of the larger department stores, fill with green mint candies and tie with green ribbons. Tie rolls and napkin with green ribbons on which the name of the guest has been printed in silver. Use green glasses for the service.

Another suggestion along this line is the giant mignonette arranged in the center, using Japanese bowls in place of the tall green vases. Cluster pink asters around the base of the bowls or vases, using generously of asparagus vines. Finish table with sprays of mignonette where most effective, laying them flat on the table. Orchids arranged on a bed of maiden-hair ferns are always rich, and if the cattleyas are employed pink and lavender sweet peas will look pretty as a garland around the table or encircling the table at the center, using maiden-hair generously around the edge. Corsages made of the pale shades of lavender sweet peas, with an orchid in the center, made pyramid style, are excellent.

Corsage Bouquets.

The increased demand for corsages at the florist stores of prominence has been very marked during the last few years, and many of the larger stores now have on hand different bunches all made for immediate delivery, and the best designers are showing much artistic ability in putting up these beautiful arrangements for personal adornment. It was not so very long ago that party flowers were almost always bouquets which were carried in the hand, and if flowers were worn upon the gown there were but a few roses or other flowers loosely fastened on. The wearing of violets, however, which were, of course, made into bunches, was about the first arrangement for this purpose, and then to these were added the many supplies for ornamenting the bunches, such as cords and ribbons. To the violets were added the roses and orchids and then came the demand for corsages entirely of orchids, roses, sweet peas and other flowers, which were arranged with appropriate fittings by the most artistic designers in the business, and some very beautiful creations are now daily supplied to the customers of the best stores. It is no unusual thing, during the height of the social season, to see two or three of the best floral workers in the large stores during the late afternoon and early evening arranging corsages of the different flowers for the evening's wear.

At the recent exhibition of floral designing which was displayed at the University of Illinois by the students who had taken the course in floriculture and floral arrangement, corsages of different flowers were shown and they were greatly admired. While the larger number of these corsages are made of the choicest flowers, yet all the flowers that the florist has in his varied stock are used more or less in this class of work, excepting a very few, such as callas and like subjects, which are more fitted for other purposes. Orchids, roses, carnations, violets, sweet peas, gardenias, narcissus, lily of the valley, marguerites and all the smaller flowers are used at different times and for different occasions, and it has become one of the first necessities of the up-to-date designer to be able to arrange artistic corsages.

The White Ball Room Decoration.

In the center from the chandelier suspend white Liberty silk in the shape of a cross and on which white marguerites have been sewed, edging it with sweet peas, using asparagus vines in full bunches on each end looped up, and allowing long streamers of the asparagus vines to droop from the corners of the drape in which tiny showers of white sweet peas have been arranged. Arrange the ceiling in asparagus vines. In each corner place a large basket wheelbarrow and fill these with white hardy hydrangeas, using tall palms for the background. Tie a large white satin rosette on the other handle of each wheelbarrow. For walls, use large flat wallpockets filled with white hydrangeas and foliage. About three for a long wall would look best if the ballroom is moderate size. Connect these pockets with garlands of white daisies or marguerites, using profusely of the asparagus vines.

If a wedding decoration is to be made, make the bridal stand a dome shaped canopy of the white hydrangeas in pyramid style, using tall palms for a background and curtains of marguerites for either side, tying these back loosely with white satin ribbon. Arrange in front a priedieu of marguerites. If little flower girls are to be included make for them two huge pink satin shells tied with ribbons on either side so that two flower girls can handle them with comfort and arrange in them tiny bouquets of sweet peas, marguerites, and white roses. These are intended to be scattered. For the bridesmaids a pretty suggestion would be the new Japanese Panama shopping baskets. These are very dainty and will look beautiful if lined with white satin, arranging the outside with sweet peas. Use a white satin ribbon to loop over the arm. For the bride there should be a white orchid bouquet combined with white sweet peas or lily of the valley, or orange blossoms.

Hongkong Ginseng Market.

Hongkong ginseng dealers report improved conditions in their market over the discouraging situation presented early in the current year. Imports of the root from the United States have been in fair volume, but at the same time the comparatively large stocks on hand about the time of the Chinese New Year have been reduced, being placed at 10,666 pounds on August 1, as compared with 22,000 pounds the middle of February and 18,666 pounds at the same time last year. Prices on the whole have advanced slowly though not radically, the present average price for an average of all grades being about $8.11 gold per pound. Fluctuations during the past two months have chiefly been in the finer grades, running perhaps $1 gold per pound as a maximum rise.—Daily Consular and Trade Reports

GARLAND'S MOVABLE GREENHOUSES.

A. J. Stahelin's Range at Redford, Mich., After Moving, Showing Winter Crop of Carnations.

Garland's Movable Greenhouses.

A good idea of the advantages of the movable greenhouse might have been gained a week or two ago by a visit to the range of A. J. Stahelin, Redford, Mich., where the process of moving was taking place. The houses are the product of the Geo. M. Garland Co., Des Plaines, Ill., and are eight in number. Each house measures 173 feet in length and the four built in 1911 are 35 feet wide, while the four built previously are 35 feet and 11 inches wide. The size of the glass is 24x26 inches and the houses were moved into position last year without a break. The manufacturers thought at the time that this might have been due to the fact that the houses were newly glazed, but this year there was the same result and all eight structures were moved without breakage. It was found that the construction is so rigid that each house could be moved into position by five men pulling from every other gutter post.

The Stahelin range will afford shelter for 60,000 carnation plants this winter, the varieties grown being White Enchantress, May Day, Beacon, Winona, Sangamo, Mrs. Ward, Rose Pink Enchantress, Rainbow, Gloriosa and Benora. Mr. Stahelin claims that the movable style of construction has many advantages. He says the running gear and the erection of the movable portion cost less than benches and that they will last indefinitely and there will be, of course, no benches to rebuild. The carnations are planted in the spring in the place where they will remain all winter. This eliminates the work of transplanting in the fall. There is no changing of soil and Mr. Stahelin says that the soil which is turned over in autumn and exposed to the weather all winter is in better shape to receive a new lot of plants after replotting and manuring in the spring than soil hauled in from benches. The growth of the plant is not retarded by having its root system partially destroyed as in transplanting, and a heavier and earlier crop is thus assured. The plants may remain outdoors longer and are hardier. The flowers can be cut during the entire twelve months or until the frost kills the plants, whereas by the old method they can be cut for only about nine months in the year. Stem rot often caused by bruising during transplanting is lessened by this method.

The Stahelin houses are heated by 14 runs of 1½-inch pipe. The heating and watering systems are both carried overhead so that when the time comes to move the houses all that is necessary is to disconnect the main and return and also the water service pipe at one end of the houses and connect it on the other end, about half an hour's work. The side doors are carried down within four inches of the ground line, the space at the bottom being closed by banking with manure. The ends below the sill are hinged and raised to allow the houses to be moved over the carnation field. A very crude method was used in moving the houses this year, though the time required was but 10 hours. The Garland Co. expects to do such work in the future in about two hours with an improved rigging system.

The accompanying illustrations show the houses being moved over the carnation plants, the four of most recent construction leaving the plants which they sheltered last year. Mr. Stahelin has been cutting right along and has realized a nice profit from sales since last June, at which time other growers begin to discard plants and get ready to plant in new stock. The picture which shows the interior of the range gives a good idea of the movable system. The one illustrating the separate greenhouse in course of construction was taken at the farm of Geo. E. Browne of Greenfield, Mich., another grower who prefers the Garland construction. The illustration shows the ironwork up ready for the woodwork. The rail on which the house is moved is also shown.

Good Crops and Good Times.

Among the many prophets who have lately been predicting a return of business prosperity there is one whose voice speaks with special authority. We refer to the Agricultural Department at Washington, whose recent announcement that the crops throughout the United States promise to be of unusual abundance will do more to stimulate confidence in the business world than any official announcement that has emanated from Washington for many months past. Not that the Agricultural Department has made any definite prediction of a revival of business, for that does not come within its province; but it is so generally understood nowadays that thriving agriculture is the basis of general business prosperity, that the announcement of a "bumper" crop has come to be taken as equivalent to a prediction of a prosperous year.

The estimate of the probable crop for this year presents an imposing and encouraging array of figures. The wheat crop, which is estimated at over 700,000,000 bushels, should bring to the farmer over $600,000,000. The corn crop, which is estimated at nearly 3,000,000,000 bushels, has a farm value estimated at $1,350,000,000; while the value of the oats crop, which will reach the highest figure in the history of our country, or 1,290,000,000 bushels, is not far short of $400,000,000. Adding to this the value of the crop of rye and barley and the other multitudinous farm products, it is estimated that the value of the product of our farms at present prices will be over $7,000,000,000. Not only does this vast sum benefit the farmer by swelling his bank account or by enabling him to lift his burden of mortgage, but the moving and disposal of the crop will bring proportionate wealth in other directions; to the railroads for transportation, and to the steamship companies for carrying the surplus abroad; to the owners of the elevators, a vast industry in itself; to the owners of the huge mills that turn it into flour, and to the buyers and brokers who bring producer and consumer together.

Nor does the stimulus of plentiful crops end with the mere matter of their sale and distribution. The farmer himself becomes a large purchaser of agricultural machinery, and the general improvement of his farm by the construction of new buildings, the construction or renewal of fences, to say nothing of the purchase of automobiles and additional luxuries for his home, not only directly stimulates business in a wide variety of trades, but, indirectly, reacts strongly in stimulating that revival of credit and confidence which is essential to any lasting prosperity.—Scientific American.

THE ROSE.

New Roses to Date.

By E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind. Read before the Chicago Florists' Club October 10, 1912.

To prepare a paper as requested is a sharp turning of the current of thought that naturally runs chrysanthemum-ward at this particular season of the year, especially for one who has a kindly affection for the Queen of Autumn. Of course the rose has all seasons for her own and has no rival for supremacy at any time.

Your suggested topic has put me in a reminiscent mood and my mind has run back to my earlier days when Safrano, Isabella Sprunt and Niphotos were the three, and practically the only sorts that were at all amenable to forcing methods.

We all know how extensively the above varieties were used in the seventies. Then Bon Silene was added by Boston growers and it held its own in the market with the above named varieties for several years.

I well remember unpacking Catherine Mermet from a box of new roses received from France, and how this variety was taken up and forced by the Madison and other growers adjacent to New York city. Perle des Jardine shortly made its advent and has had a goodly share of popular favor even down to the last year or two. Souvenir d'un Ami, Macapucine and Elise Vardon were tested by a great number of growers but in small quantities. Mme. Cusin and its sport, Mrs. Pierpont Morgan, entered the arena and together with Mme. d'Watteville were classed as fancies. Then Catherine Mermet sported white and gave us the Bride, and a little later Bridesmaid came, another sport from Mermet, and these two took practical possession of a large portion of our forcing glass for a great number of years.

One interesting matter about the sporting of the Bride was its appearance almost simultaneously with two New Jersey firms, one at Maywood, the other at Madison. If I remember correctly, John N. May paid James Taplin two thousand dollars for the stock of the white sport named Bride.

Then came others, Papa Gontier, Princess Beatrice and Mme. Hoste. It might be of interest to mention that Robert Craig and myself cabled for ten thousand plants of Gontier, and what a consignment it was! It had been worked on some kind of stock grown along the Mediterranean. Most of it was from a half inch to three-quarters of an inch in diameter; they proved fairly satisfactory, however.

Our investment in Princess Beatrice was at considerable loss, as it would not force. Henry Bennett, of England, had taken up the hybridizing of the rose and we of the earlier days well remember the advent of Wm. Francis Bennett, Mrs. John Laing, Puritan, Duke of Connaught and Meteor. We all remember how keenly interested the growers were in these introductions of Henry Bennett.

American Beauty was a discovery made at Washington and to Geo. Field is due the credit of its commercial standing of today. It is very unfortunate that this king of forcing varieties lost its original name, and has never been identified with its raiser, Ledechaux, who deserves a monument from Americans.

Belle Siebrecht and Liberty were enthusiastically received but through certain faults discovered as time went on were dropped; Sunrise and Sunset have had a fitful popularity. We note that all these roses came and were popular for a longer or shorter time, but with the exception of three or four they have dropped entirely out of the forcing list. All this apparent wreckage and loss only serves to teach the lesson that novelty and variety are absolutely essential to the successful prosecution of our trade.

Richmond is filling a want, but is not ideal, for with many growers it is not profitable, and it will be supplanted by the first red that betters it, though we prophesy that no grander red rose will ever appear than a perfect Richmond.

In these later years Mrs. Jardine, Rhea Reid and Cardinal have found favor in some quarters but they are each lacking some points that go to make up a successful and also a profitable variety. The advent of Killarney was an awakening to the trade and it has had a great run of popularity and deservedly so. The variations have also found favor, especially White Killarney. This winter will decide the fate of Killarney Queen and of the Double White form. I believe that our firm was the first to grow Killarney in America and we had a considerable planting of it, but every grower who visited our place condemned the variety as being too single, though exquisitely beautiful. One day Robert Craig came along and decided he would like to try it and some of our stock was sent to Forty-ninth and Market streets, but it was again turned down for lack of petalage. Finally the rose came under the eye of Benjamin Dorrance and you all know the results obtained at Wilkesbarre. At almost the same time John Frederick Sullivan of Detroit discovered its fine points and was also very successful in making it popular.

Of late the demand for a good yellow rose has been insistent over the country and Melody, Lady Hillingdon, Mrs. Aaron Ward and Sunburst are all applicants for first places. Lady Hillingdon has warm admirers, and is a grand cold weather rose, with wonderful freedom of growth and blooms.

The ladies rave over Ward, and no wonder, while we feel sure that Sunburst will stay with us for many a day on account of its strong growth and freedom, and beauty of bloom. We are debtor to Pernet-Ducher for both it and Mrs. Ward.

Radiance, another of John Cook's seedlings, is greatly liked and is grown in considerable quantity; it is deliciously fragrant.

Antoine Rivoire is immensely popular in many parts of the country. It is unfortunate that it should have been renamed Mrs. Taft.

One of the new varieties about to enter the arena is Milady raised by Edw. Towill of Roslyn, Pa., and purchased by A. N. Pierson, Inc. This was seeded from J. B. Clark X Richmond and has great vigor and good health. The writer saw this in growth last winter and was quite favorably impressed with its shapeliness and vigor. This rose has been exhibited recently and has received favorable notice. We shall have the privilege of seeing it this autumn as it is to be extensively exhibited at all the fall exhibitions and florists' club meetings.

The writer had the pleasure of viewing 25 blooms of Mme. Chas. Russell last Saturday in the flower shop of Fred Lemon which had been sent by the raiser, Alex. Montgomery, for inspection. The flowers were larger than American Beauty and were indeed magnificent in form and substance; they were on stems three feet long and held erect; the color dark rosy pink, or so it appeared to the writer—not unlike the color of a good American Beauty. What impressed me most was its fine form and its splendid keeping qualities. I do not know the parentage of this rose but it surely is close kin to American Beauty judging by its general make up. Mr. Montgomery is to be congratulated on producing such a fine rose.

No. 190 as exhibited and grown by C. H. Totty and the E. G. Hill Co. is a most remarkable rose, stronger even in growth than Radiance, making long strong stems. Its flowers are of fine shape and great size. Its ever blooming qualities put it in the front rank as a fine forcing variety. The color is rich rose pink, a most brilliant and pleasing one. The ladies of Indianapolis have taken a great liking to this rose and mostly prefer it to Killarney.

As to roses in Europe, the writer saw a great number of very interesting and promising novelties, but whether they will force or not is a question. A rose grown in Europe under their more genial conditions is quite different from the same sort as cultivated under our brighter sun and in our drier climate. One can but wonder why there should be this immense difference for often a British rose is hardly recognizable as the same in America.

In mentioning the names of the newer roses as seen in Europe I shall simply describe them from the garden or European standpoint. I should place British Queen as one of the very finest and most promising of all white roses. It is large in size, of good growth and shapely in form. The two thousand plants all in bloom furnished a wonderful sight, every flower perfect and of a pure white. This rose impressed me as being most remarkable.

ROSE MME. CHARLES RUSSELL.

At the Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, Mass.

Colleen was ideal in form, of great depth, and showed a close relationship to the famed Killarney. Old Gold was, as the name indicated, deep gold and dark yellow, of medium size but with shapely buds and not over full. This is worth a trial in our forcing houses.

At Lowe & Shawyer's, Ltd., were seen great blocks of Hillingdon, Richmond and Joseph Lowe, grown both inside and in the open. If I remember correctly they had 50,000 Richmond in one block; they bud these sorts on stocks in the open and put sash shutters over them just as they are growing in the open ground. These plants thus treated flower from early May until July, which covers the London season.

The roses at Lyons are produced with the one purpose of bringing novelty into the rose garden. Roses are not grown to any extent under glass in France as we practice it in America, hence the characteristics of a forcing rose are not often discovered, but the idea is to get a full, free-flowering novelty that will embellish the garden. Among these garden roses there could hardly help being some varieties that have the necessary forcing requirements, but nothing but a test on American soil under glass can demonstrate this.

Notice has been made in our trade papers of the fine varieties from Lyons shown at the great English exhibition: Mme. Herriott, unlike any other rose on land or sea, a coppery red with long pointed bud. The visiting rose lovers went wild over it. Its sister roses, Willowmere, Mrs. Beckwith and Constance are all beautiful and unique in color and one or more may hold within them forcing requisites.

The three great Irish firms, Samuel McGredy of Portadown, Hugh Dickson of Belfast, and Alexander Dickson of Newtownards are testing thousands of seedling roses annually and of this great number we shall certainly get varieties that will enrich our forcing lists. The raising and testing of new roses is a very expensive process and entails careful, painstaking work to bring results. The uncertainty of the work and the space of time required to prove out seedlings is something that few people realize. The raisers and disseminators of new seedling roses are entitled to more charity and less censure than they receive.

A silk manufacturer at Lyons said to the writer when inspecting his factory the past summer, that originating new patterns, forming new combinations of color, changing machinery to produce new weaves, were absolutely essential to a successful season in the silk industry. I asked if they always succeeded in pleasing the ladies; with a French shrug he replied, "Far from it—and the loss! But they must have the novelty!" So with the rose trade. What the cut flower trade needs today is novelty with sterling qualities.

Cross-fertilizing requires time and patience and is extremely uncertain of even first results. One must wait for the pollen wanted, or wait for the parent plant to bloom and be in condition to take the pollen. If the seed sets there are scores of hazards before the hip ripens; conditions must be watched for sowing it, and a hundred perils assail the tiny seedling from mice to mildew. Once safely potted, the little rose plants must be pushed on into larger sizes before a character bloom can be seen and it is only after a worthy seedling has been propagated and tested in quantity, throughout a full year or more, can its true value be estimated. The general grower is the beneficiary when a good forcing variety is obtained. When varieties disseminated in good faith prove disappointing, the grower should take his share of the medicine uncomplainingly, as the raiser has done before him, of loss of time and square feet of glass. These disappointments and losses are incident to the onward progress of commercial rose growing.

Very few novelty raisers are rolling over the country in Pierce-Arrows or Chalmers, you may note by observation, but many of the growers and wholesalers of cut flowers are much more fortunate.

Congress should give patent rights to a raiser of a new and meritorious plant or a new rose, and the grower should help secure such a law for then the stimulus to raise new plants and new roses would certainly result in attracting many more intelligent hybridizers to this interesting field.

To successfully care for the cut flower trade of America, to add to its volume, to heighten its interest, novelty must be added to its offerings each year.

National Association of Gardeners.

Paper read by M. C. Ebel, Secretary of the association, before the Morris County Gardeners and Florists' Society, Madison, N. J., Oct. 9, 1912.

Fellow members, the subject on which I am to address you this evening is one which has been quite a topic for discussion during recent months among gardeners and their allied interests. Some of these discussions have been very favorable to my subject, others detrimental. But the unfavorable criticisms came mainly from the uninformed. I refer to the National Association of Gardeners and its achievements in twelve short months. I will also relate as briefly as possible some of its aims.

A year ago some regarded this organization as a derelict without a rudder to guide it, but it still contained many staunch supporters who believed its superstructure sound, but who realized that new power must be instilled in order to have it reach the high pinnacle that it is destined to attain in the world of floriculture and horticulture. They became active, and with the progress it has made within the year, those most skeptic of its success a brief period ago, today concede that the National Association of Gardeners has become an influential power in the field it represents. It is not yet a year since its first convention, under the new charter, was held in this very town of Madison, and those who at that meeting pledged support are found to have been loyal to their promise. At the next annual convention, which will occur in November, glowing reports of what has been accomplished since its last meeting may be anticipated.

The association has built up a membership which practically includes every well-known gardener here in the East, while its roll extends from coast to coast. It includes in its list of associate members many men who won reputations in the ranks of private gardeners and who have since achieved success in the commercial fields. Its associate list also contains others influential in horticulture and floriculture and who rank first in their respective vocations. That interest in the association is not waning, but is constantly increasing is substantiated by a glimpse at the monthly reports of new enrollments in its membership. It is only commencing to grow.

What is the aim of the association? Is a question frequently asked. To this we answer: first, that the aim of the National Association of Gardeners is to raise the profession of gardening in this country to its highest possible elevation; second, to develop a closer and more confident relationship between estate owners and the gardeners; third, to inspire a fraternity in the profession whereby the ambitious and deserving may be aided to advance in it and whereby those detrimental to it may be gradually eliminated; fourth, to bring about a closer co-operation between the gardeners themselves, to create a greater expansion of achievements both in floriculture and horticulture; fifth, to gain for the association a reputation among those who require the services of gardeners, that membership in it will be recognized as a certificate of character and ability.

You may remark that all this sounds well, and ask how is it to be accomplished? Simply through persistent and patient effort. And when you look back on what has already been done in less than a year you cannot feel discouraged. It may be well here to refer to an impression which was at one time permitted to spread regarding the association and its relationship to the regulation of employment and wages. The N. A. G. must in no sense be confounded with that of a labor order. It recognizes gardening solely as a profession, not as a trade, and the control of wages and employment is entirely without its sphere. It does not enter into it further than believing that there should be a sufficient fraternal feeling between its members that when one may know of an opportunity by which another may improve himself, the hand of fellowship should be extended; but enrollment in the association does not carry with it an assurance of employment or wage betterment.

The benefit fund has been proposed, and while there are many much in favor of establishing a reserve to assist where actual distress may overtake a deserving member through sickness or worse misfortune, there is, however, most decided opposition to the creating of any fund for the benefit of the shiftless, who, when out of work may feel it incumbent on the association to provide for them. Black sheep exist in the fold of the gardeners as they do in the folds of all professions, and it is the intention of this association to discourage their affiliation, rather than to encourage it.

The point has recently been raised that the N. A. G. should exclude from its organization all but men who are strictly gardeners. The answer to this is that the control of the organization comes under the management of gardeners who represent the active membership. Those outside of the ranks of gardeners, those engaged in work allied with the gardening interest, represent the associate membership, and in this are included men who have grown up from the gardening profession to positions high in their respective commercial lines and whose advice and suggestions when offered to an organization such as ours should always be welcomed and considered, while they need not always necessarily be favorably acted on. Their interest in the association naturally is greater, even if only permitted "on the outside looking in" than if the doors were shut on them altogether.

Co-operation must be the keynote of the National Association of Gardeners.

More frequent use of the horticultural press for the interchange of views and experiments on what is accomplished by those of the gardening profession should be encouraged. The related experiment of one may solve the problem of another and aid in the further progress of that experiment. This would be one step taken towards advancing horticulture and would rapidly lead to others which would tend to arouse a greater interest in the minds of those who are sufficiently provided with the good things of this world but who have not yet been sufficiently "enthused" to turn to nature's grandest gift, the cultivation of flowers, for some of their enjoyment.

By right endeavor on the part of the members and the publicity which should come to the association in the natural course of events, it must gradually establish itself as an institution representative of the gardening fraternity which will exercise an influence and control similar to the national organizations composed of other professions and to which are entrusted the working out of the affairs for the good of the professions they represent.

It may be too soon to suggest what relationship the N. A. G. should hold to local gardeners' societies, but turn to other professions and you will find that every community has its active local body; these bodies all look to a national body and yearly delegates come together in convention gathered from the various local bodies to devise and legislate for the welfare of the entire profession, divided locally but nationally united. Thus results are accomplished and the various professions develop and prosper and so, sooner or later, the younger gardening profession must follow in the footsteps of these older professions. Our next convention will be held in Newark, N. J., on Tuesday, November 19, and everything indicates that this event will bring together the largest gathering of private gardeners ever assembled in this country. A large percentage of the gardeners present here this evening have already subscribed to membership in the national body, but this is not as it should be. It should be one hundred percent of membership, making the spirit of co-operation advocated among the gardeners no longer a mere theory, but an actual fact. And when this is accomplished the gardening profession will come into its own and prosper.

New Brambles.

Explorations in China during the last few years have added to our gardens a very large number of hardy trees and shrubs, some of which are of purely botanical interest, while others possess decorative qualities which warrant their inclusion amongst select ornamental subjects. Of several families which have received large additions from these introductions, the bramble or rubus family is one of the foremost, and a large number of new kinds is available. The various species differ widely in habit, says a writer in Gardening Illustrated, published in London, some having vigorous, upright branches, 15 feet high, others growing into sturdy clumps 3 to 4 feet in height; some producing long, slender shoots which require support, and others, again, rarely rising more than a few inches above the ground. Several have distinctly ornamental foliage, the principal interest in others being their white or bluish bark. Peculiarity of habit marks some kinds as being quite different from that of others previously in cultivation, while the fruit of a few sorts suggests that with a little improvement they would be able to compete favorably with our garden raspberries and blackberries. In the hands of the hybridist the finer fruiting forms may also have a bright future in store.

Meanwhile they are planted for their decorative qualities, and there are numerous positions for which they are well suited. A pergola planted with the stronger-growing kinds and those with long, slender branches might be made very effective. Grouped in shrubberies or in the wilder parts of the garden they are very showy, while they may also be used in conjunction with other shrubs in the formation of general shrubberies. A word or two is necessary regarding cultivation, for, although the brambles are not fastidious as to soil, the best results are only obtained when good, rich loamy soil is provided, for as a rule they are gross feeders. The removal of the old branches as soon as the flowering or fruiting season is over is very necessary, for, as in the case of the raspberry, such shoots usually die, and if left untouched spoil the appearance of the bushes and interfere with the new shoots, which grow up strongly from the base. It is very necessary that such young shoots should develop in a free and unrestricted manner, for it is from the most vigorous branches that we may expect the best leaves and most ornamental bark. A peculiarity about the leaves is the habit those of many kinds have of apeing the shape of the leaves of some other shrub or tree, and in the ensuing notes reference is made to several such cases.

Rubus lasiostylus is one of the best-known of the various new Chinese kinds. Of vigorous habit, it grows from 8 to 12 feet high. The raspberry-like stems are clothed with whitish bark, which makes the plant very conspicuous in winter. There are many forms already in cultivation, differences in stature, habit, and fruit being noticeable. The yellow fruits of the better forms are juicy and palatable.

R. biflorus var. quinqueflorus is a glorified form of the whitewashed-stemmed bramble of North America. Growing at least 15 feet high, the stronger stems are as much as 4½ inches in circumference at the base. The white bark is quite as showy as that of the American kind. White flowers, each about one-half an inch in diameter, appear in May, and are succeeded by yellow fruits, which are not unlike those of the type.

R. bambusarum is an evergreen with long, slender branches, which require the support of a post, trellis, or bush. Its three-parted leaves are very distinct, for each narrow segment is dark green above and greyish beneath by reason of a dense mass of woolly hairs. Flowers and fruits are borne in large heads. The latter are black and small.

R. flagelliflorus is another slender-branched species. The leaves in this case, however, are not divided into leaflets, but are extremely handsome by reason of their irregular green margins and bronzy centers, the whole upper surface having a pretty velvety finish, the underside being pale buff.

For decoration it is quite one of the handsomest, although, unfortunately, it is not one of the easiest to grow.

R. corchorifolius differs from the previously-mentioned kinds by reason of its bushy habit. Growing about 4 feet high, its principal point of interest lies in the similarity between its leaves and those of the common Kerria japonica.

R. niveus is one of the most vigorous of the newer sorts. Growing at least 15 feet high, its strong stems are remarkable for their spines, which are pale brown, rather short and stiff, and completely surround the branches. The three-parted leaves are ornamental, but the flowers are not showy.

R. chroosepalus.—The most noticeable features about this species are its long, slender-green branches and ornamental vine-like leaves.

R. trianthus, an upright-growing kind, attains a height of 8 feet. The secondary branches, which are spreading and graceful, bear good-sized, white flowers in May, and ovate leaves, which have two well-developed lobes at the base.

R. flosculosus grows about 10 feet high, and forms rather slender, brownish stems, which produce large quantities of small, black fruits in July and August.

R. Swinhoei is chiefly remarkable on account of its leaves resembling those of the hornbeam, otherwise it has fewer attractions than several other kinds.

R. omiensis forms a strong-growing bush at least 12 feet high. Its leaves somewhat resemble those of a pelargonium in shape and coloring. The centers are marked with brown, and the margins are green.

R. Giraldianus is of trailing habit. Its branches frequently attain a height of 15 feet, and they are conspicuous by reason of their white bark. The rose-like leaves are pretty.

R. Veitchi also has rose-like foliage. It forms very strong, sappy shoots, which are apt to be injured by frost during winter.

R. parviflorus has been in cultivation for a longer period than the other kinds. Its branches are slender and spiny, and they grow together in a tangled mass. There is nothing attractive about the flowers, but the red fruits are very conspicuous and pleasant, although somewhat acid. It will probably prove useful to the hybridist.

R. irenaeus is remarkable for its long, slender, prostrate branches, which bear heart-shaped leaves each about 5 inches across. To be seen at its best it should be allowed to scramble over an up-turned tree-butt.

These are some of the more distinct kinds, but there are many more species, which may be obtained by anyone who contemplates extensive planting.

ROSES COMING TOO FAST.

There was a slight reaction in the rose market the last of the week, attributed to the warm weather and the crops coming in too fast. The first cold snap we presume will make conditions better. Gardenias were somewhat scarce Saturday. Chrysanthemums are coming in freely. Some are very well grown. Carnations are improving.

NOTES.

November 11 will be the silver anniversary of the Gardeners & Florists' Club. On that night they will have a banquet. The banquets of the club have always been good and of course this will be no exception, and the oratory will be of high order. There have been many changes in the flower trade since the club started, but some of the first members are just as youthful as in the days of yore. Dust your claw-hammers and shake your kilts, boys, and come on. We heard that Craig and Cameron were to sing a duet on that occasion, and that they were to be dressed in real Highland costume.

Baseball and the coal problem have probably put the flower trade on the blacklist, but we hope to have our innings.

We have had no killing frost as yet.
MAC.

Cleveland Notes.

Chilly winds and cloudy skies are not conducive to a great output of indoor or outdoor flowers, and that is what we have had here for the past few days. The supply of roses seems better than at some other places, but there is no surplus. Some complaint is heard from chrysanthemum growers of the moth that lays its eggs on the leaf. The eggs soon develop worms which in some instances have done much damage. One grower said: "You can kill the worms, but you can't kill the moths." Here is a chance for our manufacturers of insecticides to help home industries.

There is quite a colony of florists near Woodland and all seem to be prosperous. Another of them is the veteran Gordon Gray. The phrase gardener and florist is sometimes misapplied, but it is not in the case of Mr. Gray. The idea that some florists seem to have of a garden is to have a lot of old bulb boxes and pipe scattered around as landscape decorations. The grounds around the Gray range are well laid out and even at this late season are beautiful with flowering stock.

John Blackeschmidt, who has a carnation range in the southeast section of the city, has a variegated seedling carnation, a cross between Lawson and Prosperity, which he thinks well of. His crop of flowers is handled by the Cleveland Florists' Exchange.

P. L. Roach of East 99th street who, by the way, is a bachelor, has been much concerned of late about the health of his aged mother. She is 80 years old.

Hart Brothers have a fine stock of plants at their Detroit avenue range. Exceptionally fine are their hydrangeas and begonias, Glory of Cincinnati and Gloire de Lorraine. Their father, Herman A. Hart, is yet an active man and he claims the distinction of being the original Cleveland subscriber to THE AMERICAN FLORIST when it was established in 1885.

Henry Eickhoff has a store on Woodland avenue and a green house on East Seventy-fifth street, where he grows fine plants. A feature, when we visited him, was a great stock of varie-gated vincas which were being taken up and potted. He has a son who is an active worker in the greenhouses.

Henry Taylor of East One Hundred and Sixteenth street says that his sons found the flower business unsuitable for them and he will sell out if offered the correct figures. Mr. Taylor is a good mechanic, as the work of his range and particularly the pipe fittings show.

G. M. Naumann & Son, who have a retail store on Superior avenue and a range on East One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, are now well fitted up for turning out their side line of glazing points which have been so favorably received by the trade.

Buckhart Bros. are building an addition to their modest range on Avon avenue. They deserve considerable credit for what they have done. Working in a foundry, they have, in their spare time, put up several houses and are now fairly started in business.

The Kirchners, who are located at Quincy avenue and East Sixty-seventh street, near Woodland Cemetery, have also a branch at South Euclid, O. They have a good range and are doing a fine business. T. J. Kirchner is manager.

Robert Addicott & Son are finishing a new greenhouse, 20x250 feet, which will give them a total glass area of nearly 50,000 square feet. A large part of their stock, carnations and chrysanthemums, is handled by the McCallum Co.

Fred Ponting, who is located on the Eddy road in what once was Glenville, but is now a part of Cleveland, has erected several new houses this season and now has a large glass area devoted to plant growing.

Knoble Bros. have recently held great fern sales at their store, 1836 West Twenty-fifth street. They have liberally patronized the advertising columns of the daily papers.

E. C. Rock, who by the way is a brother of Wm. L. Rock, the Kansas City, Mo., florist, has a retail store opposite Woodland Cemetery and is doing well.

The southeast part of town seems to be a favorable field for the growers. Paul Kunze is another who has a good variety of stock and a good business.

Herman Wilms of Flora avenue has a good stock of chrysanthemums and carnations and utilizes the space under the benches for mushrooms.

Manager Potter of the McCallum Co. is very much encouraged with the outlook and his stock is usually cleaned out early in the day.

Bramley & Son of East Ninety-ninth street are now cutting heavily of their own stock, which they use in their large retail business.

Fred Rains, in the same locality, has just started in business by erecting two houses.

Cleveland Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the club was held on the night of October 14. Very encouraging reports were made regarding the prospect for the flower show to be held in the Greys' Armory November 14-16. Numerous entries have already been made and several silver cups have been offered as special prizes. Notice was given of a joint invitation to the Cleveland, Detroit and Toledo clubs by Elmer D. Smith, Adrian, Mich., to visit his greenhouses on Tuesday, October 20. A great crowd is assured.

PORT WAYNE, IND.—Miss Rhoda Dogwell has opened a flower store at 238 West Main street.

SPOKANE, WASH.—H. L. Olson has purchased property and will erect greenhouses at a cost of $6,000.

St. Louis.

VALLEY VERY PLENTIFUL.

Lily of the valley and American Beauty roses are very plentiful. Pink American Beauty roses especially are coming in freely and chrysanthemums are of a better grade. Carnations are increasing in quantity and the quality is good. Cosmos is very plentiful. Violets are improving in color, but the demand is not good.

NOTES.

The St. Louis Florists' Club met Thursday. Twenty-five members were present. Charles Young, vice president, in the chair, F. H. Weber, president, being unavoidably absent. Fred Alves, chief man at Geo. Angermueller's, and August Hummert, vice-president of the St. Louis Seed Co., made application for membership.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. filled some very large orchid orders during the past week. Robert J. Windler has a fine display in his show windows. He has a very select trade which is constantly growing.

Grimm & Gorly had several large wedding orders and a very large special American Beauty rose order at the Jefferson Hotel last Tuesday for guests who attended the Veiled Prophet ball.

John Barnard has bought out F. A. Ryan, 2617 N. Fourteenth street, and will conduct a flower shop there. He will have a fine assortment of cut flowers and plants.

J. G. Bruchner of the Normal Florist, Chicago, has been in town. He took in the Veiled Prophet parade, visited the markets and had a general good time.

At H. G. Berning's a fine lot of white and red fancy carnations were seen, also some choice white and pink chrysanthemums.

Otto Sander is doing a good business. His show windows are always attractive and most tastefully arranged.

Frank McCabe, traveling representative of the A. L. Randall Co. of Chicago, was a very busy man all last week.

Young & Sons had the decorations at the Coliseum for the Veiled Prophet ball and did the work in fine shape.

The Metropolitan Floral Co. did a good job at decorating at the automobile shop at Forest Park highlands.

At C. A. Kuehn's some very nice chrysanthemums were seen, also some very fine lily of the valley.

Mullanphy, the Florist, is very busy. Extra help has been engaged to keep up with increased trade.

Henry Devenbergh, with Grimm & Gorly, paid a flying trip to Chicago on business for the house.

Joe Ent of the Union Florist is a daily buyer at the market and is building up a fine trade.

Herman Niehaus, of H. G. Berning's staff, will be married October 19. Congratulations.

Hugo Gross is in with violets and is waiting for cooler weather to develop the stock.

J. F. Wilcox of Council Bluffs, Ia., is shipping carnations to this market.

Chas. Gelven of Sedalia, Mo., was a recent visitor.

August Hartman expects a good crop of violets.

W. F.

ATCHISON, KANS.—This place held a flower parade October 4.

LAWRENCE, KAN.—The Kline Floral Co., well known growers, opened a cut flower store at 811 Massachusetts street, September 20.

Rochester, N. Y.

BUSINESS IMPROVED.

Business for the week ending October 12 showed signs of improvement. Several large funerals have taken place and most of the retailers have been busy with this kind of work. There have also been a few good weddings which have helped to fill up. Some extra good chrysanthemums are coming in, in white, lavender and yellow. These are grown locally. Roses are arriving in good condition. Carnations too are better and larger. There is still plenty of gladioli in all shades. Asters are falling off now, the season being about over. Violets are good and sell well. Tuberoses are scarce as are lily of the valley.

NOTES.

Dr. Charles S. Sargent, professor of arboriculture at Harvard and director of the Arnold Arboretum, reached Rochester on Wednesday and expects to devote two or three days to the study of the European elms, the hawthorns, hickories and other trees and shrubs to be found in the parks and streets of Rochester. For thirteen years Dr. Sargent has visited this city semi-annually and during these visits has succeeded in naming practically every variety of European elm to be found in this vicinity.

Miss Rose Ella Brown, who is visiting relatives in Dayton, Ohio, expects to return to Rochester very shortly.

The Lady Florists' Association met at the Elms bowling hall on Tuesday last and enjoyed a good game.

Charles Curtis of Irondequoit, N. Y., is growing some very fine Enchantress carnations.

PREPARING FOR SHOW.

The decorating committee appointed for the flower show to be held November 5-9 are as follows: F. J. Keller, chairman; George B. Hart, R. G. Salter, E. P. Wilson, E. R. Fry, F. R. Schlegel, J. M. Keller, George T. Boucher, Robert Ballentyne, C. B. Ogston, Charles Suhr, A. H. Salter, F. W. Vick, George F. Crosman, W. T. Logan, John C. Parker, Felix Alberts and John Dunbar. The out-of-town members of the general committee are Wm. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.; E. F. Rowe, Harrisburgh, Pa.; Calvin J. Huson, Albany, N. Y. John Dunbar, president of the Florists' Association, told the members and their guests at a smoker held Thursday night at Hotel Seneca that Rochester is the only city that makes flower shows a success. Others who spoke and predicted a great show this season were Joseph P. McSweeney, C. B. Ogston, George F. Roth, A. E. Crockett, C. W. Crosman and F. W. Vick. Charles H. Vick, chairman of the general committee, presided. William Pitkin, Jr., and F. L. Trautman, the show's landscape architects, have had their plans approved. In the auditorium and convention hall the central figure will be a chrysanthemum garden. The garden will be inclosed with lattice work and an evergreen hedge. In the annex there will be a water court. The ladies of the Florists' Association will serve tea in this hall.

H. J. H.

MARQUETTE, MICH.—Arthur Peterson, with C. Peterson & Sons, Escanaba, and A. F. Longren, representing Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, were the guests of E. R. Tauch this week. Mr. Tauch is a fine entertainer and did everything in his power to give the visitors a royal good time. His friends were greatly surprised to find that he was an accomplished piano player and it is now a settled fact that he will play the wedding march when the bells ring in his neighboring city.

Albany, N. Y.

FUNERAL ORDERS HEAVY.

One of the most lavish exhibitions of flowers in this locality for some years was seen on the occasion of the funerals of four victims of the wreck on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad at Westport, Conn., on October 3. The four were residents of this city and were Mrs. E. Palmer Gavit, Mrs. James Cox Brady, Mrs. C. S. Ransom, and Miss Mary Hamilton. Mrs. Gavit was the daughter of Anthony N. Brady, a traction magnate, and the three others were sisters. The funerals took place on Sunday, October 6. Four coffin blankets were sent by friends in New York and four were ordered from H. G. Eyres by members of the Brady family. The blankets were made up of lily of the valley, cattleyas, and smilax without stint. Mr. Eyres filled orders for eight bunches of orchids, each with 50 flowers. Four of the bunches were made up of white orchids and lily of the valley and four cattleyas. Thousands of pink roses were used in making up bunches, many of which were scattered along the roadway from the cemetery entrances to the mausoleums. At least 500 American Beauty roses were used in various ways. Hartford, Conn., florists sent about $1,000 worth of designs and three men to look after them. In Albany. Local florists furnished also many elaborate designs.

The dedication of the state Education building on October 14 brought a large order to H. G. Eyres. The function drew to Albany distinguished educators from all parts of the United States. The building was begun more than four years ago and was erected at a cost of over $4,000,000. It is said to be the only building built by any state and devoted exclusively to educational departmental work.

Albany Florists' Club.

THE OCTOBER MEETING.

Among the items of business transacted at the October meeting of the Albany Florists' Club on Thursday evening of last week was the appointment of a committee on publicity to act in co-operation with a similar committee of the New York Florists' Club and the state federation. The committee of the local club was appointed following communication from a committee of the New York club with a similar object. President F. A. Danker of the Albany club named the following: Frederick Goldring, chairman; Edward P. Tracey, Louis H. Schaefer, Robert Davidson, James H. Snyder, and the president, ex-officio. One member of this committee will be elected to membership in the publicity committee of the S. A. F. He will be expected to attend a meeting of the national committee in New York next April.

President F. A. Danker reported on the meeting of the officers of the state organization held during the fair at Syracuse in September. This meeting brought out the fact that the fruit growers, market gardeners, and florists have agreed to work together to secure an appropriation for a building at the state fair grounds devoted to their interests. The three bodies will also look after the landscape work and decorations of the fair grounds with a view to seeing that this feature receives proper attention. President Danker reported that the state federation of florists' clubs has made a good start in its work. Louis H. Schaefer of the entertainment committee reported on the clambake held on August 24 and on the work of the window garden committee of the Albany Woman's Club, Mrs. John T. D. Blackburn, chairman. Mr. Schaefer said that all tickets used at the bake had been paid for and that the committee had cleared expenses with $2 over. As to the work of Mrs. Blackburn's committee Mr. Schaefer said that it had done a great deal to encourage the cultivation of flowers. The exhibits in Washington park lake house under the auspices of the committee were creditable. As a mark of appreciation the club adopted Mr. Schaefer's motion to invite Mrs. Blackburn and the chairmen of her sub-committees to the exhibition and reception which the florists' club will hold in its rooms on the evening of November 6.

Mr. Schaefer made a report also on the visit paid on the afternoon of September 19 to the violet houses of James H. Snyder, Rhinebeck. Mr. Snyder thanked the club for its visit and for the gift of a silk umbrella made on the occasion.

Henry Demars of Demars Brothers, glaziers, Cambridge, Mass., who has been busy in this locality through the summer, was elected a member.

Nashville, Tenn.

FALL PROSPECTS GOOD.

With the opening of the schools and colleges and the advent of the cooler weather the flower trade has taken on a decided briskness and promises to be very fine shortly. Carnations and roses are both thrifty. Everybody seems to be satisfied with the outlook both as to supply and demand. Chrysanthemums are on the market and in a few days will be very abundant. Violets are just beginning to bloom and most of the growers are having their first cut this week.

NOTES.

Work on the new McIntyre Bros. floral establishment on the fashionable West End avenue is progressing nicely and they will soon be able to move into it. In the meantime they have kept the plants growing in the old greenhouses while they have been establishing the new, which will give them larger facilities. Their stock is in fine shape and they will have everything needed in the way of fine and beautiful flowers.

The Joy Floral Company reports the same fine outlook for the season. Their chrysanthemums are splendid and they will have a full supply to meet every demand. The white and yellow varieties are blooming more abundantly just now and there is a good constant demand. Carnations are coming in with a rush and already the roses are fine.

Geny Bros. have just put in a hundred horse power boiler and completed a brick stack sixty feet high. They have added four additional houses this year, each 30x186 feet. For several months past Oscar Geny has had entire charge of his greenhouses and they have never had better plants or flowers.

L. Haury & Sons have a good outlook for the season and are making a good reputation for putting up artistic floral designs. Their stock is in fine condition and they expect to do a fine business this season.

Geny Bros. and the Joy Floral Co. together bought a car load of French Roman hyacinths and narcissi and will have these plentifully later on.

M. C. D.

TAMPICO, ILL.—Fred Shanks has erected a greenhouse 12x24 feet in which he expects to raise winter vegetables. If the enterprise proves remunerative he will continue the business on a more extensive scale next season.

OBITUARY.

George Carpenter.

George Carpenter, an old-time florist of Philadelphia, Pa., died suddenly Wednesday, September 25, of heart trouble. He had been making cuttings in the greenhouse, and feeling tired, went to the house for a rest and passed away a half hour later while lying on a couch. Mr. Carpenter was born in London, England, in 1844. After coming to this country he started in business at Fifty-sixth street and Wyalusing avenue. When requiring more room he removed to Sixtieth street and Girard avenue, where he built quite a range of glass. Bedding plants were his specialty. Mr. Carpenter was a hard worker. His genial disposition made him many friends in the trade. He leaves two sons, George and Frank Carpenter. George, who has been his father's right hand man, will continue the business. The late Mr. Carpenter was buried on Saturday, September 28, in Arlington cemetery. There were many floral tributes, the room being entirely filled with choice wreaths and sprays.

Martin Kennedy.

Martin Kennedy of Brooklyn, N. Y., was found dead in a bed of his favorite chrysanthemums September 27, in one of the greenhouses owned by James Weir & Sons, his former employers. Death was the result of apoplexy. Mr. Kennedy was 70 years old and had spent forty of his fifty years of service as a florist with the Weir firm. Three years ago he retired but it was his habit to visit the chrysanthemum beds daily between 5 and 6 in the afternoon. On the day of his death he appeared as usual and, filling his watering pot, proceeded to go about the task he loved so well. An hour later Patrick Smith, one of the employees, found his dead body.

James C. Murray.

James C. Murray, for twenty-five years a successful florist of Peoria, Ill., died October 13 after a long illness, aged 63 years. He was born in Yarmouth, England, and came to America with his parents when he was but three years old. He opened a flower shop in Peoria twenty-five years ago and has prospered in his business. Poor health compelled him to retire recently, however. He is survived by his wife and one son, David Trotter Murray.

W. R. Miller.

W. R. Miller, proprietor of a greenhouse at 2128 Eastern avenue, Cincinnati, died September 23 of valvular disease of the heart. He is survived by a wife and three sons—Charles C., Alfred A. and Walter R. Miller. The sons are in the seed business.

SPOKANE, WASH.—Patrick Leavey has been granted a permit to build a greenhouse.

DETROIT, MICH.—Norman Sullivan, 211 Woodward avenue, has taken out a permit to build a greenhouse at a cost of $1,000.

BOSTON, MASS.—A charter has been issued to Zinn's Flower Shop, Inc. The capital stock is $5,000 and the incorporators are Clarence W. Rowley, Olivia F. Zinn and Annie P. Magee.

LOS GATOS, CALIF.—William A. Yeland of this place died of heart failure, October 3, at Darien, Conn., where he was traveling in the interests of C. C. Morse & Co., San Francisco seedsmen. He was 52 years of age and leaves five children.

American Sweet Pea Society.

On a call from President Sim, an executive meeting of our Society was held in Horticultural Hall, Boston, Friday, October 11. The following members were present: William Sim, W. Atlee Burpee, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Wm. Currie, Thos. J. Roland, Wm. J. Stewart, Peter M. Miller, W. T. Hutchins, Robert Cameron, Jas. Wheeler and Harry A. Bunyard. Mr. Farquhar formally extended the invitation to the society to hold its annual exhibition under the auspices of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. The invitation was received with a hearty vote of thanks. The express idea of calling a meeting was for the purpose of completing matters relative to the Boston summer flower show. The schedule of this society for the International Flower Show to be held in New York in April was submitted and accepted. It will be published in about ten days. The matter of the society's medals was also gone into and Thomas Roland, chairman of the medal committee, was instructed to proceed to have the die made and such medals struck off as were won at the last exhibition in Boston. The meeting then adjourned at the call of the chair. President Sim served luncheon to the visiting members at the Copley Square Hotel for which he received a hearty vote of thanks.

OUR quality of Chrysanthemums, Carnations and Roses is such that we can guarantee satisfaction. Can supply anything in any quantity.

56 E. RANDOLPH ST., CHICAGO

Philadelphia Notes.

Richards Bros., Wm. Swayne, W. Eastburn of Kennett square and other carnation growers of Chester County, say their stock has never looked better, there being very little stem rot. The plants since they were moved in from the field have taken hold of the soil and a healthy growth is the result. T. Edwards of Bridgeton, N. J., reports that out of 15,000 plants set out in the houses he lost from all causes less than 100, and that the prospects for a good crop are very bright.

Chrysanthemums are coming along fast with the Robert Craig Co. Among the new ones, Comoleta, a yellow, and Elise Popworth, a fine white, are thought to be winners. M. Banard of Stewart, Lowe & Co., London, Eng., was a visitor the past week. He thought so well of a new seedling croton that he gave an order for all he could get for export.

The color photographic slides which show flowers in their natural colors, with which President Vincent illustrated his lecture at the last meeting of the club, were the best ever seen in this city. They were for the most part of dahlias taken at the Vincent dahlia show and farm at White Marsh, Md.

The Columbia Flower Shop at 1523 Columbia street has taken more commodious quarters at 1517, a few doors east. P. J. Schembs, who has been operating on Seventeenth street above Spring Garden, will open up at the Columbia's old number and make a bid for the uptown trade.

Stewart H. Miller, Edward Reid's first lieutenant, was married on October 9 to Miss Ray Evens, who was also connected with the Reid establishment as bookkeeper. They are both very popular with the trade. Congratulations were showered on them.

Glowing reports and large orders from their salesmen in all parts of the country is the good word with H. Bayersdorfer & Co. In spite of large shipments the immense stock never seems to go down, as it is constantly replenished with fresh importations.

The new boxwood trees are in. Henry A. Dreer, Wm. K. Harris and the Robert Craig Co. all having received large importations. The stock appears to have carried well. Indications are that more of these will be used than ever before.

Chrysolora, a fine early yellow, almost of exhibition quality, was a leader among the chrysanthemums at the Niessen market last week. The first local double violets arrived on Saturday. They were very good for the first picking.

Julius Wolff, Jr., had the decorations at the Gimbel store for the store's Seventieth anniversary. Several carloads of autumn leaves and thousands of hydrangea heads were used as well as large quantities of palms.

M. Rice & Co. report large sales of wreaths, including cycas, moss and ruscus. The S. S. Prinz Oskar brought them last week the largest single shipment of moss wreaths ever made.

Godfrey Aschmann reports a very busy fall trade. Palms, araucarias and ferns are moving out lively. His large importation of azaleas have just arrived—a fine lot of plants.

Wm. Berger, Germantown, is adding to his delivery service a very swell Autocar. Auto delivery cars are no longer a luxury. They are a necessity.

The Joseph Heacock Co. is sending in some White and Pink Killarneys with 24 to 30-inch stems that are of fine quality for the season.

American Beauties are leaders at Ed. Reid's, while choice chrysanthemums are now close behind them in the rush for first place.

Emil LeLache is the Cosmos King and has wagonloads of this great flower every day at his stand in the Twelfth street market.

The Cyrtomium Rockfordianum sent out by the H. A. Dreer Co. is meeting with favor and stocks are seen in all the stores.

The Kugler Flower Shop opened for business Monday, October 7, with John Wilson, late of Habermehl's, in charge.

Berger Brothers are pushing chrysanthemums. All the standard sorts are offered in quantity. K.

Indianapolis.

MARKET UNUSUALLY GOOD.

The cut flower market has been unusually good; in fact, there has not been enough of the better grades of flowers to go around. The scarcity is most apparent in lilies, chrysanthemums and American Beauties. The latter sell easily at 5 cents for shorts up to $3.50 a dozen for the best long-stemmed. The best carnations bring 2½ cents. Tea roses sell from 2 cents to 6 cents.

NOTES.

The meeting of the State Florists' Association was held at the Smith & Young Co.'s commission house. It was well attended and was unanimously voted one of the best meetings of the season. The next meeting will be held at Richmond.

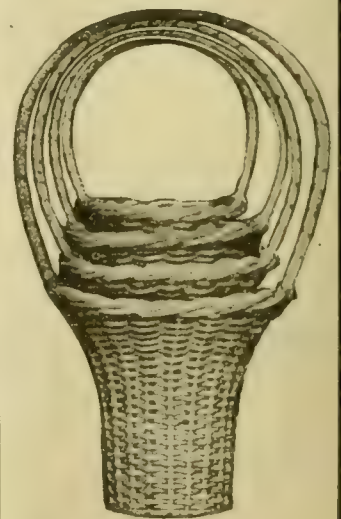

The Hill-Heller Co. is well pleased with its new business in this city. The new store is of a very handsome and original design. The company has introduced the dollar box to this city and it is being well received by the public.

The Bertermann Bros. Co. has completed the excavation and foundation walls for the new conservatory. This improvement will make this retail establishment one of the most complete and up-to-date in the middle west.

Sidney Smith has sold his property on Thirty-eighth street. The greenhouses are to be torn down and the ground utilized for residence property.

H. W. Rieman and the Bertermann Bros. Co. have each a new delivery car on the streets and each is of a very handsome design.

DECORAH, IA.—The Winneshiek County Horticultural Society has postponed its annual exhibition one year as a result of the almost total failure of the apple crop.

AURORA, ILL.—The Aurora Greenhouse Co. has just completed a new greenhouse 25x125 feet, a storage house 20x60 feet, and three concrete hotbeds 74x6x75 feet. J. H. Newhall, proprietor, is busy now shipping cyclamens to Texas and Arkansas from his stock of 10,000 plants.

SUPPLY STILL SHORT.

There is still a brisk demand for stock of all kinds and the only flowers that are plentiful are orchids and violets. Cattleya labiata is in good supply and so are oncidiums, but the latter are having a very poor sale. Violets are none too good but move fairly well. The supply of lily of the valley is equal to the demand and lilies are in splendid shape, some excellent flowers of good substance being seen. American Beauty roses of very fine quality are arriving and sell very quickly. The long-stemmed stock is more plentiful, but the shorter grades are very scarce. Roses are none too plentiful and owing to the diminished cut there is no great surplus and the better stock does not remain long on the grower's or the wholesaler's hands. The demand for Killarney and other colored roses is brisk but the supply of white seems to be much larger. Chrysanthemums are arriving in larger quantities with the supply not yet equal to the demand. Carnations are in good supply, the better grades sell quickly at good figures, but the very short grades are sold at sacrifice prices. The only outdoor stock now to be seen on the market in any quantity is dahlias, gladioli and cosmos. The latter is displayed in large bunches of long-stemmed flowers and makes a great showing either in the windows or on the counters. There is a good supply of greens of excellent quality and already is heard quotations of the stock of greens for the holiday season. Ferns have advanced a little in price, but the supply of bronze galax must be large, for several of the dealers are offering it in case lots at very reasonable figures. Chrysanthemums are becoming more plentiful and the following varieties are now arriving: Monrovia, Robert Halliday, Pacific Supreme, Roserie, Golden Glow, Miss Virginia Poehlmann, Donatello, Ivory, Polly Rose, Glory of the Pacific, Clementine Tousey, Chrysolora and Unaka.

NOTES.

Percy Jones is taking care of his regular customers in fine shape nowadays as far as roses, carnations and chrysanthemums are concerned, for his growers are keeping him well supplied with choice stock. H. Van Gelder says that business is good and it is plainly seen that things are beginning to hum in the supply department.
